Loyalist Navy Joins Planes In Attack on African City

Rebels Bombed In Surprise Raid

Madrid Celebrates as Conflict Is Moved From Capital.

By the United Press.

Gibraltar, April 1.—Spain's Loyalist navy and air force carried the civil war across the Straits of Gibraltar and into North Africa late today when they united in a violent bombardment of Ceuta, rebel base at the tip of Spanish Morocco.

The surprise attack marked the first time that the government high command has dared to strike at heavily fortified Ceuta, port of embarkation and concentration for thousands of Gen. Francisco Franco's Moroccan and foreign volunteers and most of his equipment of war.

The bombardment—17 miles across the straits—continued for several hours and was heard clearly here.

Military experts said the Loyalists, striking with new vigor in the wake of their recent victories on the Spanish fronts, apparently were taking advantage of reported armed rebellion among the insurgent troops in Morocco.

The pride of the Loyalist navy, the battleship Jaime Primero, aided in the shelling from the sea, while a fleet of planes dumped tons of explosives on the town.

The wharf, loaded with ammunition and war materials awaiting transport to the rebel bases at Algeciras, Cadiz and Malaga, was the main objective of the bombardment.

Anti-aircraft batteries attempted to drive off the raiders, but were reported to have been silenced amid dense clouds of smoke—indicating direct hits either by the airplanes or warships.

Madrid Celebrates.

Madrid, April 1 (AP).—There was celebration in Madrid tonight as the war front was pushed steadily back from the capital.

For the first time in many months there was indication the city might no longer be the focal point of the cival war, and jubilant militiamen paraded the streets to sing and shout of victory reports.

Fighting on the north was centered more than 50 to 300 miles away—in the Guadalajara and Zaragoza sectors, and along the Bay of Biscay.

The Febus (official Spanish) News Agency, in a dispatch from Valencia, said it had learned through secret sources that 50 planes took off from Italy March 25, en route for service with the insurgents.

Government armies centered their southern lines in Cordoba sector, 150 miles from the capital, where militiamen pushing down the roads to Penarroya, Espiel and Villaharta, were encountering serious resistance.

Rebels in Surprise Attack.

Vitoria, Spain, April 1 (AP).—The northern insurgent army of Gen. Emilio Mola crept through the mist-cloaked Cantabrian Mountains today and launched a sudden but well-planned offensive against Bilbao, capital of the rich Basque country along the Bay of Biscay.

Mola's staff counted 100 government dead and said 500 prisoners were taken. A chain of government trenches, a small fort and several villages were captured.

Spain Offers Proof.

By the United Press.

London, April 1.—The Spanish loyalist government tonight submitted to Great Britain and France purported photographic and documentary proof of Premier Benito Mussolini's "invasion" of Spain with divisions of his regular army.

The so-called proof of Italy's "undeclared war on republican Spain," contained in notes sent to London and Paris by Julio Alvarez del Vayo, foreign minister of the Valencia government, included copies of a telegram purportedly sent by Il Duce to his countrymen in Spain congratulating them on their victory.

Clew Is Sought In Sewer in N.Y. Triple Slaying

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 1.—A thorough search of the city's sewers was under way in the Beekman Hill section tonight as police continued their hunt for the leisurely Easter Day killer of Veronica Gedeon and two other persons.

Detective Lieutenant Walter Harding announced the sewage system over a wide area was being searched in the hope of finding the awl-like weapon which brought swift death to Frank Byrnes, 35, a roomer in the lovely artist model's home.

At the same time he disclosed that all of the plumbing in the five-room apartment on East Fiftieth street would be taken out tomorrow in a similar search.

Meantime Joseph Gedeon, the wiry little father of Miss Gedeon, who unwittingly followed her mother and Byrnes into the killer's hands when she returned home from a night of dancing and drinking Easter morning, was clamped into jail tonight on a charge of owning a pistol without a permit. His formal arrest followed 24 hours of almost continuous questioning.

Trailed by milling crowds wherever he went, Gedeon was hauled and pushed by detectives through a day of rapid-fire developments that included these:

A city-wide search was started for five "attractive" women described by Lieut. Harding as frequent visitors at Gedeon's upholstery shop, where he took up living quarters after separating from his wife several years ago.

The charge of possessing an unlicensed revolver brought against Gedeon was based on the finding of an old-fashioned weapon in his luridly decorated room at the rear of the shop.

Capt. William T. Reynolds disclosed for the first time that the police have several awls and needles, any one of which could

Spectacular Auto Tire Fire Sends Two Firemen, Child to Hospital

Traffic Paralyzed by Blaze in Junk Lot at First and M Streets Northeast, Loss Estimated at $15,000.

One of the most spectacular fires here in recent years turned a $15,000 heap of auto tires into a roaring inferno, attracted thousands of spectators, paralyzed traffic and sent two firemen and a child to the hospital late yesterday.

Starting on a scrap tire lot near First and M streets northeast along the railroad right of way the blaze resisted hundreds of firemen for hours before being brought under control.

Its spouting flames and dense clouds of black smoke luring throngs to the scene from every section of the Capital, the fire took the following toll:

"Completely destroyed," according to Owner Hyman Viener, 1,500 tons of discarded auto tires, valued at $10 a ton, which were stored on the lot awaiting shipment to mills and factories.

Two Go to Hospital.

Sent Firemen Charles Gladhill and Adrian Kloczewski to Casualty Hospital, the former with a knee injury and the latter suffering from inhalation of the acrid rubber fumes. At least a dozen more fire fighters were partially overcome, but received first aid at the scene.

Eight-year-old Helen M. Smoak, 642 Morris place northeast, treated at Casualty Hospital for a sprained ankle and leg cuts suffered, according to police, when she collided with a truck at Third and L streets northeast while running to the fire.

Resulted in a severe shaking up for Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, when the car in which he was bound for the blaze was in collision with another machine. Neither he nor the driver, Fleet L. Oswald, a hack inspector, was injured. The crash occurred at Fourth and I streets northwest.

With the rising wall of smoke visible all over the District and in nearby Virginia and Maryland, people flocked to the siren-like beacon from every direction—by auto, motorcycle, bicycle, street car, on foot and by any other mode of

Jury Convicts Read in W. Va. Torch Slaying

By the Associated Press.

Sutton, W. Va., April 1.—A jury decreed death for William B. Read today and Judge Jake Fisher sentenced the 25-year-old Maryland man to be hanged at the State Penitentiary July 9 for the torch-slaying of W. Earle Dollman, Charleston salesman.

The verdict of guilty without recommendation for mercy was returned after the jury deliberated an hour. It made the death sentence mandatory.

The hanging verdict was the first returned in Braxton County since about the time of the Civil War, attaches said. The death sentence was the first pronounced by Judge Fisher in his 24 years on the bench.

Dollman, en route from Morgantown to his Charleston home for last Thanksgiving, died of a fractured skull. His charred and almost unrecognizable body was discovered in his blazing automobile on the main highway a few miles from Gassaway.

Before sentence was passed, Read again proclaimed his innocence, saying that two former companions who testified Read was the actual slayer "did not tell a straight tale."

After Defense Attorney E. G. Person's move for a new trial was overruled, Read faced the court and jury, saying:

Holmes Maps Concerted Drive On District Traffic Offenders

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Faced with recent congressional criticism of local police traffic policies, Inspector William E. Holmes, newly appointed traffic supervisor, soon will inaugurate a revamped program of relentless and rigid law enforcement, it was learned last night.

Every police precinct in Washington will be enlisted in a concerted drive to improve traffic conditions and reduce accidents, it was reported. At a scheduled meeting of traffic officials, precinct commanders will be spurred to new highway safety efforts with orders to increase enforcement of all regulations, both petty and major. The Post learned.

Inspector Holmes, who took over his new duties yesterday, is not satisfied with present traffic enforcement by uniformed policemen in the precincts. Soon after taking office yesterday, he indicated intention of "getting behind" enforcement policies throughout the various police districts.

Traffic arrest books, it was learned, will be checked to determine the extent of traffic enforcement by precincts. Inspector Holmes indicated that many policemen assigned to precinct duty are not interested in traffic problems, and as a consequence fall to strictly enforce regulations.

"I don't mean that unnecessary

Tokyo, (Friday), April 2 (U.P.).—Strikes flared throughout Japan today as workers demanded increased wages to meet advanced living costs.

23 Countries Join Textile Parley Here

Tripartite Meeting Will Be First of Kind Ever Held.

By Franklyn Waltman.

In the first conference of its kind ever to be held, representatives of employers and workers in the textile industry and of the governments in 23 countries will gather at 2 p. m. today in the Labor Department auditorium in an effort to formulate a solution for the ills which have made the manufacture of textiles a "sick" industry the world over.

President Roosevelt will send a message of greeting to open the World Textile Conference, being held under auspices of the International Labor Organization, and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper will appear to make addresses.

Jerome Necas, of Czechoslovakia, minister of social welfare and chairman of the governing board of the International Labor Organization, will open the conference and will act as temporary chairman until the permanent presiding officer is elected by the delegates from the 23 countries. John G. Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire and former chairman of the Social Security Board, is slated to be named permanent chairman. He is the United States Government delegate to the conference.

Others who will make addresses at the opening session today are Corneille Mertens, workers' delegate from Belgium; Carlos Alberto Pardo, representative of the Argentine government, and Hans C. Oersted, employers' representative from Denmark. Mertens and Oersted are vice chairmen of the governing body of the International Labor Organization.

Each of the countries participating in the conference will be represented by three delegates—one representing the government, another textile employers and a third representing textile workers. Because of this type of representation on the principal delegations the conference officially is known as "The Tripartite Technical Textile Conference."

200 to Take Part.

The major textile producing countries—the United States, the United Kingdom and Japan—also will have in attendance on the conference large advisory and technical staffs, so that altogether there will be approximately 200 persons participating in this conference, which is expected to continue about two weeks.

The purpose of the conference is to formulate a draft convention regarding working conditions in the textile industry for submission to the International Labor Organization's annual conference in June at Geneva. It is hoped that there will be included in this draft convention a provision limiting hours of work in the textile industry to 40 hours a week. The textile industry in this country now observes approximately a 40-hour work week.

This conference was inspired by American delegates to the International Labor Organization at Geneva. In 1935 Walton H. Hamilton first proposed the idea of a comprehensive study of the world textile industry. Last year this idea was pressed by Miss Frieda Miller and Winant. They presented the following resolution, which was adopted and which outlines the scope of the conference which opens today:

"The conference taking into consideration:

"1. That there is a general desire for improvement of the wages, hours and working conditions of textile workers throughout the world;

"2. That, having regard to the varying standards of hours, wages and working conditions in different countries, such improvement requires the co-operation of the countries concerned, and that the International Labor Organization provides the appropriate means of attaining agreement on equitable standards of hours, wages and working conditions;

"3. That the establishment of such equitable standards can be achieved only by discussion between the representatives of Government, employers, and workers' organizations in the various countries,

"Decides to request the governing body to convene a tripartite conference which would include the necessary technical and expert assistance from textile-producing countries. It would be the purpose of this conference to consider how the work already undertaken by

Rumania Expels Foreign Newsmen At Nazis' Demand

Bucharest, April 1 (U.P.).—Several veteran foreign journalists, including Americans, were expelled from Rumania tonight after demands by Rumanian Nazis that the correspondents be replaced by "Rumanian patriots."

The Nazis demanded that Premier George Tatarescu obtain for the "patriots" jobs of all kinds, including journalistic correspondence. Most of the foreign correspondents in Bucharest have been Jews, Hungarians and Germans.

Rome, April 1 (AP).—Premier Mussolini today lifted the ban on the New York Herald Tribune, which was forbidden last Saturday from circulation in Italy. Officials said the ban was imposed through a misunderstanding.

Burke Charges Relief May Be Used to Force Passage of Court Plan

Roosevelt and Wheeler Clash Over Supreme Court Changes

President Declares I. C. C. Functions Because of Liberal Law Interpretation by Highest Tribunal.

The views of President Roosevelt and Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, now warring over the former's plan to enlarge the Supreme Court, collided again last night.

In a message to the fiftieth anniversary exercises of the Interstate Commerce Commission, President Roosevelt said that the I. C. C. was fortunate that a liberal interpretation of the Constitution had permitted it to function for a half century.

This interpretation, the President said, recognized "that an obviously national need can be met only through obviously national action." That is the crux of Roosevelt's argument in his controversy with the Supreme Court.

Recalls Eastman Speech.

Senator Wheeler, in an address read for him by Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, mentioned the Supreme Court battle directly. He first recalled a speech made by Joseph B. Eastman, Federal co-ordinator of transportation in 1934, in which Eastman said that the President had no more control over the acts of the Interstate Commerce Commission than he had "over the deliberations of the Supreme Court."

"Mr. Eastman may still be of the same opinion," Senator Wheeler said, "but if certain pending proposals are adopted, I fear he might be forced to find himself another and more striking analogy than that of the Supreme Court."

Continuing, Wheeler sa'd:

"I am unalterably opposed to diminishing the independent, bipartisan character of the Interstate Commerce Commission or of the similar independent agencies by placing them under executive domination, either indirectly, as has been the case, or directly, as in a pending proposal."

Wheeler was referring to the President's Committee on Administrative Management. He said he found himself in "sharp disagreement" with the conclusions of this committee's reorganization report—particularly with the committee's statement that "these commissions have been the result of legislative grouping rather than the pursuit of a consistent policy."

The Montana Senator said that the I. C. C. was not "planned," in the modern sense. As presently constituted, he said, it represents 50 years of co-operative "groping."

President Roosevelt did not mention the Supreme Court in his letter to Carroll Miller, chairman of the I. C. C. However, many of those gathered in the departmental auditorium sensed a parallel in his remarks about the "economic fos-

Rider Banning Coal Sit-Downs Stuns Senate

Roosevelt Charged With Cowardice; Turmoil Follows Proposal.

By Sidney Olson.

Suddenly faced with the blunt necessity of a direct vote on the sit-down strike issue, the Senate last night was thrown into violent debate that culminated in adjournment amid confusion.

The expected passage of the Guffey coal bill was delayed until today by the flow of hot words as the Senate was forced to confront the dreaded issue squarely.

Standing out in the mass of charges was one made by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, the center of sit-downs, who shouted:

"There is a moral responsibility which thus far has not been exercised or declared, and it is a responsibility which rests not only on this chamber but goes straight down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House."

Calls Roosevelt Coward.

Vandenberg smashed at the Administration's "continued and complete silence" on sit-down strikes, holding that it was "as silent as the tomb respecting obligations to law and order and the maintenance of civilized society."

In the House, Representatives John Taber (Republican), New York, charged flatly that "President Roosevelt lacks the courage and patriotism to put down sit-down strikes."

The dramatic Senate impasse was brought about by an amendment to the Guffey bill, suggested by Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina, which would have added to the policy declarations of the bill this provision:

"It is further declared to be the public policy of the United States that no employe of any producer of coal whose employment has been terminated, or who for any reason has ceased to work for such producer, shall remain upon the property upon which he was employed after he has received written notice

House Battle On D.C. Budget Forecast Today

District Committee Members to Raise Points of Order Against Riders.

By James D. Secrest.

Contending that the House subcommittee on District Appropriations "usurped" its legislative functions, the House District Committee today will make a fight on probably a dozen provisions of the District supply bill when it is read in the House.

Chairman Mary T. Norton of the District Committee and Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said that points of order will be raised against what they term "legislative" provisions of the bill on the ground that they should be considered by their committees.

While Mrs. Norton declined to express an opinion on the merits of the riders, some of which authorize interdepartmental transfers, Nichols bluntly stated that many of them are "excellent," but that he believed the proper place for their consideration is the legislative committee.

Speaks of Jacobs Report.

Speaking of the Jacobs report, which the Collins sub-committee repudiated, Mrs. Norton said:

"The report cost $50,000, and surely it deserves some consideration by our committee."

The conference between Chairman Collins of the sub-committee on District Appropriations, and Mrs. Norton and Nichols went into each of the disputed riders, but the members failed to reach an accord after an hour's discussion, at times marked by loud voices.

The 12 provisions which may be the basis of points of order and will be the focal point of today's intercommittee fight are as follows:

1. Prohibition against the raising of the $1.50 realty tax rate.

2. The transfer of the superintendent of licenses from the assessor's office to the department of weights, measures and markets.

3. The direction to the Public Utilities Commission to initiate an inquiry into the rates of the Chesa-

400,000 Coal Miners Wait Call For Strike as Parley Falters

By the Associated Press.

The Nation faced a strike of 400,000 miners today that would all but choke off soft coal production while new unrest threatened in the automotive industry.

Technically the cessation of coal digging was in effect. Actually, however, it awaited the outcome of a conference in New York today. That it would become an actuality was believed almost inevitable.

President Roosevelt was expected to participate in that event. Only 30 days' supply of coal was above ground.

A walkout of union employes suspended operations in all units of the Chevrolet Motor Co. at Flint, Mich., last night, adding nearly 12,000 to the more than 90,000 automobile workers already idle in Michigan.

Earlier, more than 17,000 General Motors Corporation employes were added temporarily to Michigan's idle automotive workers by new sit-down strikes. Union executives quickly effected evacuation of the plants, however, and arrangements for resumption of work were made.

Negotiations toward settlement of other controversies were emphasized by the new outburst of dissatisfaction. More than 90,000 automotive workers in Michigan remained idle because of strikes.

Gov. Frank Murphy, himself caught in a renewal of the hotel strike, in Detroit yesterday, awaited resumption today of his conferences with Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the Chrysler Corporation, and John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Or-

Roosevelt Holds Fiscal Bludgeon, Nebraskan Says at Hearing.

Billion-Dollar Bill Hinted as 'Lever'

Senate-Ostrich Analogy Denied by O'Mahoney in Hot Exchange.

By Robert C. Albright.

Blunt intimation that an imminent $1,500,000,000 relief measure may serve as a lever to aid passage of the President's judiciary program yesterday touched off a row in the Senate Judiciary Committee that continued long after the hearings had closed.

John T. Flynn, economist and writer, was on the witness stand when Senator Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, put a match to the fuse.

"I was told within the last two hours by a person with a good deal of authority that within the next ten days a relief bill for $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 will be sent to the Capitol," said Burke, a leading opponent of the court plan.

O'Mahoney Snaps Back.

"This man said to me, 'Do you realize that with a relief bill carrying that much money coming up you are fighting a losing fight—when you try to defeat one who has that much money in his control?'"

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, "noncommittal" on the court bill, interrupted the Nebraskan with a sharp expression of "resentment."

"Appropriations are made by this Congress from a deep-seated conviction there is a need to be served," snapped O'Mahoney. "I think there is no Senator or Congressman who feels he is being driven along by a desire to get patronage for his district."

Keeps Source Secret.

There was a lively exchange as Burke stuck to his statement but declined to disclose the source of his information.

"I completely resent that sort of statement," O'Mahoney continued. "Members of this Congress rate as high as any other class of people and they are going to vote their own convictions."

Burke shot back that he "didn't propose to be deterred by the Senator from Wyoming from bringing out into the open every influence that is being brought to bear in this matter." He said "members of this committee and this Senate shouldn't emulate the ostrich by putting their heads in the sand and not recognizing facts."

Cites General Talk.

Burke professed a high regard for the President, and said he believed Senators voted their convictions, "but nevertheless we must keep this thing in mind."

Then he repeated: "It is being stated publicly and generally, and was stated by a responsible official of this Government within the last two hours to me."

"If your statement is made for the purpose of influencing this Senator or any Senator, then that man's name should be made public," said O'Mahoney. "It is beneath the dignity of the Senate to give currency to such aspersions."

O'Mahoney Repeats Demand.

"It was not made for that purpose, and his name will not be made public," replied Burke.

"Then we ought not to hint at things," continued O'Mahoney. "We ought to come out with it. Who was that man?"

"I said it wasn't for the purpose of influencing anybody," said Burke.

"Then it ought not to have been stated," said O'Mahoney.

"It ought to have been stated," insisted Burke.

The scrap ended abruptly as Senator Hatch (Democrat), New Mexico, temporarily presiding, rapped his gavel loudly and smilingly suggested the argument had gone far enough.

The witness, Flynn, was drawn into the controversy at the outset, when he agreed with Burke that members of Congress might understandably be hesitant to oppose anyone who controlled so much money. O'Mahoney directed his rebuke at both Burke and Flynn.

As the hearings adjourned and reporters pressed around the witness table, O'Mahoney and Burke had another skirmish.

The Nebraskan was telling newsmen mayors and governors would feel "they would have a better

Federal Bonds Decline After Treasury Talk

Morgenthau Declares U. S. Funds Are Available to Keep Market Orderly.

By William V. Nessly.

A more rapid decline in Government bond prices yesterday followed an assertion by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that ample Government funds were available to keep the market "orderly," but that "no one has enough money to keep the market up or down."

The price drop was halted late in the market day by strong buying support attributed largely to Federal Reserve banks, though big investors, attracted by a yield of almost 3 per cent at the lower prices, were said to have resumed buying also.

The downward slide of prices before the support appeared was one of the most severe in recent years, losses running up to around $12.50 on a $1,000 face value.

Secretary Morgenthau made his statement at a press conference after being asked whether the Government support "ultimately" would affect the bond market. He replied in the negative, adding:

"We will only use the funds to keep the market orderly."

Two Billion Invested.

Mentioning the many trust accounts the Treasury keeps for various agencies he said that investments from these accounts in Government issues now exceed $2,000,000,000. In response to reports that funds in the accounts already have been largely invested, he pointed out that there is a continuing flow of cash into the trust funds.

Efforts to obtain from him, however, any estimate of the size of the accumulations in these accounts failed. Saying he would not reveal the number of "chips" available, he warned that he had supplies of them in numerous "pockets."

Then he added:

"I want to make it clear that the Treasury and the Federal Reserve, working together, have plenty of money to keep the market orderly."

His remarks were interpreted in Wall Street circles, it was said, as indicating intention to prevent wild fluctuations in prices, rather than to seek to maintain the market at any particular level.

Many Take Profits.

A substantial portion of the selling was attributed to a desire to save profits accruing from the continued rise of Government securities in recent years, while some sellers were said to be prompted by a desire to halt losses on bonds recently purchaed at higher figures. Yesterday's offerings were not so heavy as in some recent sessions, but the continued selling gradually sent quotations downward.

Below-par figures were reached by five Treasury issues and two Home Owners Loan Corporation issues which carry Government guarantees. The Treasury's 2½ per sent issue of last December went down to below $970 on a face value of $1,000 after having once been at a premium. It closed with a loss of $11.25 per $1,000 yesterday.

Transactions in Government bonds on the Stock Exchange totaled $6,620,000 for the session, compared to $4,500,000 on the previous day.

Contributory factors in the steady decline have been said to include the general uncertainty of the Government's budget position, expectations of rising interest rates and an increase in private borrowing, with banks disposing of many of their small-yield "governments."

Questioned regarding his favoring new taxes or retrenchment in Government spending in case Government revenues fall short of the budget estimates, Morgenthau said that "if there is any change from the President's budget message he is the only one authorized to announce it."

German Beer in U. S.

Berlin, April 1 (AP).—Export figures disclosed today that American beer drinkers in 1936 showed ten times more fondness for German beer than in 1934. From a low export figure of 56,126 gallons in 1934, German exports rose to 597,088 gallons two years later. The 1936 figure was approximately double that for the preceding year.

New Faces in Congress

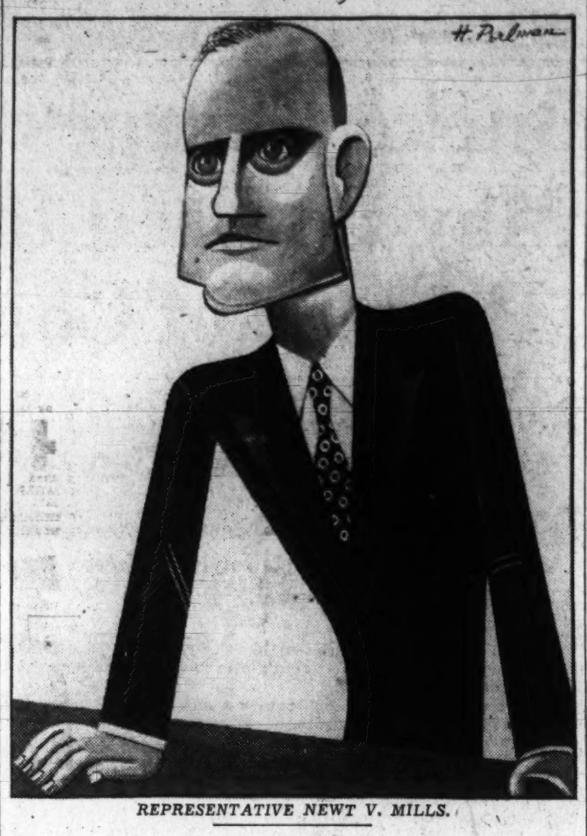
Rep. Newt Mills, of Louisiana, Backs Roosevelt, Woos Ghost



REPRESENTATIVE NEWT V. MILLS.

Huey Long's Spirit Still Pervades His State, New Congressman Feels; Musical Drawl Sheathes Edged Words With Biblical Support.

By Scott Hart.

The musical drawl that is the voice of Representative Newt V. Mills, of Louisiana, is the velvet that sheathes a dagger. And the dagger of his tongue flashes when he recalls the enemies of the late Huey P. Long, whose soul, Mills will tell you, goes marching on in Louisiana where the woodbine twineth and they're 85 per cent, at least, for a share-the-wealth plan.

Mills is a man who refers to his political enemies as "those guys" or "that gang" and with the sort of tones the Deep South loves to hear and vote for. He can call on the Bible to prop his political viewpoints and can mingle in his voice such elements of the soil itself that farmers undoubtedly would do for him what a South Carolina ruralist once said he'd do for Cole Blease: "Coley, I'd sell my very mule for you."

Was Teacher, Planter.

Let's consider the man in some detail: He was born in Ouachita Parish on September 27, 1899, and attended Louisiana State University and the State's Polytechnic Institute. His career was to burst into quicker bloom than the magnolia trees that were backdrops for his youth. Sometimes teacher, sometimes planter and then a worker in the State tax department, he early found the influence of Huey Long and then, call it coincidence if you will, he began to feel that "our district was not being properly represented in Congress."

But prior to this urge toward the public weal, he had managed in his home county, Long's unsuccessful race for the governorship in 1924. Huey was "right" on that election day, but heavy rains fell—on the just and unjust alike—and the rural people couldn't get to the polls. (Huey later straightened up this road difficulty.)

And so in those times when Louisiana politically was hot as a fritter, Mills learned the ways of politics. When he came up for election he drew a three-to-one majority over his opponent, Riley J. Wilson.

In Congress he has not fought the Administration; rather, he has supported it, and willingly. And he has found the friendship of every governmental department in Washington. But back home the soul of Huey P. Long still marches on and leaves a political wildfire in its path. The situation is simply this: The anti-Long people control the Federal patronage.

Now Mills, getting along fine with everybody up here, makes sundry recommendations that find Washington approval. But when the recommendations hit the hands of "those guys and that gang" back home they are vetoed with abruptness. Mills says he has tried to play ball with them but they won't hear of it. The only relief for the situation would be for them individually and collectively to resign—"they have refused to work in harmony with the national representatives and for the best interests of the Federal money that's being spent down there they should get out," says Mills.

Long "Humble," "Plain."

When he refers to them his voice is the dagger, but when he talks of Huey Long it's in the tones of a man who woos a ghost. "Long was the finest man who ever lived . . . He was humble in spirit . . . plain as an old shoe . . . He had a heart for the common people," he says.

And so it is an almost incredible thing that Mills comes to Washington to place his official benediction on practically all things the Administration has done. "Long realized that much of it was humanitarian," and Mills sees it as that; but he thinks, somehow, that the way out is through a share-the-wealth plan that's "bound to come sooner or later."

Away from his office, the Louisiana statesman likes fishing and hunting, boating and athletics. It may be that even in such moments his eyes grow wistful and fixed on a ghost.

Sen. Wheeler In Court Clash With Roosevelt

President Calls I. C. C. Fortunate in Liberal Interpretation of Law.

sils" who opposed the establishment of the commission and his remarks about those who now oppose enlargement of the Supreme ourt.

Cites Railway Fight.

Referring to the "selfish interests" that tried to block the creation of the commission to regulate interstate commerce, President Roosevelt said:

"The president of a great Eastern railroad declared the law would depreciate Western farm lands by one half. On the Pacific Coast another railroad magnate predicted a panic. This prophecy was re-echoed by another railroad president in the Middle West and, not to be outdone by his brother prophets of gloom,, yet another railroad executive foresaw the ruin of our foreign and domestic commerce.

"Those were the opinions of holdovers from the old 'public-be-damned' days—economic fossils which, like the poor, are always with us. Of course, none of these dire prophecies was fulfilled. On the contrary, the railroads and the country went forward to happier and more prosperous days."

Railways Unknown.

The President said that he was "reliably informed" that when the Founding Fathers drew up the Constitution they knew nothing about railroads and automobiles for the reason that they were not in existence. Concluding, he said:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission is, indeed, fortunate that interpretations of our charter of liberties have allowed it to function during the past half century, through recognition of the fact that an obviously national need can be met only through obviously national action."

Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, for 24 years a member of the House Interstate and Foreign Relations Committee and now Majority Leader, recalled how the Supreme Court, in the O'Fallon case, "struck down" the rate-making policy for railroads which Congress wrote into a law in 1920. By that decision, he said, the court forbade what Congress had in mind—the determination of how much capital is really employed by the railroads.

Praises I. C. C. Work.

Rayburn praised the work of the I. C. C. and insisted that it had never been subjected to political pressure.

"I do not believe," he said, "that anything is contemplated which would interfere with this independence of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

Representative Clarence F. Lea of California, chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, recalled that for 100 years after the drafting of the Constitution the most assertive cry was against transgression of State rights. Now, he said, there was an insistent demand for the broadening of Federal powers at the expense of State rights. Warning against the "governmental debauches" in Europe, he added:

"If the demand to expand the interstate commerce clause to include all the successive steps of commerce, all the way from production to consumption, is to be gratified and we are to adhere to the orderly processes of the Constitution, its amendment for this purpose will be required."

Commissioner Balthasar H. Meyer, a member of the I. C. C. for more than 26 years, said that in all that time he had never known an instance where political views colored the action of the commission. He introduced the other speakers.

Senator Wheeler, who is chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, was out of the city last night. In asking Senator Minton to read his speech for him, he called on a colleague who is vehemently in favor of President Roosevelt's court enlargement plan.

Roosevelt Felicitates I. C. C.

The text of President Roosevelt's letter in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the Interstate Commerce Commission:

When one takes account of the good work done by the Interstate Commerce Commission since its creation 50 years ago, one smiles at the dire predictions made by certain obviously selfish interests when the law providing for the regulation of interstate commerce was enacted.

The president of a great Eastern railroad declared the law would depreciate the Western farm lands by one-half. On the Pacific Coast another magnate predicted a panic. This prophecy was re-echoed by another railroad president in the Middle West and, not to be outdone by his brother prophets, yet another great railroad executive foresaw the ruin of our foreign and domestic commerce.

Those were the opinions of holdovers from the old "public-be-damned" days—economic fossiles which, like the poor, are always with us. Of course, none of these dire prophecies was fulfilled. On the contrary, the railroads and the country went forward to happier and more prosperous times.

The program for the semicentennial exercises of the commission is a full one, and its mere perusal shows its diversified usefulness in the 50 years during which it has been functioning. I want to congratulate the present members of the commission on the performance of duties which have fallen to them in difficult times. With singular ability and foresight they have met the problems which have confronted them. Their opportunity for constructive service is as great today as when Grover Cleveland named the first Interstate Commerce Commission in the spring of 1887.

I am reliably informed that when the founding fathers created that social, economic and political system of government which they hoped would be a permanent charter of liberties, they were wholly ignorant of the terms "railroads" and "automobiles," for the very good reason that the first did not come into existence until half a century later, and the second were not manufactured until over a century later. The Interstate Commerce Commission is, indeed, fortunate that interpretations of our charter of liberties have allowed it to function during the past half century, through recognition of the fact that an obviously national need can be met only through obviously national action.

Canadian Chief Given Welcome On Capitol Hill

Lord Tweedsmuir Talks in Senate and House; Leaves for Home.

"His Ex," as the attaches of the Canadian Embassy call Lord Tweedsmuir in informal moments, visited the Senate and the House yesterday to shake hands with some 90 Senators, about 300 Congressmen and a couple of dozen page boys.

Attired in formal day wear, the slim, sharp-nosed Scottish author who is John Buchan to the reading public and His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, governor general of Canada and King's viceroy, G. C. M. G., C. H., to the general public, strolled to the well of the Senate yesterday afternoon, shedding his royal prerogatives to charm the lawmakers with his offhand informality.

Speaks to Midshipmen.

Earlier he had told 2,200 future officers of the United States Navy at Annapolis that the English-speaking nations are the guardians of peace in the world. He told the Senate, however, that as a governor general he had no liberty to express his views. He likened himself to an old minister in the Scottish Highlands "who thought it his duty once a month to deliver a sermon on the terrors of hell," adding:

"When he sternly dangled his congregation over the abyss, being a human man, he liked to finish on a gentler note. He used to conclude thus: 'Of course, my friends, you understand that the Almighty is compelled to do things in his official capacity that he would scorn to do as a private individual.'"

In the House he made a similar talk, incidentally referring to "the charming spring weather, doubtless arranged for me by your Postmaster General." As he concluded the task of shaking hands with all the House members present he turned to the official House reporters to ask what they are called in this country.

Cannot Extend Remarks.

"In England they are called the Hanssards, after the original family that used to take down the speeches," he said. "Here, I understand, one can revise and extend one's remarks.

"We, on the other hand, can revise, but not extend, our remarks. That would be cheating."

400,000 Miners Await Strike Call

ganization. About 60,000 Chrysler employes are idle.

Coal miners were idle yesterday in celebration of John L. Lewis day, set aside to commemorate the eight-hour day in the industry.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, said they would not resume work until the Appalachian agreement, which sets the standard for other areas, was reached. The strike order already was out for 20,000 U. M. W. A. members in Illinois.

Without an agreement, the only bituminous coal production would be in those areas not controlled by the U. M. W. A., principally the Illinois mines worked by the Progressive Miners of America, who decided to continue working during negotiations.

The union's demand for time and a half pay for overtime work was reported the last obstacle to the Appalachian agreement.

The day's first interruption of work in General Motors plants affected more than 14,000 wage earners in Pontiac, Mich., and several thousands more at Flint, Mich. Union executives hastened there and urged the men to abandon the strikes in favor of negotiations as provided by the February 11 agreement.

Several hundred employes in the 21-story Book-Cadillac Hotel at Detroit stopped work. City police appeared, informed strikers the "day of the sit-down is over," and within two hours the strike ended. Gov. Murphy, in the dining room when the Book-Cadillac strike began, was denied service, and left. Negotiations over the previous strike were in progress at the time.

Trouble developed among Works Progress Administration employes at San Francisco and Oakland, Calif. Some ceased work in a move apparently designed to call about 30,000 WPA workers in the San Francisco Bay area from their tasks. It threatened to reach State-wide proportions. A conference to that end was scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Oakland.

Rider Banning Coal Sit-Downs Throws Senate Into Confusion

from such producer to leave such property, provided this paragraph shall not apply to property occupied as a dwelling."

Proposal Stunning

The effect of the amendment would be to outlaw sit-downs in the coal industry. Its introduction by Byrnes, a close friend of the President, at first stunned the Administration men.

At once Senator Mathew M. Neely (Democrat), Fest Virginia, who is shepherding the bill toward passage, demanded, "What does this amendment mean?"

Byrnes said: "Exactly what it says."

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, asked: "Is this an attack on sit-down strikes?"

Byrnes answered that it was.

Senators Joseph F. Guffey, Pennsylvania; Sherman Minton, Indiana, and Alben Barkley, Kentucky, all Democrats, immediately jumped to their feet to object to the amendment as "class legislation, applying only to one class of workers," as tending to "throw miners immediately off mine property," and as too hastily drawn.

Illegality Hinted.

The majority leader, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, had been thinking over the amendment, head in hands, grinding an unlighted cigar in his teeth. At last he rose to state his position, saying:

"I do not approve of sit-down strikes, but this does not seem to me to be a legal method of enforcing the demands of labor. This amendment has not been considered in committee. It would be unenforceable by Federal authority.

"Further, miners living on company property would be forced to vacate their homes, with their wives and children, perhaps in the middle of the night, perhaps in a storm and take to the highway."

Wiping away a mock tear at this grim picture, Byrnes then amended his amendment "to get the miners off the highway" by providing that the law would not apply to dwellings.

Borah Hits Amendment.

Senator Borah then stated: "If the real purpose of this amendment is to condemn sit-down strikes, I am not going to vote for it. I will not vote to condemn them until I have in hand all the facts, economic and moral."

Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, entered the debate, vigorously asserting it is "the imperative duty of the President" to intervene in sit-down strikes.

He quoted Section 5299 of the Revised Statutes to the effect that "Whenever insurrection, violence, or conspiracy, etc." seem to threaten the national welfare "it shall be lawful for the President and it shall be his duty" to take military measures to secure peace. On this basis he argued that the President must interfere.

Asks End of Doubt.

He demanded that all doubt about the amendment's application to sit-downs be cleared up, so that "we can find out what Senators want to vote for sit-down strikes." He baited the Administration men for their unwillingness to interfere, and finally whispered scornfully but hoarsely, his voice gone:

"Why, we'd let 50 or 100 or 1,000 men come in here and sit down and we wouldn't even declare a policy against it!"

Then Senator Vandenberg stood up, to wave overhead a handbill distributed in Detroit by the Committee for Industrial Organization, which said, "A message to you from the President," with other printing, saying, "The President wants you to join the union."

The gray-haired Michigan man, alternately roaring and growling, pleaded with the Senate not to confront "an amendment which is going to be interpreted as condemning sit-down strikes, or which, if defeated, will be interpreted as registering the Senate's approval of sit-down strikes, without a considerable discussion of what is involved."

Misunderstanding Seen.

Vandenberg specifically exempted the President from any charges that he might "condone sit-downs," but reiterated that the continued silence of the White House lent itself to misunderstanding.

Shortly after Vandenberg concluded, Robinson moved a recess until noon today on the grounds it was obvious an agreement could not be reached at the time.

Byrnes told reporters he would press his amendment all the way today and insisted that "It is as strong or as weak as the declaration for collective bargaining is in the bill." This provision is part of the bill's declaration of policy, under which labor is guaranteed the right of collective bargaining under various penalties for nonobservance.

Giant Airliner Is Held Up by 40-Mile Wind

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, April 1.—American Airlines' 21-passenger Douglas airplane arrived here last night after a 4 hour and 59 minute inaugural flight from Washington. The plane in which it was hoped to establish a commercial nonstop record between the two cities bucked a 40-mile-an-hour head wind and was unable to break the mark.

The luxury plane left Washington at 5:42 p. m., with newspaper men, American Airline executives and representatives of other air lines on board, inaugurating regular nonstop service between the Capital and the Midwestern city.

The giant plane cruises at speeds well over 200 miles an hour, and is the largest and fastest land plane in commercial use. Carrying 21 passengers and crew of three, it is powered by two Wright Cyclone 1,000-horsepower motors, and carries enough fuel for a 1,300-mile nonstop flight.

Passengers aboard the sky giant were C. R. Smith, president, and Herbert D. Ford, District sales manager of American Airlines; Tom Stevens and R. C. Whitehead, of the Washington Herald; Bob Devore, Lou Herschell and Jim McConnaughey, of The Washington Post; J. R. Golden, Vesta Cummings and Ben Pearse, of the Evening Star; Rodney Ridgeway, of The Washington Times; Max Wolfe, of the Washington Daily News; Avery McBee, of the Baltimore Sun; C. Kenneth Banghart, of Thomas Cook & Sons, and Arthur Godfrey, of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

British Embassy Stoned.

Warsaw, April 1 (AP).—A rock, thrown over a garden fence from a distance of 100 feet, smashed a window of the British Embassy today and landed on the dining room carpet. It was wrapped in a paper on which were written charges that the British in Palestine had authorized the killing of Jews.

Maryland Mother of 9 Slain; Son Finds Her Body in Woods

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, April 1.—A killer dragged Mrs. Mary Gunther, 55, mother of nine children, from her automobile and left her dead today a short distance from her home.

Two colored men, heavily guarded against mob attacks, were questioned in connection with the killing. A little later an emergency police car rushed one, a 22-year-old man, to Baltimore jail under a guard of six officers.

Mrs. Gunther was found beaten, slashed and gagged shortly after she drove her husband, Herman, to his work as master shipwright at the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Depot.

Her son, Walter, working on the Gunthers' truck farm in Anne Arundel County just over the Baltimore City line, became worried when his mother did not return from her automobile trip. He searched for her between the farm and the store of John Sidel, but failed to find her.

Meanwhile, another son, William, 28, started to walk from home nearby to his parents' home, intending to borrow their automobile. On the way he saw the car, one wheel in a ditch, in a narrow lane leading to the farm.

Alarmed, he began a search and found his mother's body in a clump of scrub pines, about 300 feet from the edge of the woods. Her coat was wrapped around her head and when he unwrapped it he saw she had been beaten. Her throat was gashed and her body scratched. Her clothes were torn. A workman's cheap glove had been stuffed in her mouth, as a rough gag. Her pocketbook, which had contained $20, was found a few feet away, empty.

William called police and told them his mother had been murdered.

Meanwhile, two miles away, a policeman driving along the road saw a colored man he had arrested previously on various charges. Later, when he learned of the murder, the policeman took the man to the scene of the murder for questioning.

They placed the blanket-wrapped body of the woman in the wagon, at the feet of the man. For an hour he sat above it, impassive, before he was taken to the police station.

Judiciary Reform Opposed by Group

A resolution opposing the President's court proposal has been adopted by the Wheel of Progress. The organization voted on the resolution after it had heard the plan debated by two members of the Junior Bar Association.

In another resolution, aimed at communism, the group urged that all aliens illegally in the country and any who have been found guilty of spreading seditious propaganda be deported, and opposed admission of Hawaii and Puerto Rico as States because the citizens thereof are unassimilable aliens whose educational influences, political viewpoint and standards of living are widely divergent from that of the United States."

The Wheel of Progress devoted another resolution to reiterating its stand against the red rider and approving the McCormack amendment which would permit the teaching of facts about communism.

Relief Measure Hinted as Lever On Court Plan

Burke Charges Roosevelt With Fiscal Bludgeon; O'Mahoney Hits Back.

chance to get what they want if their members in Congress 'go along'."

"They are all interested in getting as much for their communities as they can, and we may as well face it," he said.

O'Mahoney interrupted to say he "had more faith in governors and mayors than you do."

O'Mahoney Denies Charge.

"Oh, you can put your head in the sand if you want to," Burke retaliated.

"Those people are no more for sale than you are," O'Mahoney came back. "You don't honestly believe there is any governor or mayor who is going to be influenced."

"I certainly do," said Burke. "There are a lot of governors and mayors who have their minds fixed on getting these funds. If their Senators have real convictions, of course they won't try to change them, but if they haven't, it could be suggested it would help for them to 'go along'."

Burke added he didn't "think any Senators will be influenced by it."

Bates, Flynn Testify.

The relief controversy followed a full day of testimony by Dean Henry M. Bates, of the Michigan University Law School, and Flynn. Today Walter H. Dodd, Chicago attorney, and Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of the Washington Episcopal cathedral, will testify against the plan.

Dean Bates, who testified to his fear passage of the court plan ultimately might endanger human rights, was law instructor of two members of the committee holding opposite views.

Chairman Ashurst disclosed that both himself and Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, liberal opponent of the plan, studied under Bates in 1903.

"And he marked me down many times for being unprepared," Ashurst laughed.

The Michigan law dean denied the court plan was "liberal and progressive." He called it "retrogressive and reactionary."

He said that "when one considers what the future may bring forth in a country like this, I, at least, cannot doubt that human rights, so-called, would be ultimately endangered by the impairment of the independence of the court."

Questioned by Logan.

Like several previous witnesses, Bates testified that the plan would move "toward a theory of government triumphant in part of Europe at the present time."

The law dean was closely questioned by Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, who said he did "not like the plan and I have said so repeatedly, but unless something may be done quickly to stabilize economic conditions and relieve large parts of our population," we face a cataclysm similar to those which have occurred in Europe.

Bates replied he thought there was "no immediate crisis."

"Well, it looks pretty dangerous to me," said Logan.

Denies Analogy.

The Kentuckian asked Bates if he were trying a case before a jury he knew was against him, and he had authority to add additional jurors, would he use that authority.

Bates said he saw no analogy, and Logan asked him if he thought it unethical for the President to ask an enlarged court.

"I think it not unethical," said Bates, "but I think it would be dangerous. It would change our form of government."

Logan asked him why he thought it dangerous.

"Because it is a proposal not to follow normal existing procedure," said Bates. "I can't see where it would end."

Flynn said he opposed the court plan, because he feared under it NRA and the principle of "self-rule" in business might be revived.

"If they ever succeed in this, you can kiss democracy good-by in America," he declared.

He said the Nation's economic life "must be brought under control" but the representatives of the people should do the controlling. The President's plan, he said, would end all legal restraints on the power of Congress and fabricate "a powerful weapon ready to the hand of the first dangerous man that steps into the Presidency in a time of disorder."

State Groups May Gather Here To Talk Minimum Wage Laws

A conference of State representatives here to discuss minimum wage legislation arose as a possibility last night after the Labor Department's Minimum Wage Committee, created several months ago, was summoned to a meeting on April 8.

As a result of the Supreme Court's decision Monday validating the Washington State minimum wage law for women, similar laws of eight States and the District of Columbia were said to have been legally revived. Miss Louise Stitt, supervisor of the minimum wage division of the Labor Department said the eight States had been notified that the department's committee would begin a study of the question Thursday.

In connection with the question of a model law there is being studied also President Roosevelt's expressed opinion that minimum wage laws should apply to men and children as well as to women.

Gerard D. Reilly is chairman of the minimum wage committee as well as acting solicitor of the Labor Department.

Meanwhile, labor circles here were perusing a statement issued by a committee of Remington Rand, Inc., employes in which they vehemently replied to charges leveled at the concern in a recent ruling by the National Labor Relations Board. The committee said it was appointed by Remington Rand Employes Association to study and reply to the Labor Board's criticisms of their employer.

The report said that "local, State and National Government officials, upon whom pressure was brought to apply an unjust boycott (of the company's products), are influenced by false and malicious published statements made by a small number of disgruntled former employes and testimony of union organizers and leaders who tried to win a senseless minority strike by violence and failed."

In reply to the Labor Board's charges of "unfair labor practice" and "medieval ruthlessness" in its employment relations, the committee pointed to the "excellent relations which exist between the company and the 11,400 employes now working voluntarily in the American plants, 2,000 more than before the strike."

It said the board's charges were shown to be unfounded by "the fairness of our collective bargaining agreements, provisions for prompt handing of grievances, * * * our 40-hour week with time and one-half for overtime, our vacations with pay, our group insurance and stock ownership privileges, the many favorable adjustments in piece rates and the wage increases which we have negotiated without strike threats or discord, and the co-operative spirit now existing among us."

Trees Planted In Memory of Dr. A. T. Still

Park Ceremony Held by Osteopathic Women's Association.

Seven trees—one for each of the seven articles of the Constitution—were planted yesterday in East Potomac Park by the Osteopathic Women's National Association in memory of Dr. Andrew Taylor Still, founder of osteopathy. It was the first ceremony in honor of the celebration of the Sesquicentennial of the Constitution in the United States and several hundred persons gathered along the north drive of Hains Point to witness the event.

The seven trees, dedicated while the Marine Band played Oscar Rasbach's composition, "Trees," were filled in by soil brought here from Jonesville, Va., the birthplace of Dr. Still, and from Kirksville, Mo., where he lived, worked and laid the foundation for the science of osteopathy.

Speakers included Dr. Mary E. Golden, national president; Representative Ira W. Drew, of Philadelphia, and Allen Murray, of the division of special events of the sesquicentennial commission. The Rev. W. L. Darby, secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, delivered the invocation, Dr. Lulu Irene Waters, of Washington, presided.

The local committee in charge of arrangements included besides Dr. Waters, who is chairman, Mrs. Thomas J. Howerton, Dr. Grace McMains and Mrs. Chester D. Swope. A luncheon later was given in honor of the national president.

New York Crowd Rushes Jurors After Verdict

New York, April 1 (AP).—More than 100 men and women forced a Kings County jury to retreat into the courthouse last night after it had convicted two men of robbery. Police dispersed the crowd.

As the jurors left the building the crowd pressed forward, shouting "Here they come now, the rats!" and "Let's get them!" The convicted men were Joseph Pepe, 22, and Anthony Ricardi, 25, indicted as two of four gunmen

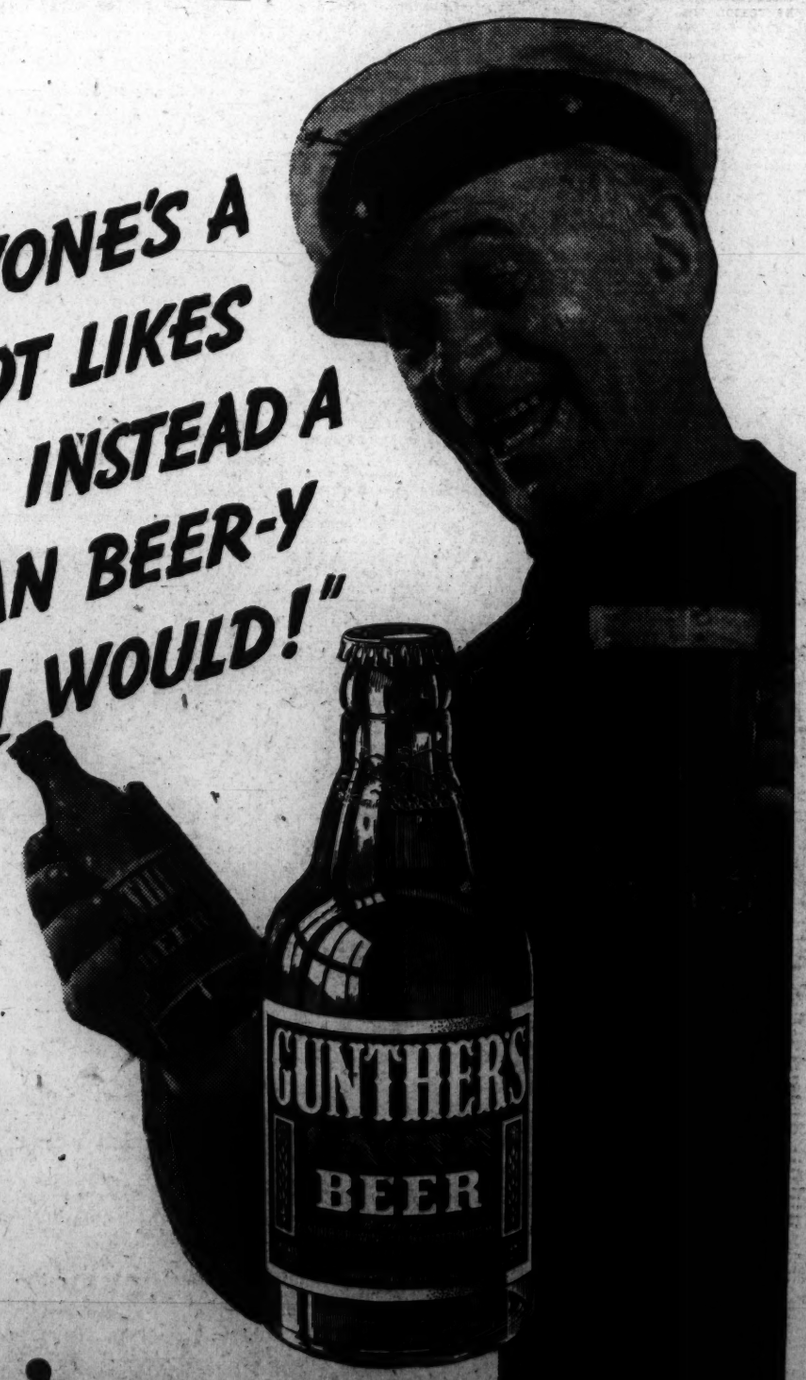
"AN' WOT D'YER MEAN I'M A PANTY-WAIST?"

"I'M SAYIN ENYONE'S A PANTY-WAIST WOT LIKES 'IS BEER SWEET INSTEAD A 'AVIN IT DRY AN BEER-Y LIKE A MAN WOULD!"



A REAL beer drinker doesn't like to see his pal still drinking the sweeter type of beer that became popular during the days of "home-brew" and "near-beer."

And you'll hear plenty of kidding going on. The real beer drinker, in the picture here, just wants his Cockney friend to know how beer should actually taste: Not sweet, but dry and beer-y!

That's why Gunther's is the biggest selling beer in this part of the country. It's the beer-i-est type of beer made. Much like the famous Bohemian and Bavarian beers! And beer drinkers don't like any other kind!

Light in body, rather than heavy, you'll find you never tire of its taste. Refreshing and completely satisfying, it's the type of beer that doesn't "fill-you-up."

Try Gunther's yourself. Once you learn to know its tangy, zestful flavor, you'll never be satisfied with any other!

Order a case now, and have some tonight.

Anti-Lynching Bill Indorsed by Judiciary Unit

House Committee Reports Mitchell Measure to Penalize Violence.

By Russell Smith.

First favorable action in Congress on antilynching legislation in 15 years was taken yesterday by the House Judiciary Committee when it voted 8 to 7 to report the Mitchell bill making it a Federal offense for an officer to deliver a prisoner to a mob and providing civil damages of up to $10,000 for the victim's family, the county where officers are blameable being liable.

A House vote is expected within ten days. The report on the bill was preceded by a pretty fight behind closed portals, members of the Judiciary Committee told The Post.

Many committee members were aroused by action of Representative Gavagan (Democrat), of New York, in obtaining the requisite 216 signatures on a petition to discharge the committee from consideration of his anti-lynching bill and bring it before the House.

This petition was believed by many to have forced the hand of the committee, the chairman of which, Representative Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, opposes any Federal legislation on the subject. Members of the committee indignantly denied this imputation last night, asserting hearings of the committee, just ended, had been set prior to completion of the petition signatures.

In another House committee chamber, that of the powerful Rules Committee, another potential headline producer was pushed forward when the Dickstein resolution for a congressional inquiry into alleged propaganda against the American form of government was approved. An early House vote on this bill also is expected.

The anti-lynching bill indorsed yesterday is weaker by far than the Gavagan bill. The former is the work of Representative Mitchell (Democrat), Tennessee, who was in charge of the extensive two-day hearing just concluded. These were two of 59 such bills the committee had before it yesterday when it voted out the Mitchell bill.

This measure omits the Gavagan and other bill provisions which have made a lynching prima facie evidence of dereliction of duty on the part of a county, officers of which were involved. All such provisions attempting to extend a blanket accusation were rejected by the committee, a majority of which doubted the constitutionality of this type of statute. Many also doubted its wisdom.

While the signature by 216 members of the Gavagan bill petition indicates great strength for any anti-lynching bill, this does not necessarily indicate passage, as members frequently sign petitions merely on the ground they think proponents deserve to have a measure brought to vote.

Thus the path of the legislation remains rough, for in the Senate sentiment is much less developed and faces more potent opposition, for the reason that it can invoke filibusters, as it has in the past, to block a vote. Past battles of Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, and former Senator Costigan (Democrat), of Colorado, however, may have smothed the way to some extent.

The House debate is sure to echo the Judiciary Committee fight, in which rankled jealousy of the committee over "outside" sponsorship of the bill, anger at charges of deliberate delay and bitter minority sentiment against any lynching bill.

The foray of Representative Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, against the Nazi menace in the United States will be his second, if, as is expected, his resolution is adopted by the House and he is made chairman of the special committee to investigate spreading and financing of propaganda directed against the Government.

The previous expedition got under way in June, 1934, and resulted in volumes of testimony about Silver Shirt and related organizations, but in little else.

arrests will be made," said Inspector Holmes. "There still is plenty of room to enforce laws without resorting to harassment or persecution. I dare say that there are numerous precinct policemen who never have made a traffic arrest."

And possibilities of a general reorganization of the entire police traffic setup were seen yesterday when the new supervisor conferred at length with Capt. Milton D. Smith, traffic division commander.

Within the next few days, Inspector Holmes plans to meet with Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown and traffic commanders to map definite action against highway lawlessness.

Maj. Brown said the new traffic supervisor would have "a free rein."

"Whatever is done will have my support," Maj. Brown declared. "It is up to Inspector Holmes to do whatever he sees fit. The traffic problem is one of our greatest concerns and we will continue strong efforts to seek a remedy."

And as plans for the renewed battle against a rising death toll got under way last night, four young women were injured seriously when an automobile ran from Military road northwest and knocked down three concrete guard rails and a telegraph pole.

The driver of the car, identified by police as Wilson M. Barnes, 23, of the 5400 block of Thirty-ninth street northwest, was charged with driving while intoxicated. Police said the auto careened at high speed into the protecting guard rails.

Those injured were Mary Harry, 19, of 4901 Howard street northwest, severe lacerations and shock; Ethel Wagner, 30, of 4015 Fessenden street northwest, cuts on the head and face; Gertrude Cochran, 23, of 4015 Fessenden street northwest, shock and bruises, and Rosalie Straunderman, 25, of 5109 Forty-fifth street northwest.

Man Near Death.

Louis Costello, 50, of 487 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was near death in Casualty Hospital last night after he was struck by an automobile driven by Eldridge T. Hawkins, 48, of the first block of S street southwest, at Prout street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Physicians said his chest was crushed, one lung punctured and both legs fractured. The driver was not held.

Three-year-old Lorraine Ballinger, of 4012 Kansas avenue northwest, suffered fractures of both her legs and possible internal injuries when she was struck by an automobile in front of her home late yestreday.

Permit suspensions and revocations against the following motorists were ordered yesterday by the Board of Review and Revocation of Operators Permits:

Rafael Martinez, 1307 Park road northwest, suspended; James A. Palmer, 2533 D street northwest, revoked; Katie W. Presgraves, 1215 Fourth street northwest, revoked; Robert Welch, 419 U street northwest, revoked; Roy O. Conner, 530 Somerset place northwest, suspended; James Dungan, 1130 Fifth street northwest, suspended.

Virginia Firm Is Low Bidder On Huge Liner

$15,000,000 Ship for U. S. Lines to Take Place of Leviathan.

By the Associated Press.

The Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. submitted yesterday the low bids for construction of a proposed cabin liner for the United States Line Co., of New York. The new vessel would replace the decommissioned Leviathan.

Bidding on alternate designs, the company offered to build a larger vessel, known as "K design," for $15,455,000 and a smaller vessel for $14,375,000.

New York, April 1 (AP).—United States Line officials said today a new transatlantic liner, for which bids were published in Washington today, will aim to be a "year-around money maker."

Although the ship will be 8,000 tons larger than any now representing this country in the service, the line officials said it is expected to prove profitable to operate through the dull winter season.

Line officials pointed out the United States is steering clear of the monster ship blue ribbon contest in which Britain, France, Germany and Italy are competing with ships ranging from about 50,000 to 80,000 tons. This became the settled American policy before the Manhattan was built in 1932, owing to the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the operation of the Leviathan.

Line officials said the new ship will go into operation about 28 months after the building award is made by the new Maritime Commission. The commission, the Navy Department, which has authority because of the enrollment of merchantmen as naval auxiliary ships, and the line officials first must agree on one of two designs.

Reorganization Study Fund Asked by Byrd

By the Associated Press.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Virginia Democrat, asked the Senate yesterday for $25,000 to continue the work of his special committee studying reorganization of the executive departments of the Government.

Subsequent creation of the Byrd committee, standing committees were created in each House to study the same subject, acting together as a joint committee.

9. Imposition of the maintenance of the department of vehicles, traffic and the trees and parking office, and assessment and permit work on the gasoline tax.

10. Authorization for the U. S. Treasurer to invest $750,000 in water fund surplus in U. S. securities.

11. Ban on allocation of District positions where the salary exceeds $2,000.

12. Rider barring school teachers from doing clerical of stenographic work outside the classroom.

Collins, although issuing a formal statement minimizing the threat of revolt, intimated that he would fight to defend his bill in every particular. He plans to deliver a lengthy address in the House, before the bill is read under the five-minute rule.

'Usurpation' Charged.

The inter-committee battle was forecast yesterday in the House as three members of the District Committee took the floor to criticize what they called the "usurpation of authority" by the Collins sub-committee.

Prefacing their criticism with personal praise for Collins and a general indorsement of the aims of many of the "legislative" riders, the District Committee members complained that such decisions should be left to them and that they already have a subcommittee at work on the problems involved.

The speeches were made by Mrs. Norton, Nichols, and Representative Brewster (Republican), of Maine. Representatives Ellenbogen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, assailed a provision eliminating the District government payment to the local unemployment compensation fund, while Representative Amlie (Progressive), of Wisconsin, made a plea for an appropriation for care for destitute employables.

Although Collins granted the time on the Democratic side and Representative Engle (Republican), of Michigan, the only minority member of the sub-committee, had charge of Republican time, neither attempted to defend the District bill.

Canadian Visits House.

Interspersed among the District Committee speakers were heated arguments on sit-down strikes and a visit from the Governor General of Canada.

Nichols stated last night that he would not support all of the 12 points of order considered by the committee and that he might raise objections to other provisions. He said he thought some of the issues raised by the committee are "ridiculous."

All of the District Committee speakers placed emphasis on the allegation of "usurpation of power" in their remarks on the floor.

While complaining that the District Committee assignment is not very desirable, Nichols said that, nevertheless, the committee is "jealous of its privilege of legislating for the District."

"Many provisions of the bill are splendid," he added, "even those to which points of order will be raised. We do object to having the appropriation sub-committee usurping power that rightly belongs to us."

Bill Increasing Gas Tax Here Assailed

The bills introduced by Representative Ross Collins, of Mississippi, to increase the District's gasoline tax from 2 to 4 cents and to increase motor vehicle fees were called "dishonest, unfair and illegal" last night by J. V. Curley, of the executive committee of the District of Columbia Petroleum Association.

Addressing the District of Columbia Trucking Association, Curley said the bills would cost owners of motor vehicles an additional $3,150,000 a year. That, he said, was an "injury." Added to it, he said, was an "insult"—the money would not be used for highway purposes.

Curley pointed out that this was at direct variance with the policy of the Federal Government.

"The present Hayden-Cartwright law, through which the States receive their Federal highway aid, penalizes States that do exactly what the Federal Government is now being asked to sanction for its own closely controlled District," he said.

D.C. Supply Bill Riders Arouse Hectic Debate

21 Proposals to Reform Municipal Rule Bring Controversies.

The 1938 District supply bill now before the House has aroused a storm of controversy, principally because of its 21 legislative riders which provide for sweeping municipal reforms. How were these changes decided upon? What do they mean? Whom do they affect? Why were appropriations for some agencies increased and others decreased? Following is the second of a series of articles dealing with these vital and interesting questions.

By Gerald G. Gross.

Chairman Ross A. Collins of the House sub-committee on District appropriations is proud of the public health setup in his home town of Meridian, Miss.

Examining comparative figures, he discovered that Washington can be depended upon, year in and year out, to outstrip other cities in the proportionate number of tuberculosis, pneumonia and venereal disease cases and deaths, also infant mortality.

He questioned Health Officer George C. Ruhland on these indisputable facts, obtained the opinions of several "off the record" witnesses and solicited information from municipal heads of New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston and other cities.

Key Figures Silent.

The result is one of the most controversial features in the bill as reported to the House. It is the rider which strips the Board of Public Welfare of control of Gallinger Hospital and the adult and children's tuberculosis sanatoria at Glenn Dale, Md., and places them in the Health Department's lap.

The key figures in the disputed development, in which the Capital's hundreds of practicing physicians and surgeons are particularly interested, have not expressed themselves publicly on the matter, save in the "on the record" hearings before Collins' committee. They are Health Officer Ruhland and Elwood Street, director of public welfare.

"I have written quite a number of letters to the heads of municipalities throughout the United States," Collins told Dr. Ruhland, "to find out whether the hospitals were under the health department or whether they were under the public welfare department or some other outfit. In most cases I found they were under the health department.

"It seems to me, since they deal with the health of individuals, they should at least be under the supervision of the health department. It would probably be a controversial subject.

"If they are placed under your charge, you will undertake to run them economically and efficiently, will you not?"

Dr. Ruhland: "Obviously, I should regard that as an official responsibility. I will say that I have in other cities had the responsibility for some hospitals."

Washington's "mayor" from Mississippi went into the subject more extensively when he had Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger, before him. Asked what he thought of the idea of the shift, Dr. Bocock praised the law setting up the Board of Public Welfare, quoted figures tending to show few health departments run hospitals and otherwise argued for the status quo.

To put the hospitals under the health department, said Dr. Bocock, would be like allowing the Police Department to operate the penal institutions.

Replied Collins:

"I do not believe that would be such a bad thing. That is a new idea. I imagine the Police Department could operate the penal institutions."

(Note—The bill, however, does not effect this change.)

Senate Group Joins Conflict Over Tax Bill

King and Capper Favor Limiting Levies to Meet Deficit.

The Collins District tax measure appeared headed for serious trouble yesterday as members of the Senate District Committee indicated opposition to some of them and as the breach widened between the House District Committee and the House sub-committee on District Appropriations.

Chairman King of the Senate District Committee and Senator Capper, of Kansas, ranking Republican member, expressed the belief that Congress should not enact any more tax measures than are necessary to meet the District's anticipated deficit for the next fiscal year.

The deficit in the supply bill reported to the House is slightly in excess of $6,000,000, whereas the nine Collins tax measures are expected to produce approximately $12,000,000 in additoinal revenue.

It was the Senate District Committee, then headed by Senator Capper, that killed the four Mapes tax bills seven years ago after they had passed the House. Four of these bills were reintroduced by Representative Collins.

The income and inheritance tax bills were received more favorably by the two Senators than were the proposed increased levies on motorists. In fact, Senator King has long advocated passage of both tax measures.

Senator King was skeptical, however, of the proposed doubling of the gasoline tax and the substitution of a motor vehicle weight tax for the personal property levy.

Representative Collins was quick, however, to call attention to an inaccurate report current yesterday that the scale of taxes on private automobile would produce such taxes as $35 on one of the lowest priced cars.

The calculation, he said, had been made mistakenly on the scale for commercial motor vehicles. The proposed tax on private autos, he said, is but 35 cents on 100 pounds. Instead of $35, he pointed out, a weight tax of 35 cents for 100 pounds on a small car of 2,500 pounds would be but $8.75.

The tax would fall most heavily upon old and heavy cars which now constitute a menace to traffic. He predicted that some 40,000 of these obsolete autos would be driven off the streets by the passage of the motor vehicle weight tax.

Economist Urges Higher Pay for Married Men

Lubbock, Tex., April 1 (AP).—Dr. Paul Popenoe, Los Angeles sociologist, criticized here tonight the existing system of paying bachelors and married men the same wage scale as "economically unfair, socially unjust and eugenically unsound."

Addressing Texas technological college students, he proposed a basic wage for all jobs, with an additional allowance "of say, 20 per cent for a wife and 15 per cent for each dependent child."

Mrs. B. Y. Platt Leaves Estate of $155,072

An estate of $$155,072.21 was left by Mrs. Beatrice Yakel Platt when she died December 10, it was learned in District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of her will was filed.

The will directed that the National Metropolitan Bank, as executir, hold the entire estate in trust for the life benefit of a daughter, Jane Esther Platt, of 200 West Kirk street, Chevy Chase. Upon her death the estate is to be disbursed to other relatives.

W. B. Newman Is Dead at 71; Retired in 1931

Former Member of Tax Appeal Board Served U. S. 44 Years.

William B. Newman, for 44 years in the Government service, died yesterday at his home, 732 Whittier street northwest. He was 71.

Born in Grove Hill, Ala., in 1866, Newman was graduated from Washington and Lee University with the degree of bachelor of science in law.

Immediately thereafter he entered the practice of law in Talledega, Ala., and in 1893 he came to Washington as an attorney in the General Land Office.

A member of the Board of Tax Appeals when he retired in 1931, he was known as one of the oldest of the Department of Interior's legal staff.

Descended from a family resident in Virginia since revolutionary days, Newman had, lately, engaged in geneological research.

Surviving him are his wife Mrs. Sarah E. Newman whom he married in Franklin, Tex., in 1888; a son Capt. J. B. Newman of the Engineer Corps, U. S. A.; a daughter, Mrs. S. M. Corbett of Panama, Canal Zone, and a stepson, Dr. Clifford E. Waller, assistant surgeon general, United States Public Health Service.

Mrs. Mary Rice, 77, Funeral Is Today

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at her home, 1443 Chapin street, for Mrs. Mary Stickney Rice, 77, who died Wednesday after a protracted illness.

Mrs. Rice, who was the widow of A. Mellen Rice, Union Army veteran, was the daughter of Francis H. Stickney, for more than 40 years disbursing clerk of the Navy Department. After living in Massachusetts until 1918, she came here to live with her brothers and sisters. She was a member of Calvary Baptist Church.

Surviving are a son, Paul Stickney Rice, Rochester, N. Y.; a daughter, Mrs. Roy H. Bolster, Los Angeles; two sisters, Miss Katherine Stickney and Miss Rosamond Stickney, and two brothers, Frank L. and Bryan H. Stickney. The sisters and brothers live at the Chapin street address. Interment will be at Chelsea, Mass.

Funeral Service For Gen. Gaston Set for Today

Burial to Take Place at Arlington; Served in Army 40 Years.

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Gaston, United States Army, retired, 61, who died here Wednesday, will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel, with Chaplain Ora J. Cohee officiating. Interement will be in Arlington Cemtery.

Gen. Gaston is survived by his wife, Mrs. Joseph A. Gaston, of 2122 California street northwest.

Gen. Gaston was a native of Honey Brook, Chester County, Pa., where he was born September 2, 1856. He entered West Point in 1877, and was commissioned a second lieutenant of Cavalry upon graduation. During his nearly 40 years of service, he served at stations throughout the United States, Cuba and in the Philippine Islands.

He was with the punitive expedition in Mexico from 1916 to 1917, and then served in the rank of brigadier general in the National Army. He commanded the depot brigade at Camp Travis, San Antonio, Tex., and later the Ninetieth Division. At Chickamauga Park, Ga., he commanded the Eleventh Brigade, Sixth Division, later serving at Montgomery, Ala., and Petersburg, Va. Previous to his retirement, he was camp commander and later executive officer at Camp Meade, Md.

He was retired in 1920, and ten years later promoted to the rank of brigadier general, retired. He was a graduate of the Army War College here in 1912.

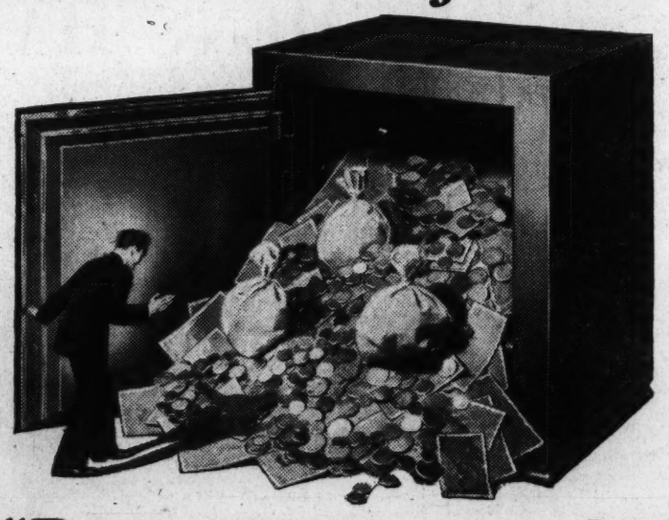
It costs over half a million more to make



THERE ARE a number of steps we take in making Four Roses that we could save money on. In fact, by switching to other methods we could save over half a million dollars a year.

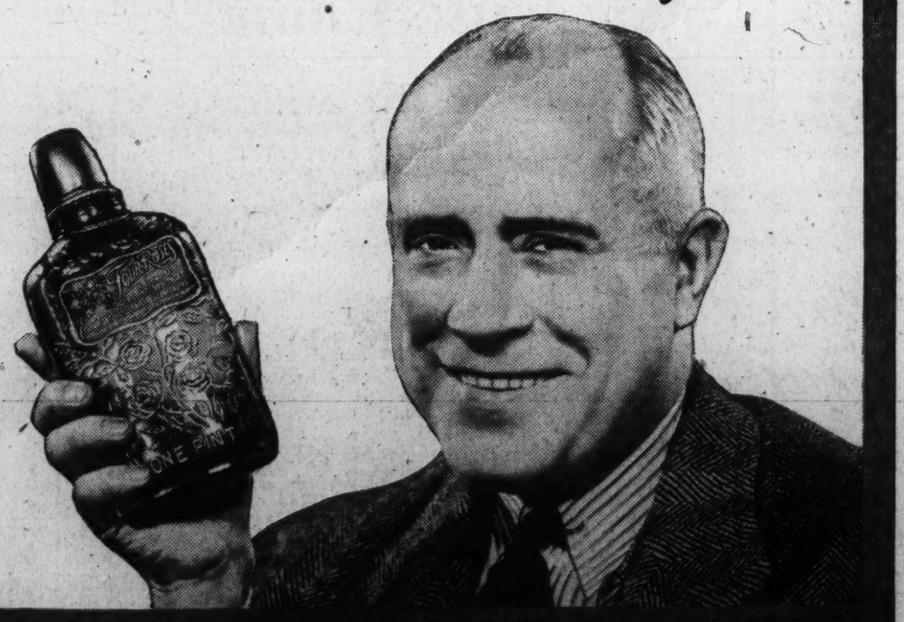
Why don't we?...Simply because it's only by making Four Roses precisely the way we do that we can achieve its glorious all-round quality.

Briefly, here's our method: We select several straight whiskies. And what royal whiskies they are! Each is distilled the matchless—but costly—old-fashioned way. Each is truly distinguished for some special virtue—aroma, body, smoothness or flavor.

Then, with the skill our 72 years have taught us, we blend these whiskies (and only straight whiskies!) together. We unite them in a way that merges all their virtues into one liquor of rare magnificence. And that's Four Roses.

"But it costs me so little more to buy!"

"One taste of Four Roses and I knew I'd found the whiskey with everything I wanted. I almost hated to ask the price, but—happy days! It costs only a quarter more a pint than the brand of whiskey I used to buy!"



FOUR ROSES
A blend of straight whiskies—94 proof
We Believe Four Roses Is America's Finest Whiskey, Regardless of Age or Price

Frankfort Distilleries, Inc., Louisville and Baltimore, also make Paul Jones (92 proof), Old Oscar Pepper brand, and Mattingly & Moore (both 90 proof)—all blends of straight whiskies.

'Assistant God' Eludes Search; 'Throne' Found

$25,000 Coach Spurs U. S. Agents in Fantastic Seduction Case.

Los Angeles, April 1 (AP).—Flabbergasted Federal officers ran across a $25,000 "throne car" today in their search for John Hunt, 33-year-old West Coast leader of the Father Divine movement, on Mann Act charges.

The huge chariot was under construction at a Pasadena coach works, apparently for the joint use of Hunt, alias "St. John, the Revelator," alias "Jesus Christ," and Father Divine, the colored Harlem cult master known to his votaries as "God."

Officers said they learned Hunt ordered construction of the throne car two months ago and had been at the coach works Saturday.

Christian Bohman, co-proprietor of the works, said the 10-passenger chariot is being financed from New York.

The vehicle is to have an ornate throne mounted in the center of the back seat. The top of the tonneau inclosure, Bohman said, is to be so constructed that, at the touch of a button, it will drop back to reveal "to the multitude" the occupant of the throne. Lined with white plush, the ceiling will be studded with colored stars, and some of the windows will be star-shaped, paned with crystal. Expensive leather of a hue yet undecided will cover the exterior.

Hunt is accused of bringing Delight Jewett, 17-year-old Denver girl, to California for immoral purposes and betraying her, calling himself St. John, "the Revelator," and her Virgin Mary, mother-to-be of the new Messiah. The girl, now in New York, told her story to Federal agents.

Water Main Break Forms 'River' in Northeast Section

Thousands of homes in Northeast Washington were without water late last night after a main burst in the 1000 block of Rhode Island avenue northeast, and sent a swirling stream more than 6 inches deep toward the city until it reached the railroad viaduct between Ninth and Seventh streets.

There the miniature river emptied into a sewer, forming around it a tawny lake.

Extra police were sent to the scene to keep the crowds back when the main broke and the water gushed skyward, uprooting a tree, then settled into a steady, relentless flow.

Under the direction of Lynn Hobbs, District Water Department engineer, emergency crews were busy trying to turn off the main, which drew its supply from the reservoir at MacMillan Park.

Hundreds of spectators watched as the water rolled on. Authorities at the Water Department said they hoped to have normal conditions before dawn.

Wallace Offers 5 Proposals to Aid Unemployed

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 1 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace in an address here tonight advocated five proposals for meeting the problems of unemployment induced by technological advances in agriculture and industry.

Speaking at the annual Weil lectures on citizenship at the University of North Carolina, Wallace outlined a program which opposed: A policy of scarcity instead of abundance, a drastically reduced work week, a system that would lead to "even smaller farms" and eventually "a peasant agriculture," an expansion of exports as an end in itself instead of a means, and the theory that war would solve the unemployment problem.

Mrs. Frank Budd Funeral Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Budd, 65, wife of Frank Budd, who died Wednesday at her residence, 4701 Maple avenue, Bethesda, Md., of heart disease, will be held at the Pumphrey undertaking establishment at Bethesda this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be private.

Born in 1871 in Newark, N. J., Mrs. Budd had lived in Bethesda for many years. She was widely known for her work with the Bethesda Chapter of the American Red Cross, and when she was production manager of the chapter a large quantity of clothing was contributed to the victims of the Potomac River flood more than a year ago.

FHA Modernizing Costs $50,000,000 Less Than Expected

By the United Press.

The Federal Housing Administration, which expected to go $75,000,000 in the red on President Roosevelt's depression-era home modernization and repair program, closed its books on that phase of Federal housing last night with the statement that it will lose less than $25,000,000.

The program was carried out under an emergency section of the national housing act, passed in the dark days of 1934, when home owners were hard hit and houses were falling into disrepair. Under the plan which the President said would stimulate the prostrate building industry and put thousands of men to work, the Government insured loans which were to be repaid with interest.

Last night as title 1, the emergency section, expired, Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald said it had generated more than $2,000,000,000 worth of private modernization and repair work which does not show on Government records; that for every dollar insured by the Government, approximately $4 were spent on jobs paid for in cash or otherwise financed, and that it created the equivalent of at least one year's work for 2,000,000 men.

Court Discharges 'Bewildered Jury' Investigating Graft

San Francisco, April 1 (AP).—Summary dismissal of a "bewildered" grand jury added another twist today to the already tangled charges and challenges hurled in San Francisco's tumultuous police graft investigation.

Presiding Superior Judge George J. Steiger suddenly discharged the investigating body on the ground some of its members had connections with persons named in the inquiry, and that "leaks" had developed in the grand jury.

Steiger and District Attorney Matthew A. Brady moved to continue the inquiry with a "clean slate." The ousted jurors called a meeting presumably to protest their removal, but declined comment for the time being.

Fist Fights Mar Rhode Island's House Session

Police Check Rioting in Party Coalition Test of Strength.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., April 1.—Rioting disrupted the Rhode Island House of Representatives today as it struggled over a measure to place administration of Pawtucket's police, fire and public works departments in the hands of a commission.

Police summoned by Democratic Gov. Robert E. Quinn halted fist fights between House members and restored order.

"Order and decorum must be maintained in the House," insisted the Governor as the session adjourned without acting on the bill. "As Governor, I will use my power to see that order is maintained."

The row developed the first test of strength of Pawtucket Democrats allied to Democratic Mayor Thomas P. McCoy, a political foe of Gov. Quinn, and minority Republicans who have joined them in a coalition bloc.

Passage Recommended.

The coalition was formed two weeks ago in a disagreement over a judiciary bill.

Disorder broke out as the House finance committee returned the police measure, known as the Mulligan bill, with a recommendation for passage.

As business halted, Deputy Speaker Walter Sepe (Democrat), ordered Curvin's removal. House deputies grappled with Curvin as a page boy hurried with the Mulligan measure to the speaker's rostrum.

Another Pawtucket representative, Frank Asselin (Democrat), snatched the bill from the page boy and tossed it to Pawtucket's commissioner of public works, Albert J. Lamarre.

Police Enter Chamber.

Sheriffs dived for Lamarre as he tore the bill in half. To the bill's rescue came its champion, John E. Meade. He plunged head first over a row of desks, found the bill on the floor and carried it, crumpled and torn, to Speaker Sepe.

Meanwhile, State troopers and Providence patrolmen poured into the chamber.

With order temporarily restored, the Republican-Pawtucket Democratic coalition attempted to replace Sepe in the speaker's chair.

They formally "selected" William MacLeod, Newport Republican, as speaker pro tempore, but Sepe, over the din of protesting coalition Republicans and Democrats, read from State laws a declaration that usurpation of office was punishable by life imprisonment, and MacLeod returned to his seat.

Bandits Use Ruse To Lure Physician Into Holdup Trap

Called from his home early yesterday "to save a woman's life," Dr. John C. Payne, colored physician, was robbed of $6 when he walked into a holdup trap.

Dr. Payne told police he had just returned to his office, 1607 Seventh street northwest, when the telephone rang and he was asked to come to a house in the 1700 block Second street northwest. A woman was bleeding to death there, a male voice said.

When he walked into the dark corridor of the home, Dr. Payne said two men accosted him. One of the men threatened him with a revolver while the other took his wallet containing the money.

India's Nationalists Balk.

The new constitution for India, voted by the British Parliament in 1935, came into force yesterday.

Theoretically this would seem to be an occasion for rejoicing in India. The new charter of government is definitely intended to mark a long step forward in the direction of complete self-rule by the people of that land. And this step is being taken at a time when, in many other parts of the world, the prevailing trend is distinctly away from democracy.

But while many Englishmen believe with Lord Linlithgow, the viceroy, that the new constitution is "an experiment in representative self-government, which for breadth of conception and boldness of design is without parallel in history," the Indian Nationalists refuse to take this view.

Their stand is entirely consistent. At every stage they opposed the 1935 government of India act as a snare and a delusion. They hold to the same view now. To be sure the all-India Congress, the political arm of the Indian Nationalist movement, did agree to participate in the recent elections for the provincial legislatures. But the strength the Nationalists manifested in this balloting, winning a clear majority of the seats in six out of the eleven provincial legislatures, has apparently only intensified their opposition to the present constitution.

At the Faizpur meeting of the Indian National Congress, held early this year, a resolution was approved prohibiting congress adherents from accepting cabinet posts. This decision is now being carried out. What is more, the Nationalists now threaten a nation-wide general strike to compel Great Britain to rescind the 1935 act and permit the people of India themselves to write their own constitution.

The failure of the two civil disobedience campaigns sponsored by Mahatma Gandhi indicate that there is little likelihood of the British government being forced to move any faster, or go any further, in granting India complete autonomy than it desires. Yet if the Nationalists persist in their refusal to collaborate in the work of government a new impasse in Anglo-Indian affairs may result and a potentially valuable experiment in nascent democracy would be made valueless.

There is no doubt that in more than one particular the Indian Nationalists have a real case against the new constitution. Yet there are times when half a loaf is better than no bread.

If the congress party has performed a valuable service to India in creating truly Nationalist sentiment, it nevertheless lacks experience in the actualities of government. This experience its members are now in a position to acquire in the provinces, but, in a spirit of doctrinaire opposition this opportunity may be passed by.

Disproportionate Outlays.

The niggardly manner in which the Nation's real first line of defense is treated, in comparison with the generosity shown by our legislators to the fighting services, has been well brought out by Secretary Hull for the benefit of Congress.

During the next fiscal year the United States is slated to spend over $526,000,000 for the Navy. This sum may not be at all excessive. But it should be clear that the greater the need for military preparedness the greater also the need for a diplomatic service fully competent to fulfill its essential purpose of preserving the peace. The better that function is carried out, the less likelihood of recourse to the fighting forces.

It does, therefore, seem disproportionate that the total appropriation for the State Department for the next fiscal year amounts to only $17,763,000, of which not more than $10,000,000 would go for the operation of the department and the maintenance of the Foreign Service. The total figure, Mr. Hull comments, works out at one-fifth of 1 per cent of the total anticipated appropriations for the Federal Government.

It is as though a man were to spend a dollar for fire insurance to every penny for preventive measures that would make the incidence of fire less likely. Our Foreign Service has done an admittedly excellent job during recent difficult years. But it has done so in the face of a congressional policy which emphasizes drops at the spigot rather than waste at the bunghole.

Twenty Years After.

Twenty years ago today, on April 2, 1917, President Wilson made his most momentous address to Congress, advising that body to declare "the recent course of the Imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the government and people of the United States."

Two days later the Senate, by a vote of 82 to 6, and four days later the House, by a vote of 373 to 50, accepted for this country "the status of belligerent which has been thrust upon it." By proclamation of the President on April 6 the United States entered the World War. The consequences of that action are still with us.

It has become somewhat fashionable, of late, to assert that this historic step was a deviation from the desirable course of national destiny; to maintain that the blood and treasure expended by this country as a belligerent were utterly wasted; to emphasize the fact that the war did not, as President Wilson hoped, make the world safe for democracy, and to assume that the outcome would somehow have been more favorable for America had we swallowed the unbridled insults of the German government and preserved a craven peace at any price.

On this solemn anniversary it is therefore appropriate to ask ourselves again whether, in that crisis of her history, America failed to fulfill the national ideals without which no people can be recorded as having contributed constructively to the long record of human evolution.

The pacific character of the American people; their aversion to war as a barbaric and fruitless method of settling controversies, was at least as pronounced two decades ago as is the case today. Because of this civilized belief we had, for many months, patiently endured insults and aggressions from both the Germans and the Allies. And it was not until the German offenses assumed the characteristics, as Woodrow Wilson said, of "a warfare against mankind" that we reluctantly decided to put force behind the defense of those rights which the German submarine commanders so contemptuously flouted.

Whether or not this enforced defense of national rights actually achieved the idealistic objectives the Nation cherished is really a secondary question. To attain those objectives America did what she could, and failure to accomplish what, in the event proved beyond our powers can never be held against us by mortal critics. But to our undying credit will stand the strict fulfillment of that pledge which was within our power to redeem. "We desire no conquest," said President Wilson 20 years ago today. "We seek no indemnities for ourselves, no material compensation for the sacrifices we shall freely make. We are but one of the champions of the rights of mankind."

From that promise the United States never deviated. And for this proof of altruistic purpose, as well as for the refusal to suffer continuous and intolerable aggression, the American people may continue to take legitimate pride. When the balance hung uncertain, when the issue trembled between vindiction of honor or passive acceptance of indignity, the country took the course which the character of its people made inevitable.

None knows what might have happened had America stayed at peace. Perhaps Germany would have won the war. There are those who argue that present world conditions, had that been the outcome, would have been no worse. It is not a difficult argument to combat, but in such hypothetical discussion there is no gain for any debater.

What counts is that America, in the test, was not found wanting. The Nation, under President Wilson's leadership, was true to itself; true to its traditions, true to the conviction that a servile democracy is not worth saving and that, in the last analysis, the fundamental interests of the United States are inevitably opposed to the triumph of the autocratic principle. Thus it was 20 years ago. Thus, if circumstances pose the inescapable choice, it will be again.

"The right," said Woodrow Wilson on April 2, 1917, "is more precious than peace, and we shall fight for the things which we have always carried nearest our hearts." So it will continue to be, as long as Americans treasure the contribution this country has made to civilization and pride themselves upon a national ideal which cannot be measured in purely material terms.

President Wilson, secure from the criticism of lesser men, may sleep at peace in the quiet of the cathedral at Mount St. Alban's. In the hour of trial he had the stature to realize how America had to choose. He knew, in his ringing paraphrase of Martin Luther's phrase, that "God helping her, she can do no other."

The Fadeaway.

It is said that when Postmaster General Farley signed the commissions of a number of Massachusetts postmasters he inadvertently used a green ink that proved defective and faded away when exposed to the light.

Though this was a small matter, speedily righted, the incident is one which many will remember wistfully. How very many things there are which, when exposed to the light, one could wish to fade away. And how comforting it would be if some past records could be so easily obliterated.

Inventive effort has concentrated on devices which will assist memory. The defective green writing fluid suggests the possibility of inventing a machine that forgets and makes the forgetfulness general. Such a machine, and the right kind of ink in books and newspapers, would rob the parallel column of its deadliness.

But these are fancies a shade too far-fetched. Most politicians would doubtless be contented with an ink that would automatically fade away in a few selected speeches and votes, while critics of the Supreme Court would be on firmer ground if only certain sections of the Constitution had been written in disappearing ink.

Mr. Collins' Tax Bills.

Representative Collins' new tax bills for the District must be considered in the light of the existing budgetary situation. As the local appropriations bill now stands, it would leave an estimated deficit of $6,149,119 for the fiscal year 1938. That would force the Commissioners to increase the real estate tax, which already imposes a heavy burden on local home owners. All tax authorities will agree that well rounded new levies are preferable to concentrating the entire burden on real property.

Three different agencies have scrutinized the District budget with the specific purpose of reducing it to a minimum. Some items that many citizens believe to be desirable were eliminated by the Commissioners, the Budget Bureau and the House sub-committee on District appropriations. Further cuts could not be made without detrimental effects upon public health, education, police protection, traffic safety, public welfare, etc. To finance these requirements new taxes seem to be imperative.

When expenses shared by two governments increase, fairness demands that both should enlarge their contributions. Applied to the local budget, that sound principle would also call for an increase in the Federal "lump sum." But Congressmen interested in local affairs have already discarded the Jacobs formula, which would have cut in half the Federal allowance to the District. They feel that revival of the $5,000,000 "lump sum" is as far as they can go this year. In the absence of any equitable and workable fiscal formula that attitude can be readily understood.

Assuming, therefore, that more revenue must be raised, the bills submitted by Representative Collins have much to commend them. Being widely diversified, they would not impose severe hardships on any particular group. The inheritance tax would serve chiefly to divert into Washington's coffers funds that are now going entirely to the Federal Government. The levy on parking lots seems to be reasonable, since most of these revenue-producing areas are now taxed merely as vacant land. The levies on corporations, public utilities, insurance companies and theaters are not excessive. Yet they would tap important sources of revenue that are more lightly taxed in Washington than in other communities.

Some increase in the gasoline tax appears desirable to finance traffic-control activities and street lighting now charged against the general fund. But it is questionable whether a 100 per cent advance in the present rate can be justified. Likewise, taxes on automobiles here are relatively low. But there is considerable feeling that the rates proposed are too drastic.

From the viewpoints of equity and production of revenue, an income tax would be a significant improvement over the unenforceable levy on intangible personal property. But the exemption of all members of Congress and other Government officials chosen for definite terms raises doubt as to how it would work in practice. In a city of transients it is difficult to draw an equitable line between residents and non-residents for taxation purposes.

Some objection will doubtless be raised, also, to the fact that this tax program is calculated to raise approximately $12,000,000—almost twice the amount of the prospective deficit. In the past the accumulation of surpluses has merely encouraged Congress to chisel down the Federal contribution. On the other hand, the District's need for revenue is rapidly increasing and the House Committee hopes to dispose of the local tax problem for at least five years. Whatever surpluses are accumulated during that period, it is pointed out, can be used by the Commissioners to reduce the burdensome tax on home owners.

This argument would be far more persuasive if the fiscal relations problem had been settled. If the new tax bills are enacted, therefore, the need for development of a workable formula to measure the Federal Government's obligation to Washington will be further emphasized. Perhaps the $15,000 item in the appropriations bill for a study of the District's tax and financial system can be devoted, in part, to actual attainment of that objective.

A Congressional Widow Declines.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mrs. James P. Buchanan, widow of the late Congressman from the Tenth Texas District and chairman of the important House Appropriations Committee, has announced that she will not be a candidate for the seat vacated by her husband's death. In doing so she follows the worthy example of the widows of the late Speakers Rainey and Byrns, and so adds to the weight of their example in a time when it is particularly needed. In a democracy widows, manifestly, enjoy no natural right to succeed their husbands in Congress. And yet every year sees such candidacies, based primarily on an appeal to sentiment. Mrs. Buchanan's husband had been in Congress for almost 25 years, and it is probable that her candidacy would have made a strong appeal of this nature. All the more reason to applaud her adherence to the principle of democratic government.

Democracy Vs. Fascism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today, as the vandalism of the organized Fascist groups in America becomes apparent to even the most dubious citizen—as witness the burning of a synagogue in New York and other depredations in various parts of the country—we realize that America, in common with Europe and Spain, is at the crossroads of the future, hovering between the continuation of democracy and the support of some form of Fascist dictatorship.

Since Soviet Russia has not as yet attained the Communist state we cannot say honestly that ours is a choice of communism or fascism, because that is not the issue, but the life-and-death struggle between democracy and fascism. It is an ironic fact that the enemies of democracy are aided by renegade intellectuals and workers of this country and abroad who flock in small but dangerous numbers to the psychopathic camp of Leon Trotsky and his underworld crew. So, on one hand we have the forces of democracy attempting to retain the gains they have made toward some distant Utopia of mankind, and on the other hand the forces of militarism and reaction attempting to perpetuate slavery in the world.

Those of us who expected the forces of Christianity to oppose the aggressions of Italian and German fascism have been sadly disappointed. From Rome we witnessed the sorry spectacle of Hitler being tapped gently on the wrist by a paper encyclical from a representative of Christendom who is virtually the prisoner of an atheist dictator. From Germany we witness the complete absorption of Christian groups by the paganism of German National Socialism. Christianity, as a force to oppose the enemies of democracy, has been shorn of its might and as a force and a religion lies scattered in bewildered groups of opposing sects around the world, a dying faith in a seemingly dying world, impotent to unify its own ranks and despised for its hypocrisy by opposing sects and groups.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler has found that the World War cost 30,000,000 lives and 400,000,000,000 of dollars. In America we have a military budget that exceeds one-half billion dollars for 1937, and this in a nation considered in a geographic position impossible to invade. Obviously, our defense program is not what it is supposed to be—either we are in the midst of an attempt to establish a military dictatorship in the United States or our militarists have decided among themselves to engage upon a future war of aggression against some yet-to-be-chosen nation. Since the public is always the victim (the poor public, not the millionaires) of a war, we should know what is around the corner. Can someone tell us? JOHN C. ROGERS.
Alexandria, Va., March 30.

"Annual Spasm Of Reform."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The articles by Mr. H. F. Wentworth on traffic are much enjoyed and cause me to ask why two very simple aids to solution of the traffic problem are not adopted.

First: Why is the unrepealed law relative to bicycles in operation on the streets at night carrying a white light in front and a red one in back not enforced?

Second: Why is not a minimum jail sentence of at least one day imposed on those who are convicted of speeding and other serious infractions?

Incidentally, if most of the policemen were taken off the chalk art class, marking tires to punish one for keeping a car out of circulation too long, and put to catching real offenders something would be accomplished.

This annual spasm of reform is bunk; enforce the law and get results; other cities do.

JOHN E. TAYLOR.

Townsend "Hopeful."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The high honor of an invitation to visit the Townsend Club at their magnificent and historical meeting place has come to me and I am anticipating with the utmost pleasure the opportunity of meeting the leader, a man of such rare patience and unselfishness.

Educational opportunities for youth, honorable labor at living wages for the middle-aged, and leisure and relaxation for the aged are agreeable to the laws of nature and of God. All, Republicans and Democrats, Catholics and Protestants, old and young and all sections of the country would benefit alike. This is real justice.

A plan that would bring real security, peace and progress to all should be studied and promoted.

HOPEFUL.

Glaring Headlights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In line with the police department's safety drive, it has been my observation over a number of months that apparently little or no attention has been given to one of the deadliest and most violated conditions present on the highway today: Glaring and non-adjusted headlights.

In 19 years I have driven night and day over District highways, a distance of 700,000 miles, but never in this time have glaring, blinding headlights been so common as today. The law requires that the beam be kept below 42 inches at 200 feet. However, few of them do. By actual measurement a vast number of them exceed 10 and 12 feet!

Out of almost any given ten cars observed, six will glare into an approaching driver's eyes, often causing temporary blindness lasting several seconds, during which time he must either stop dead in his tracks or take a chance and continue driving until his eyesight is again normal. Let's get them down!

I have noticed also that a large majority of high lights are found on brand-new cars and the dealers are turning them out by the hundreds, every week, with no adjustment whatever. Turn out a "green" driver with one or both lights in perfect position to blind oncoming drivers and you have a very good death potential. I sincerely believe if this condition were corrected many accidents would be avoided.

We have not had a "drive" on illegal headlights for a number of years, and I am convinced that such a concentrated "drive" is of utmost importance and now in order. This evening I was forced to pull to the curb twice in three blocks due to this carelessness. Many others would have continued to drive until they were able to see normally. I'm certainly not a "crank," but enough is enough. NON-GLARE.
Washington, March 29.

Temperance And Moderation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been much interested in the letters of Mr. Walter Walton and Mrs. Conway Walsh calling the drys and the near-drys together in the cause of temperance.

However, are we not risking too much the surrender of our principles in joining the so-called "moderate wets" in an attempt, no matter how admirable, toward what I would call moderation rather than temperance? I fully appreciate that prohibition is now a lost cause, and it is only making ourselves ridiculous to again advocate a so conclusively proven failure. I also must admit that the modern cocktail room and restaurant bar is far more desirable than the saloon. Open cocktail drinking is better than clandestine imbibing of boot-leg, and less demoralizing to both youth and adult.

But I feel that we are not yet ready to join any faction of the wets—and I do not believe that Mrs. Walsh's suggestion for a "mild cocktail" was seriously advanced.

I think we drys should either back a campaign for temperance—100 per cent—and go it alone—or if that is too nearly a support for the lost prohibition cause, then frankly join the near-drys in a substitute campaign for moderation. But we should choose between the two, temperence and moderation. They are not the same.

H. H. LUNDAY.
Washington, March 30.

Outraged Philatelist.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The series of Army and Navy stamps are supposed to honor the makers and saviours of the United States' unity. Then, in the name of historic decency and philatelic honesty, why issue in that listing two men, Lee and Jackson, who fought the Union?

The "NRA" was a howling joke with a leg and foot missing in the marchers!

The "Mothers of America" was not typical of American mothers.

And now, this historic outrage! The South, naturally, loved them but the United States gave its best blood to prevent the Union's crucifixion!

Let philatelists boycott this 4-cent stamp! Let Farley buy up the issue and present them to his friends!

B. LOUDUN.
Washington, March 30.

A Filipino On Quezon's Visit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Harry V. Mason has complained in these columns that President Quezon was spending an excessive sum of $75,000 for his mission here, that the president was staying too long in America, that independence was a settled issue and that Mr. Quezon was freely criticizing the Supreme Court, Congress and the American Constitution.

As for the protracted stay of our president in America, we Filipinos desire that he do so until he has laid the foundation of the economic conference. President Quezon has to fight, as before, forces against the Philippines, and negotiations for the auspicious discussion of Philippine-American economics are extremely important. The paltry sum of $75,000 is nothing when we consider that the Philippines are going to lose millions if President Quezon does not achieve an equitable trade.

President Quezon has not attacked the American Supreme Court. Insofar as I have followed news dispatches, I am informed that our president has made comparisons and contrasts between the Philippine Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court. He has pointed out the advantages of our own judicial system. What is wrong with this? Students in the universities make a daily exercise of this very thing.

Quezon has rightly criticized the Congress, but in this he was far too mild and measured. The Filipinos hold the position that the independence act is a two-party contract between your Government and ours. And why has the Congress already changed the economic clause of the act for the benefit of lobby interests? Rightly did our president say that he would not know what the Congress would do next, as lobby interests are exerting their pressure upon that body religiously.

In my campus contacts with American university students, I have been struck by their parochialism. All they know about the Philippines is that the people are hill Igorrotes and Moros and that Japan would swoop in there as soon as America leaves the "savages" unprotected. My appeal is that we should not assimilate emotional prejudices. That is the darling refuge of the vulgar crowd in concealing its inadequacies.

In spite of continued unfavorable attacks upon the Filipinos, we still believe that America and the Philippines can become economic and cultural partners. We are ready for this kind of association. And the American press and books must cease attacking us. There are no intelligent reasons for so doing.

Look at the Pacific Basin. You need friends on the other side of the ocean. The horizon of this ocean is surcharged with clouds of war, of trade conflicts, of racial and nationalistic emotions. America cannot possibly "insulate" herself.

We are your friends on the other side of the ocean. But, I repeat, there is a limit to human patience and you have to stop attacking us. If you don't we may turn our friendship elsewhere.

RESURRECCION DRILON.

Nicaragua Canal

ONCE more there is talk about a Nicaragua canal. This plan has been discussed for nearly 400 years by Spaniards, Englishmen and Americans, but very little has been done about it. Today, however, there are military reasons for constructing this waterway and these may result in action. Just as the T. V. A. was approved by the Supreme Court for reasons of national defense, so the Nicaragua canal may be dug for the same reasons.

Geographical factors favor the canal. Utilizing the San Juan River bed and Lake Nicaragua there would remain but 27 miles of land route to be cut. Other factors are also favorable. Earthquakes and volcanic eruptions which occur occasionally are not considered serious dangers. Nor would there be the need for many elaborate locks, power plant and drainage system or the danger of landslides, because the canal would be at sea level.

Much preliminary work has already been done. On the engineering side, all necessary data on surveying, geology, weather, equipment and man power have long been assembled. The cost is estimated at $722,000,000 against the expenditure of $525,800,000 for the Panama Canal. On the diplomatic side there is a treaty between the United States and Nicaragua which grants the rights to build, operate and defend this transoceanic waterway. Finally, it has been noted that the route between San Francisco and New York would be reduced by about 500 miles by this canal.

* * * *

Few people realize how long the Nicaragua canal has been discussed. In 1540, Bautisto Antonelli made a report to the Spanish throne favoring a route to India via Nicaragua. In 1695, an Englishman sent over 1,200 men in five ships actually to start digging a canal, but the Spaniards drove them off. More than a century later, in 1825, the American minister to Nicaragua suggested to the United States Government that it undertake this construction and a corporation was formed to do the work. The plan failed, however, for lack of capital.

European interest was also strong in a transoceanic canal across the Americas, but this centered largely in the Panama route. Led by the French, the Panama Canal Co. was formed and excavation was actually begun. But the whole scheme was bogged in a most odoriferous scandal and in corruption seldom equaled in this history of the world. Work, however, continued in fits and spurts.

Meanwhile, the need for a canal was keenly felt for commercial and military reasons. So President Theodore Roosevelt solved the problem in his own way. American investors in the Panama enterprise urged action upon him and when he was unable to come to terms with the government of Colombia, of which Panama was still a part, he supported a revolution in Panama and virtually forced the independence of that country. "I took the Canal Zone," he declared, "and let Congress debate; while the debate goes on the canal does also."

* * * *

Still, technical opinion had favored the Nicaragua route for reasons mentioned. The long series of interventions and the repeated rule by the marines in Nicaragua showed that this plan had never been completely shelved. Finally in 1916 the Bryan-Chamorro treaty was signed by which the United States gained the right to build the Nicaragua canal and to erect naval bases on Corn Island and on Fonseca Bay. The background of this treaty is a bit unsavory and it has been denounced as null and void by many liberals and anti-imperialists. Costa Rica protested that its rights to the southern shore of the mouth of the San Juan River had been ignored, and Salvador claimed a United States naval base in Fonseca Bay was a direct threat to its sovereignty. The Central American Court upheld these contentions, whereupon Nicaragua resigned from the court. Still there are matters to be settled with Costa Rica, Salvador and Honduras before decks are cleared for action.

The Panama Canal is now operating at 80 per cent of capacity. A revival of world trade might well make it inadequate. In a military sense, the Panama route has some drawbacks. It is too narrow to accommodate some modern ships and the blowing up of its locks by a bombing plane or a landslide would cripple it. So it is possible that a start will soon be made on the Nicaragua canal.

Duke's Tie A Crawler.

The Duke of Windsor was interestingly depicted in the Easter news as no longer concerned about setting the mode for men of fashion. It would seem another of the heavy cares put aside when he abdicated as King of England. The basis is that he attended Easter service at Vienna wearing "a deep green, conventionally cut suit, with a shirt almost white but with a faint bluish tinge and a dark purple necktie with a dainty red stripe, the tie . . . carelessly knotted and disposed to crawl out of his vest."

While no doubt Pall Mall and the fashionable worlds will deplore such remissness, it is safely predictable that not all the reactions will be unsympathetic. There are a few, besides the former King and British style leader, whose ties sometimes or always are carelessly knotted and disposed to crawl. In the United States, anyway, a wide agreement is probable that the Duke is well rid of the job constraining him to set the example of perfection in men's dress, down to the last detail.

Sound And Fury.

I CONTEND that oratory is a phony form of expression because the orator on the platform is self-conscious and not the same man that he is in private conversation with a few friends. He may not think he is self-conscious on the platform after he has opened his pores and shaken down his bangs, but he is just the same, because he knows that the audience is out there and he is under great pressure from his vanity to make good.

If he didn't have abnormal vanity he wouldn't be up there in the first place, running off at the mouth and clouting the table that way. Vain people simply cannot stand humiliation, and this being so your orator will screech, bawl, swing by his tail and tear his shirt, if it comes to that, to put over his act.

In private conversation, however, it doesn't make much difference if one man doesn't convince another. Under these conditions the other man may say, "Well, that is the craziest nonsense I ever heard," and they change the subject and buy another drink.

The orator doesn't think it is any skin off his hide if the other fellow breaks through his service to offer a few cracks on his own. And he behaves himself because he knows the other man would bust right out laughing if he should go bouncing around the room, sweating like a lemonade pitcher and howling, "Oh, my countryman, beware the peril in our midst!"

• • • •

UNDER THE COMPULSION of his ego to make a successful impression in a public address, on the other hand, the orator will sacrifice truth, fairness and reason, knowing that people are not very analytical when their emotions are boiling.

The two greatest hams in the world just now are Mussolini and Hitler, of whom Mussolini is absolutely pure ham, with no discount—so imperious that he even salutes himself. If Mussolini weren't dictator and he stood up on a corner in Rome in that silly suit of his with his head thrown back and his cheeks full of marbles, they would say he was crazy and lock him up.

Hitler is hammy only on formal occasions, but it would be a great thing for the entire civilized world if God should somehow provide that their pants fall off on some occasion of great pomp. That would make them ridiculous even to their own people, the spell would be broken and the human race could get back to work.

We seem not to have many old-fashioned spread-eagle courtroom orators these days, but they still teach the standard tricks in hte law schools. These have nothing to do with law or justice, of course.

On the contrary, they are used in lieu of evidence to defeat the law and justice, and any time you see an attorney blinking his eyes and honking his nose to a jury you may put it down that his client his guilty.

• • • •

ONE OF THE SADDEST sights you ever saw is the spectacle of the freshman Congressman when school takes up in Washington and they learn that they are allowed only three minutes at a time to sound off. Back home, in the campaign, they were in the habit of orating without restraint, and they enjoyed the sensation of rousing their constituents to bursts of laughter with their witty sayings and imitations.

But when they hit Washington they discover that oratory is dead in the House owing to the time limit. So they write long speeches and rattle off as much as they can in their three minutes and then publish the rest in the Record under their privilege to revise and extend. In the Record they insert parenthetical remarks, such as "Laughter" and "Loud and prolonged applause," and it is very pathetic in a way but a good thing on the whole that they can't get up and consume the time of the House indulging their passion for oratory.

For it is a passion, no less and not much more, and it occurs mostly in men who have nothing to say but know how to drive people nuts with sound and fury. For some of the most garrulous and persuasive orators have been the most unconscionable liars, trimmers and two-timers of their time on earth.

Philippine Dilemma

By Raymond Leslie Buell.

This is the second of three articles on the political, economic and military problems facing the Philippine Commonwealth. The author is president of the Foreign Policy Association.

IN A WORLD marked by economic nationalism and political insecurity, it takes courage for the Philippines to take the plunge into the icy waters of international politics. By becoming independent the islands will lose the shelter of the American market and the protection of the American Navy. Yet articulate opinion in the Philippines is willing to take the plunge; while articulate opinion in America is anxious to rid the United States of a Far Eastern liability. The farmers and processors want increased protection against Filipino competition; the pacifists want to reduce the risk of a clash with Japan.

Yet any American who believes that his country should live up not only to the letter but the spirit of its commitments cannot support a policy of granting independence to the Philippines under conditions which will inevitably reduce the islands to political or economic chaos. If chaos results following independence the United States tariff regime will be to blame. Over the protests of the Philippine Assembly, the American Congress in 1909 decreed a regime of free trade between the islands and the United States. Thereafter Philippine articles could enter the American market free of duty, and American products could similarly enter the Philippines. Japanese or Chinese products, however, meet with the obstruction of Philippine tariff walls.

Freedom Complicated By Tariff Schedules.

AS A RESULT of this tariff regime, the task of cutting the ties between the islands and the United States is extremely difficult. At the time of annexation the Philippines shipped 18 per cent of their exports to the United States; only 9 per cent of their imports came from this source. But, largely as a result of the Closed Door policy, the Philippines shipped 60 per cent of its exports to the United States in 1935, while it bought 64 per cent of its purchases in this market. The Philippines ran twelfth in the list of best customers of the United States.

Although the past tariff regime may have brought a type of "prosperity" to the islands, it is obvious that this artificially funneled trade cannot continue when the islands become independent. On the other hand, the sudden imposition of the American tariff barrier against Philippine goods will have disastrous consequences.

The Tydings-McDuffie act of 1934 refused to allow the Philippines to impose any restrictions upon American imports during the Commonwealth period. This act continues the Closed Door regime in the islands, except that beginning in 1940 the Philippine government must impose a tax upon exports to the United States, rising from 5 per cent of the prevailing United States duties in the first year, to 25 per cent by 1946. Secondly, the act imposes certain quota restrictions upon Philippine imports such as sugar, coconut oil and cordage, which may enter the United States duty-free before independence. In 1946 this regime comes to an end, and unless the trade conference authorized by the Tydings-McDuffie act leads Congress to change the situation,

Preferential Plan Most Desirable Today.

FROM STANDPOINT of the immediate commercial interests of the Philippines, the best solution would be an exclusive preferential arrangement, similar to that which exists between the United States and Cuba. But this type of agreement, perpetuating the present flow of trade, though subject to moderate duties, would antagonize China and Japan, which naturally do not wish to be discriminated against in the Philippines, and it would also be resisted by powerful American interests who wish to curtail Philippine imports.

In the agreement to be negotiated, the United States will presumably charge only moderate duties on Philippine imports in return for similar concessions by Manila, but the benefit of these duties will be generalized to third countries such as Ceylon and Japan. Thus the question whether a Hull type of reciprocity agreement will be of any real value to the Philippines depends upon the ability of the islands to produce materials more cheaply for the American market than its competitors. What is the situation in respect to the leading Philippine exports?

Sugar. Nearly 58 per cent of the total exports of the Philippines consist of sugar, sold entirely in the United States. Fifteen per cent of the population is dependent upon this industry which, unlike that of Cuba, is in the hands of thousands of independent planters and tenants. Under the act, the Philippines now have a duty-free quota of about a million tons in the American market. They receive for this sugar the American price which exceeds the world price by more than the full sugar duty. Had the United States bought this sugar in the world market in 1935 it would have saved about $43,000,000—which is the measure of the advantage of the present system to the Philippines.

Coconut products. The coconut industry supports about 25 per cent of the population, being the third largest enterprise in the islands. More than 26 per cent of the total exports consist of coconut products, and the islands dominate about 34 per cent of the world trade, competing with the Netherlands, Indies, Malaya and Ceylon. In contrast to these competitors, who concentrate upon the export of the raw materials of copra, the Philippines export large quantities of coconut oil, extracted from copra. This is because the islands have had free access to the protected American market.

This market was injured in 1934, however, when Congress imposed an excise tax of 3 cents a pound on Philippine oil, and a 5-cent tax on such oil from foreign countries.

Gold. Within recent years gold has become the third largest export from the Philippines, comprising 14 per cent of the total. Today the Philippines are second only to California as a gold producer under the American flag. So long as the United States remains on the gold standard, Philippine gold may be exported to the United States, regardless of whether the islands become independent.

Hemp. Hemp—used for binding twine—is the fourth largest export, comprising more than 11 per cent of the total. Hemp is now on our free list, and as far as foreign competitors are concerned the Philippines enjoy a virtual monopoly.

Reciprocity Agreement Alone Of Slight Avail.

TO SUMMARIZE, of these four leading exports totaling 82 per cent of the total, a reciprocity agreement by itself could not save the Philippine sugar industry from destruction at the hands of Cuba; such a treaty should make possible a further increase in the export of copra at the expense of oils, and it should preserve a large part of the American market in hemp and cordage and not interfere with the importation of Philippine gold. Such a treaty, however, can prove of real assistance to the Philippines only if a solution of the sugar problem is found.

A solution would seem to lie in an extension of some form of the present quota system. For, although a reduction in sugar duty would not benefit the Philippines, it is generally recognized that a large part of this industry could survive under a quota system. An opportunity to work out a system on an international basis may arise in the sugar conference which opens this month in London.

In addition to a reciprocity treaty and a sugar quota, the Philippines should be given tariff autonomy as quickly as possible. This means, first, that the islands should be able to impose duties upon American imports, which will provide the government with needed revenue; and, second, that the Philippines should be given the right to conclude commercial treaties with foreign nations in an effort to find new markets.

In return for such concessions, the Philippines undoubtedly will wish to impose only moderate duties on American goods. But if these duties are not preferential, it is probable that a good deal of the present trade of the United States, particularly in textiles, will be supplanted by Japan. So as to convince American interests that the United States is not giving away too much, it might be desirable for the Philippines to give a quota to American textiles in compensation for the American quota on Philippine sugar. Japanese quotas should be similarly limited so as to prevent them from undercutting the American quota by dumping. These quotas might well be discussed at the international textile conference now convening in Washington.

Both the sugar and the textile quotas would be exempt from the operations of the most-favored-nation clause, particularly if their effect is not to increase the extent of preferential trade. Thus, although the problem of making the necessary economic adjustments in the Philippines is difficult, it is by no means insoluble, given a spirit of good will on the part of both countries.

Peter II Of Yugoslavia.

MOST CHILDREN, at the age of 13, know nothing of the serious problems of life and think only of enjoying themselves, of playing games. But Peter II, the young King of Yugoslavia, already bears upon his frail shoulders the heavy burden of kingship. Although he has not yet assumed the full responsibilities of his royal power, he is in close touch with the life of the nation, over which he presides with all the grace, with all the eagerness of youth.

Peter's daily life is regulated by an exacting and inflexible schedule. He rises at 7, and begins his day with a prayer. After breakfast, which he has with his family, the King and his two younger brothers take a short walk. Then at 9 King Peter goes to the schoolroom, where his instructors are waiting for him. He is given four lessons, each of which lasts 40 minutes. Lunch at 12:45 is followed by rest and reading until 3 o'clock. The remainder of the afternoon is devoted to physical exercise, horseback riding and other forms of relaxation and amusement. At half-past four the King takes tea with his family; dinner is served at half-past seven. By this time the King has finished with his duties for the day, and spends the evening with his mother. He never goes to bed later than 9 o'clock. As the King loves to work out-of-doors, his lessons are given in the schoolroom only in bad weather.

• • • •

ONE DAY, as the King and his younger brother, Tomislav, were coming back into the house from a lesson in gymnastics, the latter said to their instructor, in French: "Regarde comme mes mains sont sales, nous avons bien joue!" (Look how dirty my hands are. We had a good game.")

Prince Peter, who was then 8 years old, turned to the instructor and said: "Avez-vous remarque, M. le professeur, que mon frere vous a dit: "regarde" au lieu de "regardez?" Il faut lui pardonner, il est encore si jeune." (Did you notice, sir, that my brother used the familiar form regarde, instead of the polite form regardez? He will have to be forgiven; he is still so young.")

• • • •

LAST YEAR King Peter was complaining to his playmates that his mother was not giving him enough pocket money. Queen Mary, who wished to teach her son thrift, was only giving him a few dinars a week.

One day Peter II said to his mother: "Mother, things can't continue in this way. I don't have enough money. I'm going to learn a trade."

"Very well, my son," the Queen Mother replied.

A carpentry shop was installed in an annex of the palace, and a master carpenter was hired. As soon as the King saw this new instructor, he said to him: "Sir, I am counting on you to teach me how to make beautiful things, which I shall be able to sell easily, in spite of the depression. I need some money." Needless to say, all of the things made by the king, with the carpenter's aid, were sold at a high price.

• • • • •

LAST SUMMER the young King and his brothers spent their vacation at Milotcher on the seashore, and at Bled in the Slovenian Alps. Several youngsters belonging to a Sokol (gymnastic) club joined them there, and then there were jolly and exciting games in the great park, with its many sweetly scented flowers, or near the blue sea which bathes the shore of Yugoslavia.

Now Peter II is beginning his fourteenth year. A whole nation has its eyes upon him. With tenderness and love the people follow his slightest actions; they watch him grow and develop into maturity. Alexander fell like a soldier for his country, the country whose territorial integrity he had sworn to maintain. Peter II will take good care to maintain that integrity, for he regards it as a sacred heritage. He is of the Karageorgevitch race, that line of heroes who unified the kingdom of the Southern Slavs.

Serbians, Crotians, Slovenes, Dalmatians, Herzegovinians, Bosnians, Montenegrins—all rally affectionately around their young sovereign. As well they may, for happy are the peoples who can unite around so smiling and handsome a child!

"I Enclose"

By William Lyon Phelps.

Human Error.

The other day I received from a famous professor of mathematics (a subject emphasizing accuracy) a letter in which I read, among statements even more pleasing, "enclosed please find check for $5." Why he wished to send me this check would lead to an interesting and diverting narrative, which I deeply regret is of so intimate a nature that I cannot possibly display it in the permanent publicity of type. For even if we get the recall of judges and of magistrates, our vocal and written errors can never be recalled.

• • • •

Well, the professor of mathematics forgot to enclose the check or anything else. He evidently saw the check lying on the table immediately after he had returned from the postoffice, where he had irrevocably deposited the letter. What he ejaculated when he saw the forgotten check cannot be expressed by any mathematical formula, and had better be left to the imagination.

• • • •

But the interesting thing is that the same post that brought me his letter brought me a letter from the famous British journalist, S. K. Ratcliffe, who is also one of the finest public lecturers that ever visit the United States of America. It seems he had just read my article in this column on licking envelopes, and he wrote: "You should write an admonition on I enclose. Tell 'em of a rule without an exception: when they write that phrase, they should stop, slip in the enclosure and address the envelope!"

Evidently he, too, had suffered.

There is something about the words "I enclose" that prevents us from enclosing. The only way we can beat the hoodoo is to do exactly what this distinguished journalist advises.

Collectivist Novels?

Collectivist novels are on their way, according to Theodore Dreiser. And he says it's all the fault of the movies.

In Hollywood, Dreiser avers, the story is only a beginning. An idea may be good, but it's never great until it has been embellished by experts. If humor is needed, humor specialists are summoned. If love is needed—well, they've plenty of masters on hand.

So in the near future we may see novels with authorship credited as follows:

"Story by Sinclair Lewis; gags by Harpo Marx; descriptions of gowns by Adrian; descriptions of outdoor scenery by Ernest Hemingway; description of indoor scenery by Joseph Hergesheimer; musical conversation by Deems Taylor; battle scene from a report of the United States Navy; love scenes by Mae West; title page by Elmer Adler, typography by Goudy; composition by members of Local 66, International Typographical Union."

This may not be art. But who'll care?

Stopping A Swindle

Gov. Bailey of Arkansas has ordered the State police to confiscate every slot machine found in the State. That's tellin' 'em! And we think they'll do it.

Of all forms of so-called gambling the most pestiferous are the slot machine, the policy or numbers fraud, and dog racing. In no real sense can either racket be called a gamble, because the public hasn't a chance to do anything except hand over its money.

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, lifelong wet, liberal and sporting man, remarked when he threw dog tracks out of Illinois: "It is bad enough to swindle the public, but that racket cheats the dogs. It's unspeakable." Occasionally a dog has been known to catch the electric rabbit. But no sucker ever beat a slot machine.

The World Textile Conference

First International Collaboration On Industry Here.

By Leifur Magnusson.

A COLORFUL GROUP of some 200 delegates and technical advisers from about 20 different countries, speaking various languages and representing employer, worker and Government interests, yet united in concern with the problems of one great international industry, is now conferring in the Capital city. These men are met "round a table" in the World Textile Conference at the call of the International Labor Organization to deal with all problems directly or indirectly affecting the world textile industry.

The specific countries responding as those in which textiles play an important part in the national economy are: Belgium, Canada, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Ecuador, Finland, France, Guatemala, India, Japan, Latvia, Mexico, Netherlands, Poland, Rumania, Sweden, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, Uruguay, Yugoslavia, Germany, though not actually represented, is sending an official observer.

This conference marks the commencement of a new stage in the treatment of industrial problems. For the first time representatives of employers, workers and governments from the major countries involved in a basic world-wide industry are attempting to hammer out joint solutions for their common problems. For the first time, too, practical recognition is given by practical men to the fact that the fundamental problems of a great industry are international in character.

The treatment is also new in that the problems of a single industry as sketched in a report of the International Labor Organization constitutes the agenda and in that labor problems are being dealt with against the background of broad economic facts rather than as isolated problems.

Since World War Days Known As 'Sick Industry.'

WHAT CIRCUMSTANCES condition this unique action? What are the specific problems toward solution of which the conference aims, at least to make a beginning?

Ever since the war, textiles the world over has been known as a "sick industry." But the disease has been more a functional maladjustment to twentieth century conditions than a structural disintegration. Before 1914 Great Britain exported nearly three-fourths of the world's cotton piece goods and a great part of the woolens and worsteds. Due to the war these exports were cut off. The industrially undeveloped countries to which Great Britain had been selling were thus encouraged to establish mills of their own while existing factories in older countries tended to expand.

The trend toward nation self-sufficiency, the natural momentum of industrialization and dislocations of textile markets caused by drawing new boundary lines following the war, exaggerated the dispersive movement. The general loss in purchasing power arising out of the depression further favored development of the textile industry in the lower cost-of-production areas of the Orient.

This resulted in serious dislocation of the textile trade of the older textile producing countries, especially of Great Britain. It also created a condition of imbalance between total world productive capacity and the effective demand. While the average person in the world consumed about 50 yards of textile manufactures per year before the war, he used only 55 yards per year at the height of post-war prosperity, and this in spite of a marked industrial consumption of almost all the textile fibers.

United States Suffered Little From Loss Of Exports.

THE UNITED STATES suffered less than Great Britain from loss of export markets because her exports of cotton manufactures were relatively small. But the movement of the textile industry from New England to Southern States was greatly accelerated during the post-war period as a part of the general trend from high cost to lower cost of production areas. And this presented internal competition problems.

Recently established mills equipped themselves with improved modern machinery and were often more efficiently organized. This rendered the older machines and methods obsolete. With the general reduction in buying capacity caused by the depression the cheaper Japanese goods also gained a foothold in the home market as well as in the Philippines and Cuba which the United States had previously supplied.

Whereas before the war textile manufacture was localized in Great Britain, central and western Europe and New England, all the major nations of the world are now in some degree textile producers. And, while prior to 1914 Great Britain alone could boast a world textile market, all of the textile nations of the world are now competing in every market where prohibitive tariffs, bilateral trade agreements or discriminatory quotas have not shut them out. The net result is a chaotic textile industry faced with a three-pronged textile problem, overcapacity, obsolescence and cut-throat competition.

Notoriously Long Hours Recorded Before Depression.

BEFORE THE DEPRESSION hours of work in textile mills were notoriously long. Slackened demand for textiles accompaning curtailed incomes resulted in drastic reduction in hours amounting in many cases to part-time employment and in others to complete unemployment. In the United States a 40-hour week was established for both Northern and Southern mills under the cotton textile code. Since abrogation of the NRA by the Supreme Court the 40-hour week continues to obtain in the majority of mills.

With regard to hours in the various countries, the International Labor Organization survey shows that in the eastern textile countries, China, India and Japan, the prevailing number per week is more than 48; in most European countries including Great Britian and some others the regulation number of hours is 48 per week, while in the United States, U. S. S. R., France, Italy, Australia and New Zealand weekly hours of work are under 48, 40 per week prevailing.

JOHN G. WINANT.
United States Representative.

Between 10,000,000 and 11,000,000 men and women are employed in the textile manufactories of the world. Great Britain and the United States have more than one million textile workers each. Some 420,000 of those in the United States are engaged in cotton mills alone. Of the total number of textile workers, a considerable number are young persons and women.

Lack of balance between producing and consuming capacity, obsolescence, cut-throat competition, inequalities in national wage levels, unsatisfactory working conditions, under-employment; these are outstanding symptoms of the sickness of the textile industry appearing in exaggerated form from time to time.

What is to be done?

VARIOUS METHODS of dealing with the situation have been tried by the leading textile nations. As far back as 1921 in connection with a program of "rationalization" temporary agreements were made between mill owners in the Lancashire cotton district of Great Britain limiting machine hours. Following the failure of such agreements to cope with the situation an association of employers was formed with the objective of stabilizing prices of yarn. The demonstrated inability of this plan adequately to meet the cotton crisis was followed by amalgamation of small spinning units in an effort to achieve greater efficiency both in production and marketing.

Still the problem failed of solution and Parliamentary action was then agreed upon. Two laws were passed, one in 1934, the other in 1936, neither of which has yet proved its value. The first act was designed to prevent wage-cutting by making wage agreements voluntarily reached by a majority of employers and workers binding upon all employers and workers in the cotton manufacturing industry when approved by the Minister of Labor. The second act deals with the reduction of productive capacity.

Internationalism Demands More Than National Action.

THOUGH NATIONAL ACTION is certainly called for, current experience indicates that such action alone proves insufficient. The international character of an industry whose raw materials and manufactured products are produced by many nations of the world, whose products are sold and their prices fixed in highly competitive world markets and which employs millions of workers under widely variable labor conditions, many of whom are women and children, also demands fundamental international action.

Toward this end the International Labor Organization has been working since 1928. The textile industry has come before many of its international labor conferences. With the unemployment incident to depression the course of action has been focused upon the 40-hour week. In an industry where technical improvement has proceeded rapidly, one in which markets have more than kept pace with the growth in population, also one where the spread of working hours between newer and older competing areas has tended to grow narrower, there is every hope that a happy compromise leading to final adoption of a treaty on the 40-hour week may be found.

Strike Marks Change of Rule In British India

Millions Observe Day in Mourning; Protest Self-Government.

By the Associated Press.

Calcutta, India, April 1.—British India assumed autonomous government today with a general strike and widespread demonstrations.

There was no violence, but millions observed the day in mourning and protest against the new constitution which granted the measure of self-government to the 11 provinces.

There were arrests in various centers, as followers of the Congress Party, which bitterly opposed the constitution, demonstrated in the streets.

Students Demonstrate.

University students at Lucknow stood in their seats for one minute to express sympathy for the hartal—passive halting of work—called by the Congress Party in protest against a qualified independence rather than complete independence from Great Britain.

The majority of shops were closed in Delhi and 25 persons were arrested there for demonstrating against the new regime. The strike was observed also at Calcutta, Poona and Lahore. Even public conveyances were unobtainable at Patna.

Although the day passed far more quietly than police had anticipated, the future of the autonomous administrations was perplexing and uncertain.

Moderate parties held control in legislatures of the remaining five provinces and governments ready to co-operate in administration of the new constitution were being formed. The provinces were Bengal, Sind, Assam, Punjab and the Northwest Frontier.

Admittedly, the minority coalitions were temporary administrations until the Congress Party decided upon its future course.

Relief Promised.

The coalitionists, however, started off their regimes with an announced program to improve the condition of the masses and to relieve unemployment—an apparent effort to counteract similar promises by the Congress Party.

The Congressionalists still looked to their former leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, who has hinted he has a new plan in mind for furthering independence grants to India.

The party will debate its future course at a vital conference, April 10.

Two other steps in India's constitutional evolution became effective today. Burma, for many years part of India, became an independent state within the British Commonwealth and Sir Archibald Cochrane was reappointed governor. The tiny coal and oil base of Aden, at the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula, also was separated from India and became a crown colony.

Envoy's Daughter, Niece To Dance at Festival

Senoritas Erma Castillo Najero and Lupita Davila, daughteh and niece of the Mexican Ambassador, will give a typical Mexican dance at the Internatonal Gym Night Festival at the Central Y. M. C. A. tonight. Another feature will be a Russian peasant dance by Miss Tatiana Gnoocheff.

More than 100 amateur performers in native costumes will present dances, gymnastic exercises and musical numbers of 11 countries.

Woman Asks Review Of Will Tax Deficiency

Theodora Casey Topliffe, of Washington and New York, as administratrix, yesterday asked the board of tax appeals to review a $5,493 deficiency assessed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue on the estate tax of Harriet M. Casey, of Washington, who died September 26, 1934.

The petitioner contended the bureau erred in including in the gross estate a trust fund established June 7, 1924, and in finding the gross estate of the deceased exceeded $21,487.

Suicide Verdict Given In Death of Man, 73

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide yesterday in the death of Benjamin Tubman, 73, 1388 E street northeast, whose body was recovered from the Eastern Branch Wednesday.

Tubman, a retired Capital Transit Co. employe, disappeared March 9. His wife told police he had threatened to take his life several times. He had been ill for some time, she said.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

I used to visit a friend's house pretty often, but I quit goin' there because it used to embarrass me to hear his wife holler at him every time he turned around. Finally the other night, I dropped in on him agin and everything was quiet and peaceful around the house.

My curiosity got the best of me and I took him over to one side and says, "How come your wife don't holler at you any more?" and he said, "Well, she finally found out it was makin' her little dog, Fifi, nervous."

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

You don't see much of the medicine man or often hear his show-opening bugle call these days in the hinterland small towns and villages. Scarcely 15 years ago he was flashing his flim-flam like the bogus diamond on his scarlet-checkered cravat, crying his cure-alls, displaying his jars full of hook-worms and tape-worms, crying that all men were inhabited by these monsters and that he alone was the purveyer of a cure, step up and get it, a dollar a bottle, leave it alone and die.

He was, despite his flim-flam, an impressive and golden figure who careened to banjo music across an era when a sucker was being born every minute. His show is on the wane, but his racket, even his spiel, goes marching on—if not to banjo music and bugle toots. The government has agents afield against it and once ever so often issues a pamphlet cataloguing current cure-alls and their proprietors' gift for sales-talk if not for showdom.

"The following patent medicines were seized under the authority of the food and drug act, on allegations that claims made for the treatment of the disease conditions * * * were beyond the capabilities of the articles," says the pamphlet's preamble, which then cites instances to the extent of three full pages.

* * * * *

"Dr. ——'s Camphorole, petrolatum and lanolin with volatile oils, represented as a treatment for nasal irritations, acute hoarseness, chronic rheumatism, aching feet, itching piles, tired nerves, skin irritations, throat irritations and colds and coughs in dogs."

"Dr. ——'s Grandmother Medicine, powdered material containing aloe, an emodin-bearing drug and ginger, for blood, liver, kidney and stomach diseases, rheumatism, chills, fever, malaria, dyspepsia, sick or nervous headache, scrofula, billiousness, palpitation of the heart, erysipelas, syphilitic troubles, catarrh, asthma, diabetes, bronchitis, consumption, cancer, tumor, fits, spasms, heart disease, Bright's disease, hardening of the liver and spinal complaints."

"Fairey Oil, turpentine and wintergreen, colored green, for neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, headache, stiff neck, lame back, sore throat, cold in the chest, pains in the head, side, stomach, feet, limbs and shoulders, cramps, colic, hacking cough, bunions, stiff joints and muscles, flu and fever."

These are samples of the current-day medicine man's contribution to the field and art of curing. And the Government's contribution was to pounce on a vast number of them, hale them into the courts, and squeeze a lot of fines.

Enterprises

Dr. David J. Price of Agriculture will travel Kansas and Oklahoma the last two weeks of this month to relate methods for the prevention of dust explosions and agricultural fires . . . He is in charge of research work on dust explosions and farm fire prevention in the chemical engineering division of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils and is chairman of the National Fire Protection Association committees on dust explosion hazards and farm fire protection . . . A recent check-up shows that during the past ten years, the Smithsonian Institution sent out or co-operated in 267 expeditions . . . During last year 18 expeditions took the field, visiting nine countries and 13 States . . . Upward of 215,000,000 trees were planted by the Forest Service on National forests in 26 States during the past year . . . Officials said it is the greatest reforestation program yet recorded, outstripping the previous all-time high of 1935 by more than 60 per cent.

"There has been much talk during the past few years about soil erosion being the greatest menace to our civilization. It should occasionally be pointed out that human erosion is just as serious . . ."—Secretary Henry A. Wallace.

Col. Charles L. Stengle, A. F. G. E.'s president, will address federation members in Boston, Mass., the night of April 6 . . . Mrs. Stengle will accompany him . . . Incidentally, Boston is the home of an A. F. G. E. vice president, John Murrey.

Dr. McClellan Will Address Relief Rally

Named Chief Speaker at Citizens' Mass Meeting on Sunday.

Additional Reports of Distress Spur Plans for Assistance.

Dr. William McClellan, president of the Potomac Electric Power Co., will make the principal talk at the citizens' mass meeting in behalf of the unemployed Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at the First Congregational church, Tenth and G streets northwest. Coleman Jennings, chairman of the committee of 25 which has called the mass meeting, will preside.

More statistics of families living in one room—some of them basement rooms—who are without funds, food or fuel, reported yesterday, spurred the committee to renewed activities in preparation for the meeting. The plight of these families is being brought out by the survey conducted through the joint efforts of the Family Service Association and the Washington Federation of Churches. It is the first results of this survey, reported by the volunteer workers, which decided the committee to rush the mass meeting.

It is estimated that an additional $100,000 a month of relief funds would be necessary to take care of these "employable" people until the beginning of the next fiscal year. It is also estimated that an additional $1,000,000 of relief funds will be necessary if they are to receive help during the next year. It is hoped that efforts will be made, as a result of Sunday's mass meeting, to induce the Commissioners and Congress to supply this money.

Wives Honored At a Meeting Of Rotary Club

Entertainment, Dancing and Bridge at Annual Ladies' Night.

Opening their program with a toast to the Rev. Dr. Charles Warner, president of the club, Washington Rotarians last night honored their wives at a Ladies' Night Banquet held in the grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

Singing in the robust Rotarian manner was interspersed with a variety of entertainment, dancing, bridge, and the awarding of door prizes.

Among the performers were Maybelle Jackson, the original Mary Lou of "Show Boat;" George Horn, ventriloquist, and the Washington trio, William Raymond, Edward Steffe and Fred East, with George Wilson at the piano.

As is the Rotarian custom, the wife of the president, this year Mrs. Charles Warner, was presented with a gift. Roland Whitehurst, past president of the club, made the presentation.

The committee on arrangements for the banquet was M. L. Langford, chairman; Harry Summerville, co-chairman; Leo May, in charge of entertainment; Paul Lumm, bridge; Theodore Neale, door prizes; Charles Griffith, decorations, and Albert Sigmund, favors.

Contract Players Ready for Virginia Title Tournament

Contract bridge players are converging in Alexandria for the fourth annual Old Dominion championship tournament at the George Mason Hotel beginning at 8:15 this evening and continuing to Sunday evening. The curtain-raiser, a new event of the Virginia program, is a contest for mixed pairs. It will be played in one session tonight for the new Stockvis Trophy, named for A. P. Stockvis, of this city, who is directing the tournament.

Open-pair championship is scheduled for two sessions tomorrow afternoon and evening. Benton Brooks and Alfred Stidham, the defending champions, are young Washington players who made their first major tournament win by capturing the Richmond News-Leader Trophy last year. The first session in the open-pair event will be a qualifying round; a consolation game will be provided for eliminated players. Master players who suffer this misfortune may not compete for prizes in a section which will be reserved for non-master championship. Free entry fees to the team match will be the award for the eliminated masters, if any.

The tournament will be concluded on Sunday with a team-of-four contest, to be played in two sessions without elimination. Defending team champions also hail from the Capital. They are W. M. McIntyre, A. P. Stockvis, E. B. Connolly and Herbert Shepard, who play under the name of Washington Whist Club.

The Old Dominion tournament is an American Bridge master point tournament. R. E. Needham will be present as the official representative of the league. National master points will be awarded. Players from ten States attended the 1936 event.

More Clerks Sought For House Members

A bill proposing that each member of the House be allowed an additional clerk was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi.

The measure seeks to raise the amount available to each member for clerical services from $5,000 to $6,800 a year.

Tourist Business Is Blooming And Bus Lectures Are Booming

'Ladies and Gentlemen, on Your Right' Again Sounds Through Capital and Twisted Necks Will Be Scattered Over U. S.

By Scott Hart.

Washington's big-time spring tourist business is blooming like a cherry tree. "They seem to be just falling out of the air to us," said a tour bus lecturer, catching up on his breath while the 20-odd tourists spilled out of the bus to go in the Lincoln Memorial for a ten-minute look at the sad face and a quick reading of the Gettysburg address on the wall.

Something like an hour before this stop, he announced, at the downtown starting point, that this was one of several tours to provide glimpses "of the National Capital's parks and homes, the monuments and Government buildings." He addressed a group of elderly ladies who talked with New England crispness; to a pretty red-dressed lady, who wore a big diamond and worried her little boy about the whereabouts of some postal cards; to an elderly man who talked in a sun-baked deep South drawl, and to a group of foreigners who constantly babbled in their native tongue and probably couldn't understand what the lecturer was talking about, anyhow.

The bus swung down Pennsylvania avenue and the lecturer began with what was to be an endless: "On your right, ladies and gentlemen," and "On your left . . ." Now Washington is chocked full of on-your-rights-and-on-your-lefts and a lecturer knows that the necks and heads of the tourists swing from right to left, at his command, with something that seems a practiced precision. He has to acquire a technique that will relieve the tourists from any awareness of his commands or from any feeling that their heads and necks are becoming regimented.

A Lecturer's Nightmare.

This is one problem. But the nightmare problem of the lecturer's life is how to keep free of embarrassing questions. There is a decided technique to this. And this problem in the lecturer's life was introduced, most innocently, by one of the ladies. The lecturer had just cried, "That is Lawngfeller's monument; Lawngfeller wrote 'Highwawther' and the 'Children's Hour.'"

"I'll bet," said the lady, that if someone would ask him just one additional question about these things it would stump him, that he'd turn into confusion confounded."

But at this particular moment the whole tour was confounded by a great and billowing smoke, arising from somewhere near the Union Station. A small ripple ran through the bus and the children cried, "Let's go to the big fire." His own show threatened, the lecturer queered the fire act by saying it was the smoke from a big locomotive and then cried, "On your left is the monument to Farragut," and was not disconcerted at all when one of the children cried, "Oh, there's a pigeon lighted up there on Mr. Farragut's head!"

20 Necks Twisted.

The bus swung farther along, and the lecturer lectured—while the heads moved in almost drilled precision—as follows: "The Justice Department; there's enough aluminum in that building to supply all the kitchen utensils in a good-sized city . . . And there's the exclusive Cosmos Club, so exclusive that a man once died sitting up reading a paper and they didn't find he was dead for two days . . . And there's the home of Mr. Liggett, the drug store king . . . That beautiful mansion there belongs to Mrs. Marshall Field; she doesn't stay there but about two weeks in a year (one of the New England ladies, her New England frugality aroused, said, "Imagine that!") . . . And there is the Supreme Court Building, a marvelous triumph of architecture (here the necks and heads fairly flew around, and faces were pressed against the windows. The lecturer later said that the Spanish Embassy aroused as much attention when the war first broke out) . . . And there's the Nation's Capital, and the monument to Grant and . . ."

His breath fairly spent from one of the eight lectures his business requires (it took him three weeks to master the eight lectures), the lecturer stood by his bus while the 20-odd tourists were looking at the sad face and reading the Gettysburg address.

"How," he said, "do I keep them from asking all sorts of embarrassing questions? Well, there are ways. In the first place the bus is moving. That's the key to the whole thing. They ask you something; if you know you very obligingly tell them; if you don't know—mind you the bus is moving—you simply spring forward, saying hastily: 'Ladies and gentlemen, on your right is . . .' and that relieves the situation. There are all kinds of ways of wriggling out of things."

Parley Urges Prince Georges Civic Grouping

Association Would Embrace P.-T. A., Fire Departments, Other Clubs.

Proposal to establish an inter-association of civic groups in Prince Georges County was indorsed last night by the Federation of Citizens Associations, meeting in the fire house at Bladensburg, Md.

W. F. Mulligan, of Daniels Park, president of the chamber of commerce, offered the motion. He said the proposed association would embrace all such organizations as P.-T. A. groups, citizens associations, fire departments, the county municipal association, the magistrates association, the service clubs, chamber of commerce, grange and women's clubs.

It was pointed out that the county municipal council, an organization similar to the proposed body, meets only twice a year and is not active enough to serve the purpose of unifying the objectives of the various civic associations.

Appoints Committee.

Judge Alfred D. Bailey, president of the federation, appointed Hugh C. Bickford, Clinton; Fred W. Nicholson, Cheverly, and Mulligan as a committee to contact the other groups in an effort to organize the inter-association.

The federation also indorsed Mulligan's motion that a fight be launched to have the proposed new Suburban Sanitary Commission Building located on the site of the present structure in Hyattsville.

Mulligan said the Montgomery County delegation at Annapolis had succeeded in amending the bill for a $100,000 for construction of the new building so that the present commission will be empowered to select the site. Montgomery County, he added, has two men on the commission and Prince Georges County only one.

Agreement Reached.

The federation was notified by Bickford that an agreement had been reached between the town of Colmar Manor and the county board of education whereby several roads would be built leading to the Colmar Manor School.

The federation had become alarmed when it learned that, because of the isolated location of the school, it was impossible to get fire engines or ambulances to it. The only roadway into the school grounds passes over a narrow wooden bridge, too small to accommodate automobile traffic.

Application of the Suitland Citizens Association for membership in the federation was accepted. J. W. West is president of the association.

Potomac Group Favors Vinson Pollution Bill

Seek Act to Allow Co-operation With States to Keep River Clean.

The executive committee of the Potomac Valley Pollution Conference unanimously adopted a motion yesterday recommending passage of the Vinson bill.

The bill, which yesterday was reported out of the Rivers and Harbors Committee to the House, will have active backing of the executive officers, it was agreed.

A second motion was carried supporting legislation to secure an enabling act to permit of making interstate compacts between the States of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District relative to pollution abatement in the Potomac River drainage basin.

Members of the executive committee present included Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the Maryland State department of health, chairman; George L. Hall, acting chief engineer, Maryland State department of health; Dr. Thomas W. Koon, Mayor of Cumberland, Md.; Dr. I. C. Riggin, commissioner of health, State department of health, Richmond, Va.; Dr. W. B. Holton, professor of chemistry, American University; J. B. Gordon, director of sanitary engineering, and M. O. Leighton, consulting engineer.

A motion was also passed to ask the following to serve on the executive committee: Fred Small, chief engineer of Celanese Corporation of America; E. S. Hooker, of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.; Dr. Edith MacBride-Dexter, secretary of health, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; Richard Messer, director of the bureau of sanitary engineering, Virginia; Dr. A. E. McClue, State health commissioner, West Virginia; W. L. Stevenson, chief engineer, State health department, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Rev. E. P. Tivnan Dies in New York

Washington Jesuits yesterday mourned the death of the Rev. Edward P. Tivnan, S. J., president of Fordham University from 1919 to 1924. He was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday outside of the Cenacle of St. Regis in New York, where he had been conducting a retreat. He was 55.

Father Tivnan was superior of the Bellarmine House of Retreat at Cohasset, Mass., and treasurer of the Society of Jesus of New England.

A native of Salem, Mass., Father Tivnan studied at Boston College and taught chemistry there and at Fordham. Georgetown University gave him the degree of doctor of philosophy in 1917.

$80 Holdup After Request of Thief For Soap Flakes

The thief who took $80 from the cash register in the grocery store of Max Goldstein, New Jersey avenue and L street last night, was not forever blowing bubbles.

"I want," said he, entering the store, "some nice soap flakes."

Goldstein reached up on a shelf, and when he turned around he was facing a revolver.

After rifling the drawers, the bandit, described as heavy-set and colored, fled, leaving the soap chips behind.

Bayard Heights Group Renews Roads Demand

Civic Association Appeals for Paving of Its Mud Highways.

A demand, first expressed last month, that the mud roads in their section of the city be paved, was reiterated last night by the Bayard Heights Civic Association.

The condition, which, it is said, afflicts an area bounded by River road, Western avenue, Massachusetts avenue and the B & O. Railroad, was referred to the road committee for further consideration. Chairman of the roads committee is Thomas E. Kissling.

In the meantime, factual material about conditions in the Bayard Hills section is being gathered by means of a questionnaire now circulating among the members of the assbciation.

The questionnaire asks about the adequacy of roads, fire and police protection, schools and sanitation. As soon as all the questionnaires have been returned the association will present the facts to a joint meeting of the State Road Commissioners and the Montgomery County Commissioners.

As the result of the association's March meeting the County Commissioners are now making their own factual survey of the roads in the whole region.

The association draws its membership from Westmoreland Hills, Crestview, Simonville, West Haven, West Gate, Brookdale, Park Lane, Glen Cove and other nearby subdivisions now being developed. The association, youngest in Montgomery County, represents over 200 homes, and is headed by Worden Reed, of Crestview.

Senate Soon to Receive Farm Tenancy Measure

By the Associated Press.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, said yesterday his subcommittee had agreed on a farm tenancy bill and was prepared to report it to the full Senate Agriculture Committee at "a favorable time."

The measure has provisions for tenant land-buying similar to those in the Jones tenancy bill which were voted down by a House committee Wednesday.

Marriage Act Repeal Asked By McKellar

Senator Offers Bill to Eliminate Economy Law Clause.

Two Similar Measures Pending in House; Cochran Opposed.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, yesterday took up the cudgel of Government employes seeking to have section 213 of the economy act, known as the "marriage clause," repealed.

He introduced a bill for outright repeal and said he will press for prompt consideration by the proper committee. Although the bill was referred to the Appropriations Committee, it was said at McKellar's office it will be amended so as to be referred instead to the Civil Service Committee.

As Senator McKellar is an influential member of both committees, however, it is expected the bill will not lie idle.

The Senator said he had opposed enactment of the provisions when the economy act was considered in the Senate in 1932.

"I now understand that it is the only part of the economy act still unrepealed," he said, "and I think it should be eliminated."

He also stated he was informed that many persons on the Government pay roll are afraid to use their married names for fear of dismissal and that others refrain from marrying.

Although this is the first repeal bill to be introduced in the Senate this session, two are pending in the House.

The House Civil Service Committee several weeks ago reported the Celler bill for repeal with an amendment which bars new appointments if the combined salaries of members of the same family on the Government pay roll exceed $4,000.

Chairman Ramspeck has threatened to ask for a special rule on the bill, but so far the measure has been blocked.

Another bill for outright repeal is before a sub-committee of the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, but no hearings have been scheduled.

Gymnastics of Nations To Be Given at Y.M.C.A.

More than 100 persons representing 12 nations will present their native gymnastic exercises, folk dances and songs at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 7:45 o'clock.

The gymnasium will be decorated with the flags of the various countries represented on the program. Embassies and legations throughout the city aided in securing talent for the affair.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

The Huge Growth of the Motion Picture Industry Is Exemplified by the 1937 Film Daily Year Book

The New Issue of This Valuable Compilation Contains 1,264 Pages of Authentic Information Relating to All Branches of Business; Phil Lampkin to Furnish Orchestra for Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club; Cab Calloway Coming to Heat Up Loew's Capitol; The Postman Rings Twice; News Notes.

BELL.

THIS is the season of the year when the astute publishers of motion picture trade journals issue their invaluable "yearbooks"—hefty compilations of all the data a drama editor might ever need in the professional pursuit of his hectic business. They are eloquent commentaries upon the growth of the "movies" and the tremendous proportions the industry has attained during the past three decades or so.

For instance, there has just come to this desk the Film Daily Year Book of Motion Pictures for 1937. It is a monumental tome consisting of some 1,264 pages, packed tight with authentic information concerning every phase of picture-making and its allied arts and crafts. Every film company of any importance is accorded complete representation in this big book, on the front cover of which the publishers have the graciousness to inscribe the name of the recipient.

As a concrete example of the strides that are made in a single yaer of picture production, it may be cited that the 1937 Year Book lists 16,170 film titles, as opposed to 15,435 in 1936. That is a considerable number of feature titles to be deemed worthy of being kept alive in the archives of the film business. Opposite each appears the date of its production, the name of the producing company and whether it was a silent picture, part silent and part sound or all-talking.

All of the 1936 feature releases are briefly summarized in a separate section and in addition there are many pages devoted to the work of stars, authors, directors, cinematographers and the like. Over and above all this, the book contains convenient information as to birthdays and birthplaces of those asscoiated with the industry in whatever capacity.

A "Buying Guide" also constitutes a valuable portion of the book, especially for producers, exhibitors and distributors.

Altogether, this annual volume is one of the drama editor's godsends and its receipt is always one of the most welcome incidents of the year. My gratitude to Jack Alicoate and his associates on Film Daily for having remembered me again with this handsomely bound addition to the office library.

When the Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard University puts on its annual show in the Belasco Theater on Sunday night, the orchestra will be supplied by Phil Lampkin, conductor at Loew's Capitol Theater, who also conducts a successful orchestra bureau. Mr. Lampkin will not personally occupy the Belasco pit, but one of his units will. It will consist of 11 men, representing the pick of the local instrumentalists. So now you know.

The new program of short-reel features opening at the Trans-Lux Theater today will present many "clips" of local interest. Among them will be "shots" of President and Mrs. Roosevelt attending Easter services at St. Thomas Episcopal Church; the Easter-Monday egg rolling on the White House lawn; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, placing a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and "Osgood," the duck, holding up traffic while he crosses the street to play with some pigeons.

Among the national releases will be views of Canada's Governor General Tweedsmuir visiting President Roosevelt; film flashes of a desperate battle at Madeira in the Spanish Civil War; the Oxford crew finally defeating Cambridge, in England, after 13 years of defeat, and United States Navy parachute jumpers doing their stunts at Lakehurst, N. J.

Although Carolyn Henry, soprano, appearing with Bert Granoff on the Earle stage, beginning today, has played Washington before in musical comedy, Dean Herrick, the handsome young man who completes the act as pipe organist, never has visited the Capital before. Yesterday afternoon at the spirited levee tossed by the Warner Brothers executives in the Warner clubrooms in the Earle Theater Building in honor of these three, Mr. Herrick confided to your reporter that this is the first time in three years that he has been more than 10 miles from Chicago. Any young expert at the console of the Hammond electric organ who is kept so continuously busy as that must "have something," as we say in the back room. One suspects that this is going to be a pretty nice interval of music.

Harlem's hottest harmony will be brought to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater for the week beginning Friday, April 9, when Cab Calloway, the "hi-de-ho" man, and his blistering band will headline the stage portion of the entertainment.

It is promised that "Minnie the Moocher," recently sung on the screen by Grace Moore; "Eadie Was a Lady," "That Reefer Man" and all of the other unique Calloway compositions will be included in his program, along with the other weird and intoxicating rhythms embraced in this new bit of musical revelry.

Numerous specialists, as usual, will accompany Calloway to round out his Darktown Revue. It is to be hoped that outside temperatures will remain low during this engagement to cool the customers off when they come out of the theater!

When the postman rang twice yesterday cordial notes were received from Ray Henderson, of the Katharine Cornell-Guthrie McClintic organization, wondering why we were compelled to be absent from Miss Cornell's National Achievement Award ceremonies in the White House on Tuesday night, and from Dick Butler, managing director of the Hamilton Hotel, expressing similar curiosity as to why we were forced to be absent from his recent party celebrating the reunion of Milton Davis, his musical director, and Jan Garber. My thanks to them both. It is pleasant to be missed by such genial gentlemen.

• • • •

If one feels himself unable to await the coming of the Harvard Hasty Pudding Club to the Belasco Theater on Sunday night—reverting momentarily to an earlier paragraph—to see what this year's production is going to be like, he may partially assuage his impatience by gazing at the current newsreels. Scenes from the musical comedy are shown, with the son of the President acting as interlocutor—or perhaps master of ceremonies is what I mean.

Signs-of-Spring Note.

Yes, yesterday was a very elegant day—but I wouldn't go in swimming quite yet, if I were you!

Singer to Be Heard at the Earle

*When Bert Granoff returns to the stage of the Earle Theater today to headline the vaudeville bill, he will be assisted by Carolyn Henry, soprano, and Dean Herrick, organist, who recently have appeared with him in Chicago. ## Gloria Stuart Seeks Bargain In News Plant

Blonde Film Star Wishes to Buy Newspaper, but Not to Be Bilked.

By the United Press.

Hollywood, April 1.—Fifty-eight newspaper properties were offered Gloria Stuart in 60 days, but the fragile film blonde with a yen for the publishing business is still buying her papers by the copy.

"It's because of the prices," she explained. "I'm afraid I'll have to buy my paper anonymously."

Late in January this column reported that Miss Stuart was stalking a going Southern California sheet far enough from Los Angeles to avoid competition with metropolitan dailies, and that she had about $50,000 to invest.

Many Offers, No Bargains.

Since then hardly a day has passed without the actress being offered an opportunity to go into the publishing business, but she says the bargains were not so good.

"It appears film people are expected to pay double prices, even when buying a business," she mourned. "But I'm in no hurry, and when I buy a paper it will be through an agent, and on competent advice."

Stuart, who studied journalism at the University of California and has a smattering of experience as a reporter in Carmel, Calif., regards the newspaper business as a safe investment for uneasy Hollywood dollars.

She won't try to manage her paper—at least not at first—she says.

Vacations and Icepacks.

Barbara Pepper, vacationing in New York, has yielded to urging of Harry Richman, night club entertainer and her current flame, and gone to Miami, where Richman is playing, it is learned here. Insiders believe anything may happen, including matrimony.

Margot Grahame, blonde English actress, has been ordered to bed down among the icepacks for two weeks in an attempt to avoid an appendicitis operation. Grahame has an aversion to surgery, hospitals and such, and is receiving treat and such, and is receiving treatment in her home.

Two million pansy plants menaced Groucho Marx until Gwynne Wilson, official of the Santa Anita Jockey Club, was persuaded to take back his gift.

Theater Guild Proves 'Road' A New Bonanza

Greatest Profits in Years Made by Touring Plays; Next Year's Plans.

With only seven of its 22 weeks' tour completed, "Idiot's Delight," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the leading roles, now ranks as the most successful production ever sent on the road by the New York Theater Guild. The Pulitzer Prize play has broken records in every city in which it has appeared and last week topped a three-year record at the Hanna Theater in Cleveland, formerly held by Helen Hayes in "Mary of Scotland." The Lunts smashed this record gross by $2,500.

An idea of the enormous grosses being rolled up by "Idiot's Delight" may be ascertained from the following: two weeks in Philadelphia, $52,000; two weeks in Boston, $50,000; one week in Baltimore, $28,000; a split week in Providence, Hartford, Rochester and Buffalo, $33,000; one week in Cleveland, $26,500.

While the Lunts are acting in "Idiot's Delight" they are also rehearsing in a new play which the Guild has already announced for New York next season. The play is "Amphitryon" and has been adapted from the French of Jean Girardoux by S. N. Behrman, author of "End of Summer," "Biography" and "The Second Man." The Lunts will present "Amphitryon" in San Francisco and Los Angeles in June and then bring it to New York for an early fall opening.

"Jane Eyre" Also Scored.

Another Theater Guild road company terminates an extremely successful tour this Saturday night in Baltimore, when "Jane Eyre," with Katharine Hepburn, will call it a season. Miss Hepburn must return to the Coast immediately to fulfill picture obligations, but will be back in time for a New York opening in November.

Altogether "Jane Eyre" has played 14 weeks on tour. This represents the longest tour undertaken by the young motion picture star. She has been tremendously successful, garnering large grosses wherever she appeared. A four-weeks' engagement at the Erlanger Theater in Chicago grossed over $87,000 and Boston contributed $45,000 for a two-week engagement. The combined cities of St. Paul, Madison, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Columbus and Toledo grossed $53,000.

Next Season's Plays.

The Theater Guild will inaugurate its twentieth subscription season in New York this fall. Its productions will be selected from the following:

"Amphitryon" (see above).
"Jane Eyre" (see above).
"The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," a new play by Sidney Howard.
"Dame Nature," by Andre Birabeau.
"To Quito and Back," a new play by Ben Hecht.
"The King of the Mountains," by Roger Flud.

Postlude

By Rav C. B. Brown

The Four Captains of the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church present Charlotte Wallace Murray, mezzo-soprano (Dr. Eva B. Dykes, accompanist), and Todd Duncan, barytone (Cecil Cohen, accompanist), in a joint recital Thursday evening. Program of songs by Donizetti, Grieg, Brahms, Richard Strauss, Joseph Marx, Bizet, Erich Wolff, Walter Golde, Pearl Curran, Samuel Coleridge-Taylor, Cecil Cohen, Ernest Charles and Frank Bibb.

One may say in a certain sense that last night's audience welcomed wanderers home, for Charlotte Wallace Murray, a former Washingtonian, came for this recital from her church position in New York, and Todd Duncan not so long ago returned to his post at Howard University after a long engagement in the George Gershwin-DuBose Heyward opera, "Porgy and Bess." Their joint appearance gave their hearers evident pleasure and the opportunity to compare two styles of singing.

Mrs. Murray used the lyric style, which in her experienced manner of application served her well for dramatic inflections. Though her voice has lost its freshness, it has retained in the mezzo range a rich color and an appealing quality of tone. The clarity of the upper notes is sometimes affected by vibrato, and the breath support is not always firm, but the voice is full volume and has good rondure.

There was vocal skill in her reading of the Habanera from "Carmen," a skill that made lyricism do duty for the urgencies of operatic emotion. But most enjoyable were her interpretations of Strauss' "Caecilie," Wolff's "Du bist so jung" and Grieg's "Springtide." In them she showed a real feeling for lieder and a comprehension of melodic values. One approved also her choice of "The Grey Wolff," by Henry T. Burleigh, whose finest songs are neglected because he is generally thought of as an arranger of spirituals.

Mr. Duncan used the dramatic style, sometimes to the detriment of lyric subtleties. Naturally robust and vibrant, his voice lends itself almost too readily to heroic declamation, and is at present subdued with difficulty into delicacies of tone. The final phrases of the Strauss "Nachtgang" were practically inaudible, for the fine-drawn tone lacked solidity. In his full tone he leans too heavily upon portamento for his crescendo effects, with the result that his phrasing suffers a degree of obscurity.

His dramatic delivery has, however, its indubitable contagion. His climaxes are exciting, so resonant is the tone and so firmly projected. The lied is not his best medium, although he did justice to Brahms' "Von ewige Liebe" and the "Zueignung" of Strauss. He gave an excellent reading of Coleridge-Taylor's "Life and Death," and was obliged to repeat it. And, of course, he was requested to sing "I Got Plenty O' Nothin'."

Risk Their Necks at Top of the Town

George Murphy and these four pulchritudinous young chorines seem to be running hazardous risks, dancing on the cornice of a skyscraper. Perhaps they are. At any rate, that probably is the idea they wish to convey in one of the hit musical numbers from "Top of the Town," the New Universal musical which will be seen on a local screen within the next few weeks, with a staggering cast in its principal comic and vocal roles.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, April 1.

CRIME—Roy Post, the criminologist who invented the "Jury Box" game, owns a Black Light machine which sometimes, according to experts, can remove fingerprints from dead bodies. Monday at 2 a. m. friends in the Police Department phoned Post at his Great Neck home and asked him to assist in the Gedeon murder case. Because the strangulation marks were so deep, they felt his machine might be of use . . . Post went to the Homicide Squad and was told to bring his machine to the Medical Examiner's office at 9 a. m. He brought his Black Light machine, with its 1,000 pounds of equipment, to the examiner's office, set it up—and was told to wait. Three hours later he was granted permission to examine the bodies. "While you were waiting," Post was told, "we performed the autopsy" . . . The criminologist packed his equipment and left—for once blood is drawn from the bodies the machine is useless.

LABOR—Leigh White, who was associated with Tide Magazine, secured a job with Doubleday, Doran two weeks ago as publicity director for that publishing house. This week he resigned—explaining that he was finding the job much too tough . . . The day after his resignation became effective, White was on his way to Spain for another job—with the Hemingway-Dos Passos Ambulance Unit fighting for the Loyalists!

• • • •

PUZZLEMENT—During his recent tour Toscha Seidel, the violinist, stopped to visit some friends in North Carolina. The children in his friend's house asked Seidel to come with them into the backyard to inspect their pet dog . . . "Oh," said one of the youngsters, "this puppy's our favorite. We call him Guy Lombardo" . . . Seidel wrinkled his brow. "Guy Lombardo?" he repeated slowly. "Such a funny name—even for a doggie!"

• • • •

TRIUMPH—Abe Lyman just flew in from Miami Beach. Two hours after the plane had taken off, Lyman drew a cigar from his pocket and started to light it . . . "Just a minute, please," the uniformed aide interrupted, "a passenger isn't permitted to smoke a cigar unless the others consent" . . . Abe sat in his seat, nervous and pleading, while the passengers were asked: "Would you feel all right if the man in Seat 7 smoked a cigar?" . . . All the passengers were polled and gave their consent . . . Lyman grinned, smoked up—and got sick!

• • • •

PLIGHT—A few weeks ago the largest phonograph store in London received an order from the villa of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers in Cannes—where Mrs. Simpson has been their guest—for six recordings made by Hildegarde . . . The order was an unusual one—six copies of the same record—and was marked "RUSH" . . . The name of the record is "Why Don't They Leave Us Alone."

• • • •

CONFESSION—At Hugh Rennie's party last week-end the theatrical folk present entered into a discussion about dancing. When the arguments became exciting, the host turned to George Tobias, who portrays the dancing master in the Kaufman-Hart play, "You Can't Take It With You" . . . "Tell us," Tobias was asked, "what do you think of all this?" . . . "Listen," he answered, "what I don't know about dancing could fill a George S. Kaufman play!"

COMPETITION—The members of the Players Club have made it a habit to go from the club quarters at Gramercy Park to Barney Gallant's, in the Village nearby . . . Norman Anthony, head of The Players, decided that this custom was cutting into the food-and-drink revenues of the clubhouse. He therefore called a special meeting of the rules committee and asked for a resolution that the members be urged to wine and dine at the clubhouse exclusively. The committee was unanimous in agreeing and the resolution was passed forthwith. To celebrate this occasion, the committee immediately adjourned—to Barney Gallant's!

Contract Bridge

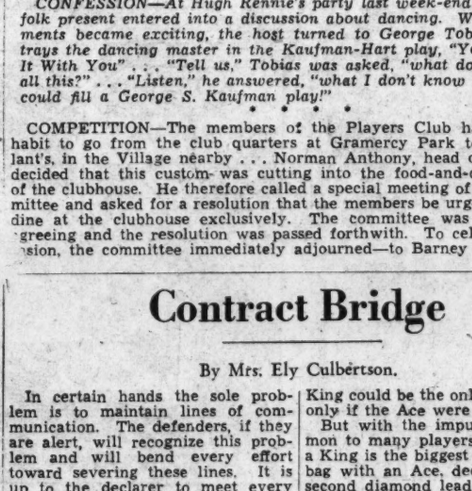
By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

In certain hands the sole problem is to maintain lines of communication. The defenders, if they are alert, will recognize this problem and will bend every effort toward severing these lines. It is up to the declarer to meet every thrust with the proper parry.

Today's hand is a very simple example of how communication lines can be either destroyed or maintained.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♣ | Pass | 1 ◇ | Pass |
| 2 N T | Pass | 3 N T | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

South's rebid was on the aggressive side, but perhaps as good a rebid as he could find.

West opened the Jack of spades; declarer won, and immediately began establishment of the diamond suit. West could see no good reason for covering the Jack in view of dummy's solidity, and East made the excellent play of letting the Jack hold the trick.

East saw the possibility that declarer had started with only two diamonds—the Jack and a small one—and if that were true, dummy's entire suit might be shut out by the hold up of the Queen. To accept the Queen at the first lead would merely leave declarer with a winning finesse against West's probable King.

With the Jack of Diamonds holding the trick, declarer continued with a low diamond, and when West's King appeared it should have been the easiest matter in the world for declarer to have conceded a trick. He certainly should have seen that an entry in dummy outside of the diamond suit itself was mighty problematical—the club King could be the only one and that, only if the Ace were "on side."

But with the impulsiveness common to many players who feel that a King is the biggest game they can bag with an Ace, declarer won the second diamond lead with the Ace, and played a third round to clear the suit. After that he could never redeem himself.

East won and shifted to a low heart. A club was now led to the King, but East snatched up this trick and led another low heart. The club suit was still not cleared, and when West gained the lead with his Jack a third round of hearts presented East with two heart tricks which, in addition to the two clubs and one diamond already taken, defeated the contract.

President Opposes $300,000,000 Grant

By the Associated Press.

Representative Beiter (Democrat), New York, reported yesterday that President Roosevelt is against a proposed new $300,000,000 public works appropriation but favors extending PWA so that it may use $155,000,000 now on hand.

The New Yorker headed a group of six House Democrats who proposed the new appropriation to the President. The delegation contended the appropriation, with $155,000,000 in PWA'S existing revolving fund, would be about enough to carry out 2,964 projects already approved by the Administration.

Jury Convicts Read in W.Va. Torch Slaying

Sentenced to Hang on July 9 for Dollman Murder.

They (Kirby and Gingell) made me the instigator so that they could get off with second degree murder or with a lighter sentence."

Judge Fisher ordered the defendant to stand up. As the jurist passed the first death sentence of his career, Read's knees buckled and he dropped back into a chair.

State police took charge of Read, and with Gingell and Kirby, started back to Charleston. Read, a resident of Four Corners, Md., is under life sentence in Kanawha County for abducting and robbing P. P. Wilson. Gingell and Kirby pleaded guilty to that count and also to robbing Harold Casto, filling station operator. Sentence was deferred, however.

The verdict came after Pierson argued the State had failed to prove that it was Dollman's body which was found in the burning automobile. He contended the State had not shown that the salesman was even in Braxton County at the time.

Duffield cited the testimony of Kirby and Gingell about how Dollman offered to help them get gasoline for their car, stalled near Gassaway, saying:

"Dollman was killed for no good reason. He was a good Samaritan who was brutally murdered."

John J. Hoeppel, Ex-Congressman, Is Up for Parole

Former Congressman John J. Hoppel, who with his son, Charles, was convicted of conspiracy to sell a West Point appointment, will be eligible for parole today when he faces the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole.

Sentenced on November 25, 1936, in District Court for violation of Section 88, Title 18, the two men have been in jail at Lorton Reformatory, for a short period beyond their minimum sentence, which was 4 months. They were given indeterminate sentences of four months to one year.

It is believed they will be released from jail shortly, inasmuch as it is the custom of the Parole Board to tender leniency toward prisoners serving time for a first offense.

Clew Is Sought In Sewer in N.Y. Triple Slaying

have inflicted the fatal head wounds found on Byrnes' body.

Announcement of the sewer and plumbing searches indicated the authorities were not yet satisfied they had found the missing weapon.

Several short threads of red knitting yarn embedded in a strip of adhesive tape found on the models' nude body were sent to the police laboratory for study. Lieut. Harding termed them an "important clew."

Police announced they were searching for a brown suit which disappeared from Gedeon's wardrobe. They also were looking for his hat, which he said he lost while drinking beer Saturday night, and for the mate to a man's glove picked up in the murder apartment.

Miss Gedeon and her 54-year-old mother, Mary, both of whom were beaten and strangled to death by the intruder who plunged a blade into Byrnes' head as he slept, were buried in a Yonkers cemetery.

Refuse to Be Sifted.

Lieut. Harding declared the sewer refuse will be washed down and sifted in the belief the killer may have used this means of disposing of his weapon.

Harding said the knitting threads found on Miss Gedeon's body already had been compared with upholstery materials used in Gedeon's shop, and found not to tally. He declined to say why he regarded them as an important clew.

Gedeon, who liked to swagger through East Side barrooms boasting of his strength and his prowess at bowling, daubed briefly at his eyes when he attended the funeral services for his slain wife and daughter.

Escort Battles Crowds.

His escort of formally dressed detectives had to battle a path through the crowds outside the funeral chapel when they emerged to follow the hearses to the cemetery.

Information that Gedeon had been in the habit of entertaining women in the room behind his upholstery shop was attributed by Lieut. Harding to Mrs. Eugene Perry, an interior decorator who shared his business quarters.

The five women sought were identified merely as "Little Ruth," "Big Ruth," Rose, Ethel and Bertha. Harding said the woman known as "Little Ruth," a 35-year-old blonde of Slavic or Hungarian descent, had lived at the place for about a month, leaving a week before the triple killing.

The woman known as Rose was described as an Egyptian.

Fingerprints Valueless.

The significance of what were announced as bloody fingerprints on the bedclothing in the apartment faded when laboratory workers announced they were too smudged to be of value. A single thumb print found on the bathroom door was checked against the prints of every person questioned in the case thus far, investigators said, and found to be dissimilar.

Gedeon's stamina under hours of questioning, during which he has protested volubly that he "wouldn't kill my own family," amazed his weary interrogators.

Capt. Reynolds said two Hungarian-speaking detectives were brought into the police station tonight to talk to Gedeon, who came to this country from Hungary 38 years ago and was naturalized in 1929.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, April 1.—Today I shall play a master stroke and answer a great many letters with these few paragraphs. There have been scores of inquiries from readers who have noticed that current pictures often have subtitles announcing that "plots and characters are fictional." Readers want to know why.

Studios do this to avoid the responsibility of picking on real people. Folks are often sensitive about their names. I am not, because with a handle like Fidler I have long since become inured to smart cracks. But for years previous to the movies, novelists and playwrights encountered protests from individuals whose names they had inadvertently appropriated.

The film industry has fallen heir to this woe, because it is practically impossible to invent a set of character-names without matching at least a few in real life. Frequently the real life owners of these names threaten suit if they think they are presented in unfavorable light.

I received a lasting chuckle out of this little story about Gloria Swanson because I am a house putterer-abouter, and painting things is my special forte. Not long ago Gloria decided to redecorate the patio of her home. She found some chairs and tables among the props left from the ill-fated "Queen Kelly" (the picture into which she sank a million, a picture never finished). "I liked being able to salvage something from the remains," Gloria explained in telling me this story.

Wishing to renovate the frnuiture, she bought $11 worth of assorted paints. The following day she sent her chauffeur for more. The third day the chauffeur again showed up for a re-order. This time the store owner, knowing he had supplied Miss Swanson with enough paint to cover a house, made a personal investigation. He discovered that Gloria had been using the gooey basic paint without mixing it with turpentine. "And all the time I was wondering," Gloria laughed, "why the stuff went on like chewing gum."

Movies tried for a while to concoct outlandish appellations in order to avoid trouble. That proved worse than ever, because people with distinctive names were more certain than ever that they were being preyed upon. For example, when Jack Oakie played film characters named Voltaire McGinnis and Littleton Looney, he drew indignant protests from men with those exact names.

Elmer Bilits once traveled across the country to poke Buster Keaton on the nose for playing a character by that title. Not long ago a studio manager ordered destroyed a lot of signs with the printed slogan: DEFEAT AMBROSE ABERCROMBIE FOR MAYOR. It so happens that the film official had an actual friend by that name who, strangely enough, was running for public office.

Fancy Skater Will Perform For Shoreham

Ballroom Floor Will Be Sheet of Ice for Entire Week.

By Chanticleer.

Skating on thin air is an oft-used expression, but have you ever heard of dancing on ice? Or isn't there any connection? Gardner Moore, manager of the Shoreham Hotel, sends word that the dance floor of his main ballroom will be a sheet of ice for one entire week beginning April 19. There'll be no ice skates allowed, either . . . that is, for the patrons. The reason for this unusual feature is that week's entertainment. The Ice Carnival.

Miss Evelyn Chandler, who has delighted audiences from St. Moritz to the Dallas Fair with her fancy skating, is the headliner of the show. Miss Chandler has dazzled thousands of people in the last few years and a thrill is in store for the Shorehamites who call on Barnee's show place that week. Featured with her are Bruce Mapes, her doubles partner; Bobby Hearn, barrel-jumping champion, and a line of eight Franchon and Marco girl skaters.

The newly patented ice which was used in a recent motion-picture production in Hollywood, permits the most intricate skating evolutions and yet is suitable for ballroom dancing. Don't forget to bring your ear muffs.

Arthur Warren, genial maestro at the Wardman Park's Metronome room, adds Oriental folk songs to his rumba rhythms. It all happened when he heard some Japanese recordings one evening and he was intrigued no end. ## Tire Lot Fire Ties Up Traffic; Three Injured transportation they could appropriate.

Thousands of Spectators Are Attracted to Scene of Spectacular Blaze.

The tire lot, property of Hyman Viener & Son, occupies about two blocks along the west right of way of the main railroad artery leading into Union Station. Although the smoke partially obscured safety signals at this point, service was not affected, railway officials asserted.

Cause Not Determined.

Early last night authorities had not determined the cause of the fire, though both the senior Viener and his son, Joseph, said they were sure it was set by urchins who persist in using the yard for a playground in spite of warnings to stay out.

Joseph Viener, who lives at 2301 Fifteenth street northwest, turned in the first alarm after a passerby reported the fire to him. Subsequent alarms were rung at boxes at First and M, Third and K and North Capitol and L streets.

The father and son, aided by a dozen workmen, attempted to fight the flames with extinguishers but they were soon driven off by the intense heat. The fire had gained a fierce start by the time the first fire hose began to play on the raging heap of rubber.

Every police inspector available was dispatched to the scene, along with every motorcycle man, the entire day force of the Traffic Division and practically the full personnel of the First, Second and Ninth precincts.

At least 100 firemen, directed by Deputy Chief John Carrington, poured water on the flaming pile, hooked burning tires and flung them into the numerous mud puddles that sprung up all around, took precautions against the flames spreading to nearby warehouses.

Near Gas Tanks.

Scarcely 100 yards away was the Diamond Cab garage and service lot with huge quanaities of oil and gasoline in storage. Nearby, too, were the plant of Swift & Co., the Palais Royal warehouse, the Washington Terminal warehouse and an ice cream plant.

Hose lines thrown across North Capitol street, a block and a half away, paralyzed street car traffic for a considerable length of time. To aggravate the situation, simple enough as far as control of the fire itself was concerned but made highly complicated by lines of "stuck" vehicles in a radius of half a mile, another fire was reported nearby at the height of the jam.

At 32 I street northwest the third floor attic in the home of Mrs. Ophelia Wright, colored, caught fire. Apparatus rushed there from the tire lot blaze four blocks away. Twenty persons were driven into the street from the I street address.

Traffic Delayed.

To fight this blaze, firemen had to lay hose over the North Capitol street car tracks at the I street intersection, delaying rush-hour traffic until a trestle could be thrown up. The trolleys then proceeded under the arch of fire hose.

Hyman Viener, who said his loss is partly covered by insurance, commutes here daily from his home in Charles Town, W. Va. He has been in business in Washington about ten years, buying discarded tires from dealers and shipping them to factories for reduction.

Only a few hours before the fire his men had finished loading a 15-ton carload of tires, which stood safely on a siding as firemen attacked the mammoth blaze.

Deaths in Tourist Cabin Called Murder, Suicide

Norfolk, Va., April 1 (AP).—Coroner L. C. Ferebee entered a verdict of murder and suicide today in the deaths of a man and woman found in a tourist cabin near here last night after muffled shots had been heard. A pistol with two exploded catridges was found beside the bodies.

The man was identified by the coroner as Berry S. Dail. Ferebee said the woman was known as Catherine Dail and had been living with Dail, but that a relative of the woman, whom he declined to name, had told him the couple were not married.

Ward Committeewomen Accused in Kansas City

Kansas City, April 1 (AP).—A Federal grand jury investigating vote-fraud charges reached a step higher in official ranks today and accused two ward committeewomen among 18 additional persons named in new indictments.

Ninety persons were indicted previously, including precinct officials and party workers. Today's indictments named 24 persons, but 6 of them had been indicted before.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, April 1.

FOR SOME TIME I have been wondering just when the parental worms would turn upon some of the more "modern" forms of education now in vogue in many public schools. The first attack of this type has now been launched by several hundred parents in the fine old town of Roslyn, Long Island. They have circulated and signed a petition demanding a return to the fundamental three Rs of the little red schoolhouse—and stop this new-fangled nonsense!

ALICE HUGHES.

These embattled citizens, led by Town Clerk Mortimer H. Conklin, charge that such educational foundation stones as readin', writin', 'rithmetic, spellin' and history have been comparatively neglected in favor of more high-falutin' psychological "activities and projects," as the pedagogues call them. They further allege that their youngsters are no longer given homework—so helpful in keeping the Young Idea off the streets and out of mischief. And placid Roslyn is in a nervous and high-strung state, I tell you!

Frederick Wegner, superintendent of schools, has rallied to the defense of the present educational methods, saying that his charges have no difficulty in breaking into high school and college, and that his ways are those now used by all modern American elementary schools.

This is a live controversial subject everywhere, I don't doubt. Countless thousands of moms and pops must feel that what was good enough for them is good enough for their offspring. And perhaps the modernization of elementary book-larnin' has gone a bit daffy in spots. I imagine that the proper dose for the kids is a happy medium somewhere between the old and the new. Meanwhile, the Battle of Roslyn rages on! It's an interesting test case!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN — The most violently stage-struck girl in town today is Lillian Emerson. Lil really doesn't have to work, but she's absolutely stage-daffy, as her record proves. She has now appeared in 13 shows, only one of which had a modest success. But she keeps punching! . . .

Culture rages, now and then, among our night-club cuties. Now a sorority of these girls who are also college graduates has been formed under the presidency of Harriet Brent, Hunter, '36, and called Gamma Nu. Harriet prances at the Hotel Piccadilly. Its purpose, she tells me, is "to elevate the morals and intelligence of night-club entertainment." Pardon me briefly while I enjoy a small snicker. I want to see Harriet entertaining an old tired businessman with her morals and intelligence! . . .

Speaking of these nocturnal babes, Heloise Martin, who got all that weird publicity out at Drake in Des Moines, is already back on Broadway, kicking up at the Hollywood Restaurant at $60 the seven days. Not much gravy for all that space in the papers! . . .

• • • •

We scored another little cultural triumph the other day, so chalk it up in the boxscore. Edith Henrick and Helen Frith Stickney, both local girls, took first and second prizes in the annual meeting of the Poetry Society of America. I think all male poets are now in the advertising business! . . .

My pet domestic brawl of the spring was that enjoyed by the Edward Fagans of Yonkers. Himself came home at 2 a. m. and asked Herself for a kind loan of 50 cents. On being refused, he kept Mary up half the night demanding the half dollar, and the whole thing ended in a slapping bee, with Eddie finally marched off to the bastille. My goodness, how he must have needed those four bits, is my thought on the matter. What on earth for?

Tap Dancing Self-Taught

UP ON HER TOES! That's May. Now that tap dancing's the rage, she tap dances.

She learned all by herself from diagrams.

The Slap is one of the lively tap steps she uses in her waltz clog and buck dances. It's a combination of two basic steps, the Front Tap and the Straight Tap, done in swift succession with the same foot: 1. Lift right foot back off the floor. 2. Strike ball of foot sharply on the floor to make a clear tapping sound. 3 and 4. Raise foot a few inches from floor and stamp directly downward with ball of foot. Be careful that the heel doesn't touch the floor.

Though you need limber ankles for top-notch tap dancing, the sharp, clear taps come mostly from strong knee and thigh action.

The six basic taps are easy as pie to learn from the simple diagrams and directions of our 40-page booklet, "Tap Dancing and New Variations in Social Dances."

bition dances of waltz clog and buck. Or combine the basic steps to duplicate tap dances you see on stage or screen.

You'll love the exciting new fox-trot, waltz, ruumba and tango steps. Learn ballroom etiquet, too—the smooth, gracious things to say and do at dances.

Send 15c for our booklet, "Tap Dancing and New Variations in Social Dances," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Same Frock in Two Smart Versions

Spring Frocks Serve Dual Role; Doff Their Jackets for Summer

By Ethel Ehlen,

The Post Fashion Editor.

IF YOU ARE practical-minded, there are numerous clothes in the spring collections which are not only versatile enough to serve for a variety of occasions now, but with white or pastel accessories, will be equally suitable to wear during the summer. Such a costume is the simple-jacketed frock, whose accompanying coat is fashioned of self-material. Because it is fitted to the figure, it can conveniently be worn under either the fur coat or the new spring topcoat. When the weather becomes warmer, it is an ideal lightweight suit to wear with fur scarfs. If the material happens to be silk crepe instead of sheer wool, minus the jacket, the one-piece frock is grand for summer, particularly if the sleeves are short. A navy or black, or a print with a dark ground, is equally effective with white shoes, bag and gloves for summer, or dark or bright accessories for spring. For traveling now or during the summer, a costume of this type is ideal; it is smart looking, not too heavy and doesn't have that wilted appearance that more complicated and dressier outfits are prone to acquire.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Some of the greatest triumphs of civilization pass by us unnoticed. Sit-down strikes, Constitutional reform and the abdication of the British King all excite us—they all give a sort of impression of getting somewhere. But whether they constitute progress or not, they appear to me to shrink into infinitesimal dimensions compared to the fact that after the most disastrous river flood in our hitsory, when millions of people were homeless and in want, huddled together in temporaray living quarters, we have not heard of a smallpox epidemic following in the wake of that calamity.

It is something unique in history. In former days the one disaster would inevitably have followed the other. The smallpox; would have been worse than the flood. Now so used are we to smallpox protection, nobody even noticed it.

When I visited a large drug manufacturing house, while the flood was at its height, the decks were cleared to grow as much smallpox virus as possible and send it immediately to the flood district. Perhaps that had something to do with the result.

There is only one way to prevent smallpox, and that is to carry out universal vaccination on every new human being who comes into the world. In principle, it is done just as Edward Jenner recommended in 1798, but we have improved the details.

Jenner's idea, you remember, was that the disease called cowpox, which occurred on the udders of cows, if inoculated beneath the skin of a human being, would result in a mild disease which rendered the individual immune so that he would never catch smallpox. How this acted he did not known. He knew cowpox inoculation never produced real smallpox. People who were vaccinated could move around among their fellows and not spread the disease.

To obtain the virus which was used for vaccination, Jenner advocated growing it on the skin of a calf; he knew it had to be grown on some animal—calf or man—and he thereby anticipated one of the latest developments in medicine.

Attempts to grow vaccine on dead media, as we grow other germs, have all failed. And that is because we regard vaccinia as that new kind of a germ, a filterable virus, and filterable viruses grow only on living tissue.

The usual animal tissue used to grow them is chicken embryo. They open up the shell of an egg that has been incubated a few days and grow the virus on that—the virus of the common cold, for instance.

Chronic Colds In Child Mean Future Trouble

System Is Depleted and Later Ill Health Is Stored Up.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

ONE YEAR the fourth grade had a succession of colds. The next year it was the fifth, the next the sixth. Some of the colds were serious, all of them interfered with good work, and most of them could have been prevented, had parents and teachers alike been exercised enough to find out just where the focus of infection was hidden.

Tommy Smith, or rather Tommy's parents, were responsible for nearly all of them. He was one of those children who seems to have a chronic cold. The only difference between one week and the next was that sometimes his cold was worse than others. His parents poohed-poohed them all.

"Just little colds. A shame to have him miss school for a running nose. Why, he'd be absent half the time if we paid attention to such trifles and kept him at home."

Tommy was always below par, however, and unable to do his best work, so in the long run gained nothing by his persistent attendance. Furthermore, his system was being depleted and he was storing up ill health for the future. Had he been put to bed and properly treated for a few colds, he probably would have stopped having them once and for all, instead of dragging himself about in a half-sick condition all winter long and sometimes all summer, too.

If he had had measles or scarlet fever, or even German measles, he would have been forced to stay at home. But because he had only a common cold, he was permitted to be a public menace.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Boy and Girl Love Each Other But See No Prospect of Marrying; Should They End Friendship?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a constant reader of your column and I believe that you can help me with my problem. I am a girl of 18 very much in love with a boy of 20. I also know that he is in love with me for he would do anything in the world to please me. We have been going together for a little over a year now. I see him once a week—very seldom oftener than that. We really do not go together steady—at least we say we don't. Still, I know he hasn't had a date with anyone else since he started going with me, and while I go out with other fellows, I do so very seldom.

• • • •

This boy doesn't seem to know just what he wants to do in the way of working. While in school, he studied a little of everything and now he sees his mistake. He has a small job now but expects to lose that very soon. I am not working, as I cannot find a job. Being in love, naturally we have talked of marriage. But both of us are sensible enough to realize that we couldn't live on his small salary; or marry and take a chance on having no income at all. We know we will just have to wait until we can see our way more clearly.

• • • •

My problem is this: my parents and several friends, although thinking this boy very nice, advise me to stop seeing him because of his unpromising future. Others encourage me to go on seeing him. Miss Haworth, please advise me as to whether or not I should continue this friendship. Knowing you will help me. I remain. TROUBLED.

• • • •

The Thing to Do.

DEAR TROUBLED: I agree with your parents and certain of your friends that this boy is a very poor matrimonial prospect, to say the least; but I do not see the necessity of breaking off your friendship with him because of that fact. Can you not agree that marriage is utterly out of the question and continue to be friends on a basis of deep affection and respect? And I mean friends in the sense of seeing each other occasionally, without feeling conscience-bound to have no other friends of the opposite sex.

• • • •

Under the circumstances, the only sensible thing to do is to remain completely alive to the fact that there are other attractive, interesting persons in the world of your own age and kind, and exert your respective selves to the utmost to meet those persons. It would be the height of folly to expect each to be all-in-all to the other, since there is little likelihood you can ever marry. To do so is to dig your own social graves, as it were; to bury yourselves in a dismal rut that leads exactly nowhere.

• • • •

A young man of 20 who is fitted for no particular occupation, who doesn't even know what he wants to do, and who is about to lose whatever job he has, is in no position to be speaking of marriage. This is wishful thinking of a most preposterous variety. You would be doing him something of a favor, I have no doubt, in pooh-poohing his serious lovemaking, since he is just about as inadequate to the responsibilities of marriage as a babe-in-arms would be. He needs to be jolted into doing some serious thinking about his own future. When he has it definitely charted, it will be time enough for him to give thought to a life partner.

• • • •

As for yourself, I daresay you would see this youngtser in an entirely different and less significant light if you had a good job which brought you into daily contact with young men who were on the way to amounting to something, so to speak. He may be good-looking, charming, persuasive, lovable in all the social ways, but if he lacks purpose, drive and a certain sense of direction in life—as he seems to—he isn't much of a person to pin one's faith in. My advice to you is to get love and marriage out of your mind for the next two or three years, and see what you can do about standing on your own feet and making your own way in the world. A girl who can be economically self-sufficient is better prepared to make a wise choice of life partner—and usually has a better selection to choose from—than the stay-at-home girl who catches as catch can. M. H.

Colorful Crowd Gathers For Party of Bankheads

Speaker and Senator and Their Wives Stage First Joint Reception in Capital; Notables From Social and Diplomatic Life Attend.

By Dudley Harmon.

Yesterday, for the first time during their many years in Washington, the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead and Senator and Mrs. John Bankhead entertained at a joint party. It was a reception held at the Mayflower by the two brothers and their wives, and was attended among others by scores of diplomats and members of Congress.

The hosts received at the entrance to the Chinese room before a mass of greenery with an occasional Easter lily peeping through the palms and ferns. In fact, there were more floral decorations at this party than at almost any other afternoon reception so far this season. Spring flowers were everywhere, and in the center of the long table was an enormous vase of pink and yellow snapdragons. The patriotic touch was supplied by streamers of red, white and blue ribbon suspended from the vase.

Black, Prints Predominate.

Practically all the women present wore black or spring prints, except the hostesses. Mrs. William Bankhead chose for the occasion a brown crepe frock with inserts of tulle, and an orchid corsage, and her sister-in-law wore a gown of the same shade with a lame bodice and yellow roses. Both families make their home at the Mayflower.

Several women prominent in official life took turns at pouring tea and coffee. First were Mrs. Cordell Hull and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, who were followed successively by Mrs. Claude A. Swanson and Mrs. Hugo Black, wife of Senator Black; Mrs. Theodore Benson and Mrs. James Byrnes, wife of Senator Byrnes.

Mme. van Haersma de With, wife of The Netherlands Minister, dropped in for a few minutes, wearing a silver fox scarf with her bronze-colored gown and a small hat with a nose veil. Other guests from diplomatic ranks were Lady Marler, wife of the Canadian Minister—Lord Tweedsmuir, for whom she and the Minister entertained at dinner last evening, was a visitor at the White House yesterday afternoon—and the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi.

Notables Present.

Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, recently elected president of the Women's National Democratic Club, was present, wearing a beaver scarf with her black crepe dress. Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby and Mrs. Emil Hurja were other prominent Democratic Club members present.

Mrs. Sol Bloom, in black satin and a silver fox cape, was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Vera Bloom, whose black costume was topped by a printed blouse. Among others from the Congressional set present were Senator and Mrs. James P. Pope, Representative and Mrs. John W. Gwynne, Representative and Mrs. John R. Murdock, Mrs. Maury Maverick, wife of Representative Maverick; Mrs. Millard Tydings, in a polka dot frock with which she wore a small sailor hat of black and white straw, with flowers on the brim, and Representative and Mrs. Ralph Brewster.

Some of the other guests were Mrs. Emerson Howe, Mrs. Hugh Butler, Mrs. Ernest Daniels, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. W. C. Fitts and Mrs. Leland Conness.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Residential

Representative and Mrs. Allard P. Gasque have had as their guests in their apartment at the Mayflower their sons, Cadet Allard Gasque, jr., of the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., and Cadet Thomas Gasque, who is a student at Augusta Military Academy, and their friend, Cadet Frank Brand, who is a classmate of Cadet Gasque at the Citadel.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Russel Waesche entertained a company of friends at dinner Wednesday evening in the Pall Mall Room of the Hotel Raleigh. Their guests included Rear Admiral and Mrs. H. C. Hamlet, Capt. and Mrs. William Munter and Capt. and Mrs. Harvey Johnson.

Mrs. L. Corrin Strong returned to Washington yesterday from New York, where she stopped at the St. Regis Hotel.

Mrs. Kurt Hetzel has returned from a brief stay in New York.

Former Representative Frank Murphy, of Ohio, with Mrs. Murphy and their son, Billy, are at the Hotel Traymore in Atlantic City for a week or ten days. Then they will go to their home in Steubenville, Ohio, for a brief visit, returning to Washington about April 15.

Mr. Clare H. Timberlake, Third Secretary of the United States Legation in Uruguay, is stopping at the Carlton during his stay in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Whitney, of New York City, are here for a visit and they are occupying a suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Dr. Mussey Memorial Stirs Keen Interest Here

Women Lawyers, Civic and Club Leaders Are Active in Arranging Meeting for May 13; College Women Hold Stunt Night.

Many of the late Dr. Ellen Spencer Mussey's "girls," the women lawyers, civic and club leaders who studied law under her or assisted her in many civic projects in Washington, are taking keen interest in the Mussey Memorial meeting, to be held in Memorial Continental Hall May 13.

Mrs. Mussey wrote her name high on the scroll of fame of Washington women. She wrote many of the bills giving more rights to women. She established the first law school in the District admitting women to the classes, now the Washington College of Law, a coeducational legal institution. She always was a leader in the patriotic work of the D. A. R. and was one of the most active members in raising the funds for Memorial Continental Hall, where the memorial services for her will be held.

Mrs. Mussey also was one of the organizers of the Woman's City Club and it is a committee of that club that is making the arrangements for the memorial.

Among those attending the preliminary committee meeting Tuesday at the Woan's City Club were Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, chairman; Miss Florence C. Bell, secretary; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the Woman's City Club; Mrs. Grace Hayes Riley, dean of the Washington College of Law; Judge Mary O'Toole, Miss Ella F. Downing and Miss Emma F. Hayward.

Members of the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women, presented their stunt party last night with the theme of the stunts interesting events of last year. The clubhouse was decorated with spring flowers. A buffet supper was served before the party, under the direction of Mrs. A. B. Gunnarson assisted by Dr. Sara Branham, Mrs. Marshall Harris, Mrs. Thomas Groover, Mrs. Joseph Owen, Mrs. Lee Park and Katherine Murray.

Mrs. Leslie Whitten and Mrs. Thomas D. Lewis were hostesses for the stunt party. Mrs. Robert Oleson, as "Mrs. Bizzytimes," won much applause as the announcer. Mrs. Winters Haydock as "Bertha Bizzybody" assisted Mrs. Oleson.

President, Marguerite Merigold; first vice president, Inez Sheldon Tyler; second vice president, Phronsie Irene Marsh; recording secretary, Clara Manderschied; corresponding secretary, Mary Meek Atkeson Moore; treasurer, Nellie Walker Irish; historian, Ruby Nevins; registrar, Helen Orr Watson; librarian, Katharine Hinton Wootten; auditor, Agnes Shirley Winn; legal adviser, Helen Sherry Rhoade; parliamentarian, Edna Knight Gasch.

Sponsors for its special Saturday morning moving picture programs for children, announced by the Junior Cinema Guild, are Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the board of education; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Landon Banfield, of the Landon School for Boys; the Misses Maret, of the Maret School; Mrs. Charles Warren, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, jr., Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, Mrs. Robert Howe Fletcher, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Draper, Mrs. Donald Richmerg, Miss Bertie Backus and Miss Mabel Cook, executive of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A.

The third program in the guild series of four this season is to be given tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, at the Rialto Theater. The feature will be "Dog of Flanders" and there will be selected short subjects. The final program will be at the Rialto Saturday morning, April 17.

If the response to the series justifies the demand, the Junior Cinema Guild plans to present similar programs on Saturday mornings throughout next winter except on those mornings when the Children's Theater brings a play to Washington or when the National Symphony Orchestra has a students' concert scheduled.

Mrs. Leon Marshall, 7007 Rolling road, Chevy Chase, Md., will be the hostess for the next meeting of the Book Review Club of the Woman's Guild of American University Monday, at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Delos O. Kinsman, wife of the head of the economics department of American University, will review Gulbransen's "Beyond Sing the Woods."

Mrs. Charles I. Stengle, wife of former Representative Stengle of New York, who now is president of the American Federation of Government employes, entertained at a bridge luncheon yesterday at the Congressional Club.

'Society Circus' Largest Ever Held at Cavalry Post; White House Dinner Guests Attend; Maj. and Mrs. Campbell Entertain Group.

By Lynda Reeve.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, with a party of guests, were among those who formed the brilliant audience for the opening performance of "Hoofprints"—The Saga of Horses and Riders Through the Ages—presented last night in the riding hall at Fort Myer. Members of the garrison and leading equestriennes of the Capital formed the cast for the spectacle, which was the largest and most elaborate ever given at the cavalry post.

The program opened at 8:30 o'clock. The great white Pegasus led the horses of history. Then came the Greek charioteers; Genghis Khan and his followers; the Amazons, in scarlet and white—portrayed by Miss Katherine Pearson, Miss Gertrude Pearson, Miss Mary Agnes Young, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Miss Ella Garrett and Miss Mary Crane—Napoleon and Josephine, George Washington and his family and group of friends and finally the wagon train heading westward and the Indians on their swift ponies.

Show Grows Yearly.

The annual show, which grew out of the Friday rides, has become larger each year. When the debutantes of Washington first began participating in the "society circus," they were simply costumed in black riding coats and white breeches. Within the last few years the costuming and staging has been more carefully planned until, under the guiding hand of Maj. George Millholland and Capt. John Reybold, the event has developed into the brilliant spectacle now presented.

In the pageant are Philip of Macedon, with his wife, Olympias, played by Mrs. Thomas Trapnell, and their son, Alexander, who conquers the unridable horse Bucephalus, by facing him into the sun so he can not see his shadow, and then riding him without a bridle. After this his soldiers put their mounts through a similar drill. Cortez, and his followers, who introduced the first horses to the Americas, are represented by a troop in glistening cuirasses, followed by two sandal-shod priests—the eternal combination of sword and cross. Napoleon puts his artillery through a strenuous ride before leaving for Moscow, while Josephine watches from the reviewing stand. The thundering caissons weave a lighting pattern between blazing torches.

A Real Circus.

Not to be outdone by Barnum and Bailey, "Hoofprints" has an "honest-to-goodness" circus, with a frisky elephant, "Kiko;" the trained lion; men on flying trapezes, hilarious clowns, and finally a human cannon ball.

One of the stars of the show, Mrs. John Meade, who plays the part of the widow in the covered wagon scene, smokes a corncob pipe as she nonchalantly handles her team, and then saves the wagon train from the Indians by her mad dash on horseback, for aid. She returns with the cavalry, which arrived in the nick of time to the anachronistic rattle of machine guns, closing the spectacle.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were among the earlier arrivals at the show. They were accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. C. K. Leith, Miss Elizabeth Peabody, Miss Victoria Hartwell, Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley Parker, Mr. Sandy Parker, Mrs. William Barclay Parsons, jr., Miss Rose Peabody Parsons, Mr. Hall Roosevelt, Mr. Bernard Baruch and Miss Marguerite LeHand, all of whom had been previously entertained at dinner in the White House.

Guests of the Campbells.

Maj. and Mrs. George B. Campbell had as their guests Lieut. Col. and Mrs. John A. Smith, Maj. and Mrs. Arnold W. Shutter and Maj. and Mrs. Thomas H. Greene, all of whom they had entertained at dinner at the Rixey Mansion before the show.

The Woodrings Attend.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, she wearing black velvet with an ermine collar, were sitting with the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Malin Craig, the latter also in black. The chief of cavalry, Maj. Gen. Leon Kromer, arrived with his daughter, Jane. Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, in green velvet trimmed with mink, and Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright were others there, Mrs. Wainwright wearing black lace.

Miss Mary Lil Milholland was an early arrival. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Miles and Maj. and Mrs. Frank Whittaker were seen chatting with friends during the evening. Mrs. Whittaker wore a dark blue tailored suit. Representative John Costello, of California, and Capt. and Mrs. William D. Brereton were others there. Miss Nancy Brereton, their daughter, was with Group Capt. and Mrs. T. E. B. Howe, of the British Embassy.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Pearson were in a box with Mr. and Mrs. William Guthrie. Miss Anne Barrett, Maj. Gen. Edward B. Winans and Mr. Otaker Kabelac, of the Czechoslovakian Legation, were others present.

Secretary of War, Mrs. Woodring To Be 'At Home' Next Wednesday.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring will be "at home" at Woodlawn, their estate near Alexandria, on Wednesday afternoon.

Alternating at the tea table will be Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Malin Craig, Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia; Mme. von Boetticher, wife of the Military Attache of the German Embassy, and Mrs. William Stanley.

Others who will assist include Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. Julian Schley, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Roberts, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Jonathan Wainright and Mrs. W. Forbes Morgan.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Dr. William Cabell Moore with his brother and sister-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Ellet Moore and their children, Anne Ambler and Cabell, was lunching in the Pall Mall Room of the Raleigh. Mrs. Moore who, with her family, had just driven in from Richmond, was very smart in a dark blue tailored suit with small hat to match and a blouse of a lighter shade. Little Anne's frock was of white dimity sprinkled with gay bouquets of flowers.

Well, well—there's no keeping up with engagements and marriages these days! Almost before the principals know about it, announcements are popping up (we know well what we are talking about)—but to get back to marriages—little "Johnnie" Paul went home to visit her mother out in St. Louis after receiving her quiet decree, and legal resumption of her maiden name. There she ran into an old beau, John Webster Chandler, whom she had not seen for something like ten years. They had been engaged once upon a time and then something happened, as it often does. Anyhow, two days after their meeting they were married and are now here in town. But not for long, as we hear they have their eyes set on New York and will be off for Gotham in a few weeks to make their permanent home.

An interesting visitor in Washington is Sir Feriz Khan Noon, High Commissioner at London for India, who is at the Carlton Hotel for the World Textile Conference. Swarthy, tall and mustached, he invariably wears a turban with his European clothes.

The other morning he strode through the lobby in a perfectly tailored riding habit, passed the front desk, grinned and said to one of the clerks "Everything's fine—er—quite o. k.—quite."

Dinner Is Given By Pyes in Honor Of William Leahys

The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William Leahy were the guests in whose honor the Assistant Chief of Operations and Mrs. William Pye entertained at dinner in their home last evening.

Luncheon Given By Mrs. Montet

Mrs. Johnny Mack Brown Is Guest of Honor at the Congressional Club.

Mrs. Numa Montet yesterday afternoon entertained at the Congressional Club at a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Johnny Mack Brown, wife of the motion-picture actor, who is spending a week here with her sister, Mrs. Foster Holman, and sister-in-law, Mrs. William Foster.

The table was decorated with a center bouquet of spring flowers and hand-painted Japanese place cards. The hostess wore a black crepe frock with a white embroidered organdy vest and a three-quarter-length black cape. Mrs. Brown wore a short jacket of brown plaid on a beige background, with a brown skirt, hat and accessories.

Among the guests were Mrs. Harlee Branch, Mrs. John Hornaday, Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Baroness von Below, Mrs. Edmund F. Erk, Mrs. South Trimble, Mrs. Samuel Alexander, Mrs. La Noue Matta, Mrs. Neitah King, Mrs. Robert Watson, Mrs. William Schmitt, Mrs. Homer Hendricks, Mrs. Barge L. Hartz and Mrs. J. B. Hutson.

Mrs. Karl Stefan and Mrs. Charles I. Stengle also entertained at luncheon at the club yesterday. Ryan, Mrs. Hampden Fulmer, Mrs. Charles Walters, Mrs. Charles Anderson, Mrs. Charles West, Mrs. Herbert A. Drane, Mrs. John Rankin, Mrs. James McGrath, Mrs. James Montgomery.

April Fool's Dinner Held By McAdoos

Guests Are Tricked With Fake Santa Claus and Bogus Gifts.

Senator Barkley's Address on Court Interrupted by 'Humane Society.'

Senator and Mrs. William McAdoo entertained at a dinner last night such as they gave on April 1 last year, which had all the guests fooled from beginning to end. It was at the Shoreham, and a fake Santa Claus, amusing verses, and such tricks as matches that wouldn't strike and clocks that didn't run were features of the entertainment.

After dinner, during which he read several fake telegrams, Senator McAdoo said he had not intended to have any speeches, but since the judicial reform bill was so much in the public eye, he thought Senator Barkley sh uld say a few words. The latter rose with a stack of law books preparing to begin, when suddenly a workman arrived with a stepladder, climbed upon it and started pounding. The man explained to the guests he had been sent there by the Humane Society, and wouldn't stop hammering until Barkley stopped talking.

Each gentleman at the dinner was presented with a verse describing the lady whom he was to escort into the dining room. The poem about Mrs. Barkley read:

Say nothing to your dinner mate
Unless you are addressed;
Her husband's made two keynote talks
So give her ears a rest.

Among the guests were Senator McAdoo's two daughters, Mrs. Francis Taylor, of New York, the former Nona McAdoo, and Mrs. Brice Clagett, who lives in Washington. Another out-of-town guest was Mrs. John McFarland, of Pasadena, Calif., a close friend of Senator and Mrs. McAdoo.

Also present were the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky, Senator Hattie Caraway, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Senator and Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, Senator John G. Townsend, jr., Senator and Mrs. Henry F. Ashurst, Senator Harry Flood Byrd, Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Stanley Reed, the Assistant Secretary of State, Francis B. Sayre; his daughter, Miss Eleanor Sayre; Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long, the Military Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Lombard, the Comptroller of the Currency, Mr. J. F. T. O'Connor; Mr. Thomas Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin King, Mr. Ralph Jenny, of San Diego, Calif., and Miss Mary Cowles.

Chattanooga Farmhands Outsmart Nats, 5 to 4

Farm Club Victor Despite Homers by Fat Pitcher, Kuhel.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Sanford, Fla., April 1.—The Chattanooga Lookouts, a fresh bunch of Washington farmhands, slapped down their city cousins this afternoon and plowed under the Nats' one-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory.

To the great glee of 350 natives who were taunting the big leaguers from the 1896 model grandstands, the Nats' minor league branch office came from behind to tie the score and make away with the ball game in the ninth.

Ed Linke, who had taken over the Nats' pitching duties from Buck Newsom in the sixth inning, was something of a hero for a few minutes in the ninth. That was when he came to bat with the Nats facing a one-run deficit and thumped a line-drive home run over the distant leftfield wall to tie the score.

But he pitched that run right back at his country cousins. It was pretty slick how the Lookouts won the ball game. Outfielder Howard McFarland caught both Linke and Third Baseman Buddy Lewis napping and beat out a bunt to open Chattanooga's ninth.

Newsom Ineffective.

The Nats were alive to bunts then, and when Bensmiller attempted to sacrifice McFarland to second, Linke grabbed the ball and rifled to Travis for a force-play, but along came Dee Miles with a cheap single to center and Bensmiller hiked all the way from first to third with a clever piece of sprinting.

Jimmy Wasdell banged a hot grounder to Joe Kuhel, but the fleet Bensmiller beat Kuhel's throw to the plate and the Nats were a beaten ball club.

Buck Newsom couldn't hold a three-run lead that Joe Kuhel presented him in the third inning when the Nats scored thrice on one hit—Kuhel's terrific slam over the right-field wall with Chapman and Lewis on base after drawing walks from a young right-hander named Hank Bazner.

Nats' Hitting Weak.

Along about this time, the Nats were encountering some swell pitching by a young left-hander named Kirby Hayes, late of Jacksonville, in the South Atlantic League, and Hayes held 'em hitless through the fourth, fifth and sixth innings with a curve ball that had Washington hitters swinging futilely, and Manager Bucky Harris tabbing the young southpaw for future reference.

Chattanooga's eight hits were equally divided against the offerings of Newsom and Linke. The Nats weren't doing so well in a hitting way. They got a half dozen, three of which were off the bat of Kuhel and two contributed by Travis. Among the Nats who went hitless were Buddy Lewis, Ben Chapman, Fred Sington, Johnny Stone and Buddy Myer, which ought to explain a lot.

The Nats quit Orlando tomorrow on a three-game trip toward the Florida West Coast. They meet the Phillies at Winter Haven tomorrow, the Reds at Tampa Saturday and the Tigers at Lakeland Sunday.

Bolton Costs Nats $7,500 In Deal Balk

By a Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—Clark Griffith is $7,500 out of pocket and his attempted deal with the St. Louis Browns is at a standstill—all because Catcher Cliff Bolton refuses to leave his fireside at High Point, N. C.

The Nats' owner revealed today that the St. Louis club had claimed Bolton at the $7,500 waiver price but that the unpredictable catcher had refused to join the Browns.

"The Browns have notified me that they have withdrawn their claim," said Griffith. "It is costing me a cool $7,500, this business of Bolton refusing to play baseball any more," the Nats' owner added plaintively.

"When the Browns told me they wanted Bolton, I told them they could claim him at their own risk; that I didn't know whether he wanted to play any more or not. Apparently they couldn't persuade him to play because the St. Louis people wired me the deal is off."

The failure of Bolton to report to the Browns has temporarily sidetracked a Washington-St. Louis deal that would bring Outfielder Joe Vosmik or Outfielder Roy Bell to the Nats.

Griffith, fretting at the failure of Freddie Sington to hit consistently, made an offer for both Vosmik and Bell and sought to include Bolton in the deal if the Browns desired it that way. But the St. Louis club has indicated that it will not sell an outfielder for cash, and Griffith has no other trading material.

G. W. Plays Lions; Terps Face Green

Two games are on the college sports card today, George Washington meeting Penn State at 2:30 o'clock on the West Ellipse, while Maryland entertains Dartmouth's representatives at College Park at 4 o'clock.

Vince De Angelis, Colonial pitching star who turned in a one-hit performance last week to chalk up his first victory of the year, a 6-3 triumph over Long Island, probably will hurl for the downtown school. George Wood or Dale Patterson will start for Maryland.

Sports in Brief

New York, April 1.—The Lawrenceville School progressed toward its fourth straight interscholastic indoor polo title by soundly beating the McDonogh School trio of Baltimore, at the Squadron A Armory tonight.

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 1.—David Parker pitched fine ball for seven of nine innings today to give the University of North Carolina baseball team an 8-to-5 victory over Michigan State.

Durham, N. C., April 1.—J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas League, has resigned from membership on the executive committee of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, W. G. Bramham, president of the association, said today.

Williamsburg, Va., April 1.—Dartmouth checked a ninth inning rally by William and Mary's baseball team here and nosed out the Indians, 6 to 4.

Salem, Va., April 1.—Roanoke College called on a baseball player to win the only points it scored today in a tennis match against Lehigh University, which won, 8 to 1. Gerald Dederick, pitcher and outfielder on the college nine, took to the court and defeated Charles Zall, 8—1, 6—2.

Miami, Fla., April 1.—The State Racing Commission tonight concluded a hearing for the Miami West Flagler Kennel Club on charges of "infractions of rules and regulations" and delayed action until tomorrow.

Winter Park, Fla., April 1.—Eight-oared crews of Rollins College and Washington and Lee University contests here tomorrow on Lake Maitland.

Wake Forest, N. C., April 1.—Wake Forest College's baseball team bunched hits in the third and seventh innings today to trounce Washington and Lee's Generals, 13 to 0, before 3,000 fans.

Detroit, April 1.—Joe Knight, Georgia light heavyweight boxer, was fined $280 by the State Boxing Commission and suspended indefinitely in Michigan today for his poor exhibition against Patsy Perroni, of Cleveland, last night.

30,000 Scouts to Push 150,000 Off Playing Fields in Summer

By John R. Vosburgh.

If each of the 30,000 Boy Scouts coming here this summer does a good deed a day, it still won't be enough for thousands of Washington golf and baseball players. Not that the golfers or ball players are against the Scouts. Far from it. They're just a little puzzled about the 17 ball diamonds and 18 holes of golf which the Scouts are going to camp on.

Now the Scout Jamboree is a first-class pow-wow and most sandlotters and golf addicts will admit it right off the bat. But those 17 ball diamonds and 18 holes of golf—well, it's pretty tough to give them up this summer.

And that's what it means, giving up eight ball diamonds on the Monument lot, four in West Potomac Park, five softball diamonds, a nine-hole golf course in West Potomac Park and another nine-hole lay-out in East Potomac. The latter is one of the best public links courses in the city. The West Potomac course is used by thousands of Government employes.

Most puzzled of all is busy Albert Clyde-Burton, assistant superintendent of the National Capital Parks. The baldish Mr. Clyde-Burton is glad to have the Scouts use his grounds but it's rather hard explaining it to the golfers and ball players.

Mr. Clyde-Burton estimates some 150,000 ball players and fans would have used the 17 diamonds during the two-month period from June 1 to August 1. The Scouts are encamping for only about ten days, June 30 through July 9, but the work of preparing for them and cleaning up after them will consume the rest of the two months.

Thus, about 100 teams and countless fans must either adjourn for two months or move their activities to suburban diamonds or other parts of the city.

Five of the oldest hardball leagues in the city however, will be allowed to operate on the choice Ellipse diamonds. The Parks people were able to keep this area open by agreeing not to use the Monument diamonds.

Demands for diamonds have been received at the Permit Office by 71 independent teams alone, excluding league teams.

"This undoubtedly would have been our biggest year," Clyde-Burton declared sadly. "Now it's wrecked."

The polo field in West Potomac Park will also yield to the Scout invasion.

In the camp area everything from sewers and a cold storage plant to a newspaper shop and post-office will be installed. The parks officials aren't taking any chances of having an outfielder trip over a sewer pipe after the Scouts leave, though.

Jersey Tops Western by 34-19 Score

Morristown High Routs Georgetowners in Eastern States Event.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Glens Falls, N. Y., April 1.—Western High School, of Washington, D. C., champions of the District of Columbia, were defeated by Morristown (N. J.) High School in the first game of tonight's opening play in the eighteenth annual Eastern States Tournament, 34 to 19.

The first quarter, which ended in Morristown's favor, 4 to 3, was dull. Dempsey, of Morristown, playing right forward for New Jersey, scoring all four points for his team, two fouls and one field goal. A spurt at the starting of the second quarter put Washington in the lead by two points, 6 to 4, but Johnson, of Morristown, tied the score with a field goal. Another field goal by Dempsey put Morristown in the lead, 8 to 6, at half time.

Field goals by Dewitt and Schulze and foul points by Dewitt and Burns made up Western's six points in the first half.

Westrope Rides Mount Home A Head in Front of Zoic, Pays $12.90; New Deal Runs Third

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Bowie Race Track, Md., April 1.—The largest opening-day crowd in the history of this track, a gathering estimated at 15,000, greeted opening of the 1937 turf season in Maryland, and watched Mucho Gusto, flying the colors of the Araho Stable, win the Rowe Memorial Handicap, the day's $5,000 added feature event. Although the judges went through the formality of asking for a photo of the finish, Mucho Gusto won by a good head from H. E. Enger's Zoic. Two lengths farther back came New Deal, a stablemate of the winner, to be third in the field of seven.

The victory was the first of the year for the Araho Stable which campaigned in Florida, and brought a return of $4,125 to Mrs. Walter E. O'Hara, wife of the New England sportsman.

Jackie Westrope rode an excellently-judged race on Mucho Gusto and both horse and rider were doing their best at the end of the 6-furlong test. The winner was clocked in 1:13 2-5 over the fast track and returned backers of the entry with $12.90.

Winner Pays $12.90.

Johnny Westrope brought Mucho Gusto home ahead in front of Zoic after racing either in second or third place all the way. Zoic, a rank outsider which headed into the home stretch with a neck advantage over the winner, beat New Deal two lengths for runner-up honors.

In earning the purse of $4,125 and paying his backers $12.90 for a $2 win ticket, Mucho Gusto was clocked in the slow time of 1:13 2-5. The disappointments of the race were Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Speed to Spare and W. H. Gallagher's Rudie, both of which raced impressively in California and Florida this winter. Speed to Spare wound up fifth behind Weston after setting the pace for a half-mile while Rudie never was a factor, finishing last, two lengths back of the sixth-place horse, Billy Bee.

$300,000 Is Bet.

Betting for the day showed a decided increase over last year with indications that more than $300,000 would pass through the mutuels. Last year's total was $267,901.

The favorite players began the season with a step in the right direction when T. F. Swords' Real Jam turned in a smashing effort to take the first race. Ridden by J. Barba, the clever apprentice from Florida, the gelding defeated Clean Sport by a half length with the latter holding a like margin over Felwyn. Real Jam, fractious at the post, forged to the front early and withstood a long drive. The winner paid a $4.20 mutuel.

Briefs at Bowie

Bowie, Md., April 1.—Harry Richards, who rode Rosemont to victory in the Santa Anita Handicap, swung into saddle action shortly after his arrival here.

This track is sporting a new electric odds board, a welcome improvement for the fans who have been squinting at chalk figures since the plant was built.

The suspension of Jockey L. Machado, which held over from Oaklawn Park, will be lifted on Monday.

A wide and spacious porch has been added to the front of the clubhouse and proved a gathering place for the smart set.

The management also has cut down the gate crashes by erecting a steel, barb-wire fence around the oval.

Danny Shea trainer for the Flying Horse Stable, has taken a call on the services of Jockey I. Hanford, winner of the 1930 Kentucky Derby with Bold Venture.

Denham, made good at the first 1937 asking in the second race. The son of Happy Argo won in a keen struggle with Zebulo, taking the decision by a neck margin. Koterito took third money from Cosette in a photo finish. Jockey Eddie Smith saved ground with Little Argo entering the stretch while Cosette was setting a brisk pace. In the final straightaway, the latter quit as Little Argo took command. Zebulo closed fast, but too late to be effective. Little Argo ran the six furlongs in 1:14 2-5 and paid $19.60.

Cruising Wins Third.

Cruising, a veteran campaigner running in the colors of Mrs. H. Sherman, scored a handy victory in the third race, another 6-furlong sprint. With Apprentice Jockey J. Barba riding his second winner, Cruising bounded to the front at the starting bell and was not headed, having good daylight margin on Cinar. Swiftlet was third in the field of ten. Patchpocket, the favorite, tired after reaching the leaders early. Cruising was clocked in 1:14 1-5 and brought a $10.50 pay-off.

Argyle Golf Club Schedules 20 Events for Coming Season

2 Tourneys Are Added To Schedule

Tuesdays Set Aside as Ladies' Days; Stymie Abolition Voted.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Adding a ringer tournament and mixed Scotch foursome to its annual list, the Argyle Golf Club has fixed a 20 event schedule, starting with the usual handicap affairs and ending with the turkey tourney for the current season. The Lampson trophy, a ladder tourney and the two-man team matches dot the schedule, also calling for interclub matches with Beaver Dam and the Quantico Marines, now in the tentative stage.

In an attempt to bolster interest in ladies golf, the club has designated Tuesdays as ladies' days, with members, wives and guests allowed to play the course with no greens fee.

Wilbur A. Taylor, chairman of the golf committee, has taken a poll of the members of the club in regard to the stymie, and reports 88 per cent in favor of abolishing golf's problem child. Handicap events will be held each week where no events are scheduled.

Schedule of events:

April 1 to June 30, first half ringer tournament, nine holes; April 10-11, spring handicap tournament; April 17-18, kickers' handicap tournament; April 24-25, selective holes tournament.

May 1-2, blind bogie tourney; May 8-9, 15-16, club ladder aqulifications, 36 holes; May 22-23, open; May 28-30, flag tournament.

June 6, intraclub match, Metropolitanites vs. Suburbanites; 12-13, Lawrence V. Lampson Trophy tourney, to be won three times for permanent possession; June 19-20, opening of two-man team matches with handicap allowance; 26-27, open.

July 1 to October 15, second half ringer tournament; July 3-4-5, flag tournament; 11, mixed Scotch foursome; 17-18, semi-club championship, 18 holes medal play; 25, open.

August 28-29, September 4-5-6, qualification for club championships, 36 holes; September 11-12, first round match play; September 18-19, second round match play; 25-26, semifinals club championship.

Tropical Race Feature Won By Ridge Mor

Long Shot Pays $17.40; Defeats Couleedam, Favorite, in Handicap.

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., April 1.—Ridge Mor, a 6-year-old son of Morvich, owned by Miss A. Doris, played an April Fool's joke on the form players here today in the featured Doubloon Handicap, which attracted five Class C horses to the post.

The longest priced horse in the one mile event, and regarded as better suited at a shorter distance, Ridge Mor led his more fancied rivals by a wide margin and coasted to the wire two lengths in front, to pay $17.40 for $2.

P. B. Codd's Pageboy just got up to head T. D. Buhl's Couleedam, the favorite, for the place. Little Sleeper and Chancer completed the field, as named. Chancer was second choice, but stopped after failing to keep up with the pace. Ridge Mor made the sparkling time of 1:37 1-5 under Earl Steffen.

Landis Hears 2d 'Bob Feller' Case

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, April 1.—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis said today he didn't know just when he'd decide about Outfielder Tom Henrich.

Henrich, 21, asked the judge to tell him whether he belonged to Zanesville, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Cleveland or was his own boss.

Henrich read an article by Evans saying he was worth $15,000 to any major league club and started wondering why he was sold by New Orleans, along with Ralph Winegarner, to Milwaukee for a combined total price of $7,500.

He suspected he was being "covered up." "Covering up" is explained as a practice in which a major league club sends a capable player to a minor league until he is needed. So he asked Landis to investigate.

Maryland Riflemen Win 2 Army Championships

The University of Maryland's R.O.T.C. rifle team was a double winner in the Third Corps area championships, capturing both the corps title and Hearst Trophy.

Willard C. Jensen was high gun with a 294 out of a possible 300. Other members of the team, coached by Maj. Frank Ward, are Raymond Davis, jr., Aaron Welch, Robert Mattingly, and Warren P. Davis. Pittsburgh was second in the competition, Lehigh third, and another Maryland team fourth.

Huston Denies Buying Dodgers With Ruth Pilot

Sea Island Beach, Ga., April 1 (U.P.).—Col. Tillinghast Huston, prominent sportsman, denied here tonight that he had completed negotiations for the purchase of the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League for $1,800,000.

"I'm beginning to doubt whether they'll ever sell," he said.

Baxter Turns Hero, Beaten In Mat Match

Laverne Baxter, one of the most venomous villains the mat game ever knew, turned hero last night and paid the penalty for his weakness before a capacity crowd at Turner's Arena last night by losing to George Koverley, who, comparatively speaking, is only a second-string villain.

Baxter weakened right at the start—in fact even before the start. While the grapplers were grouped in the center of the ring receiving instructions, Koverly reached across Referee Benny Bortnick's shoulder and hung a nice left hook on Laverne's chin. Laverne dropped in his tracks and when he got up he did nothing about it. Surprise! Surprise!

Shortly after the official beginning of the bout, Baxter suspended Bortnick in the ropes by one leg. Then Laverene flopped Koverly, but Bortnick was unable to extricate himself in time to count George out.

The finish came after 14½ minutes, following skullduggery with the referee. Baxter, finding himself stymied by Bortnick, heaved Bennah half out of the ring. As he turned to do the same to Koverley, George bopped him right on the chin with another left hook.

Lansburgh Pin Team Takes Lead

With only two more weeks remaining in the Department Store League, Lansburgh's team moved into first place by taking a 2-1 decision from Guy-Curran.

The Hecht Co., led by Jack Wolstenholme's 375 and Cecil Aylor's 346, pushed Kahn's into second by taking the odd game.

Woodward & Lothrop, led by Bill Kingsolver's 368 and Naylor's 349, moved into third by whitewashing Palais Royal. In other league matches, Raleigh Haberdashers took a 2-1 decision from Hahn's Shoes, while the Credit Bureau did the same to Jelleff's.

Grant, Riggs Win; Enter Semifinals

Atlanta, April 1 (AP).—Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, breezed into the semifinal round of the Atlanta Invitation Tennis tournament today losing only two games to Walter Senior, of San Francisco.

Grant the Nation's No 3 ranking player, defeated Senior, who is ranked No. 12, nationally, 6—0, 6—2.

Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, had a little more difficulty with Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore. Riggs won 6—3 6—4.

Cuyler Sustains Fracture of Bone

Brooklyn Boys to Play Boys Club Fives Here

Thirty members of the Flatbush Boys Club, Brooklyn, N. Y., are scheduled to arrive here today for a two-day visit as guests of the Washington Boys Club. The party is in charge of Louis S. Libutti.

Connie Mack Better.

San Antonio, Tex., April 1 (AP).—Hospital attendants reported Connie Mack's condition was very satisfactory tonight and that the veteran Philadelphia Athletics manager continued to show improvement. Mack is receiving treatment for a leg injury.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REAL JAM, $4.20, $3.10, $2.50; CLEAN SPORT, $3.50, $3.20; FELWYN, $3.90.

REAL JAM, off in the first flight, went to the front approaching the far turn, but had to be kept to a stout drive to hold CLEAN SPORT safe. The latter was rushed into contention at once, disposed of BARBIZON and fought it out willingly. FELWYN hung at the end after coming with a rush nearing the stretch. GAY CREST, off poorly, gained steadily throughout the running. GRAINGER was forced to race wide. RELATIVITY showed an even effort. BARBIZON had keen early speed. DARLING PAT had early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming price, $2,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:01½. Winner, Mrs. W. H. Denham's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE ARGO, $19.60, $8.30, $6.20; ZEBULO, $5.50, $4.10; KOTERITO, $6.90.

LITTLE ARGO, steadied along during the early running, saved much ground entering the stretch and outlasted ZEBULO in final drive. Latter swung slightly wide at the final bend and closed resolutely under vigorous handling. KOTERITO closed with a belated rush on the outside after being outrun. COSETTE had the most early speed, but tired suddenly in the stretch. DISTRACT went evenly, but could not threaten. ICY WIND went well for three lengths and tired. The others could not reach contention.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming price, $2,250. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:30½. Off at 3:35½. Winner, Mrs. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRUISING, $10.50, $4.80, $3.90; CINAR, $8.50, $7.10; SWIFTLET, $18.40.

CRUISING assumed command at once, drew out to a good lead swinging for the stretch and easily held away thereafter. CINAR improved his position steadily on outside and closed gamely under a drive. SWIFTLET closed with good courage. PATCHPOCKET was rushed up on the inside of leaders and tired from running in soft going along the rail. ROYAL TREAD gained sharply on swing for stretch and then hung. MISS TROPHY stopped to a walk.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Seventh Heaven. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:01½. Off at 4:04. Winner, Bomar Stable's ch. f. (3), by Victorian—Jeanne Bowdre. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $700; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $25. Time, 1:08 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARY KEEN, $11.10, $5.70, $4.90; MY ELSIE, $5.40, $4.90; MISS EPE, $5.40.

MARY KEEN, taking back while in close quarters between MISS EPE and CONSERVATIVE, was taken on the inside to save ground entering the stretch, and was kept to pressure to hold MY ELSIE safe. Latter went to contention with a rush, swung wide entering stretch and closed full of run under intermittent punishment. MISS EPE tired after pressing and setting the pace. CAREFUL MISS, outrun for three-eighths, moved up menacingly, but was carried wide by MY ELSIE and tired. CONSERVATIVE was pulled up sharply while in close quarters at the half pole. SWIFT FLASH was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Rowe Memorial Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:30½. Off at 4:34. Winner, Araho Stable's b. h. (5), by Marvin May—Sweetheart Time. Trained by R. Curran. Net value to winner, $4,125; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 1:13 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUCHO GUSTO (entry), $12.90, $5.20, $6.50; ZOIC, $6.40, $4.90; NEW DEAL (entry), $6.50.

MUCHO GUSTO, taken back to be steadied off the pace of SPEED TO SPARE and ZOIC in the early running, came up on the outside of ZOIC in the stretch and under pressure was up in the concluding strides. ZOIC disputed of SPEED TO SPARE to take a short lead in the late stages, but could not resist the winner. NEW DEAL, slow to get underway, closed full of run on the outside. WESTON could not better position. SPEED TO SPARE broke poorly and had something taken out of him reaching the top. BILLY BEE and RUDIE were outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05½. Off at 5:06½. Winner, E. T. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY FLAG, $12.40, $4.90, $3.90; CONTINUITY, $3.80, $3.30; JUSTA FLIGHT, $5.70.

HAPPY FLAG, allowed to settle into stride and far back for a quarter, bettered his position gradually on the outside, swerved into JUSTA FLIGHT in the late stretch while closing courageously. CONTINUITY disposed of EXAGGERATION to take command entering the backstretch and fought it out willingly while being crowded at the end. EXAGGERATION tired after being hard used while in front. MADFAST went well for a half.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:40½. Winner, R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACKMAIL, $5.00, $4.20, $3.10; IRONBOUND, $5.90, $3.70; COUNT ME, $3.20.

BLACKMAIL, away in the first flight, opened a good lead along the backstretch and fought it out willingly after being headed to come again in the final 50 yards. IRONBOUND, steadied for a half, moved up with a rush in the stretch and just missed. COUNT ME had a rough trip and closed full of run. MAD FRUMP faltered while in close quarters in the final drive. MAKEIT reached the leaders and then tired. The others were held safe.

Cards Beat Dodgers, 7-0; Tigers Win

Dean, Johnson Limit Brooklyn to Three Scattered Hits.

By the United Press.

Clearwater, Fla., April 1.—Paul Dean and Si Johnson limited the Brooklyn Dodgers to three scattered hits to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-to-0 victory today.

Johnny Mize, Cardinal first baseman, led the Red Birds' attack with a home run, a double and a single, while Dean was limiting the Dodgers to three hits in the first five innings. Only 12 batsmen faced him in the first four frames. Walter Signer and Luke Hamlin hurled for the losers.

Lakeland, Fla.—Rudy York, pinch-hitting for Billy Rogell with two out, and Mickey Owen aboard in the ninth, smacked a home run and gave the Detroit Tigers a 4-to-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds today.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—The New York World Champion Yankees broke camp tonight and headed for Tallahassee where they play tomorrow in the first of a 14-game swing that will take them into eight States. They won 12 games here. Owner Jacob Ruppert, irked at the continued holdout of his 20-game pitcher, Red Ruffing, left today for New York.

Biloxi, Miss.—One bad inning apiece for Pitchers Johnny Allen and Denny Galehouse cost the Cleveland Indians today their third defeat in 12 games as the Milwaukee Brewers won, 10 to 8.

Sarasota, Fla.—Wesley Ferrell, the Red Sox star righthander, bested Bob (Lefty) Grove today when Manager Joe Cronin's regulars overwhelmed the scrubs 12-8, in a 6-inning practice game.

Gulfport, Miss.—Cliff Melton and Frank Gabler divided hurling honors as the New York Giants shut out the Jersey City Club of the International League, today, 8 to 0. Melton allowed only one hit in 5 innings, while Gabler was touched for four.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Steady pitching by Veteran Tex Carleton and Rookie Albert Epperly, plus some heavy stick work by Phil Cavarretta gave the Chicago Cubs a 7 to 5 win over Los Angeles today.

New Braunfels, Tex.—The Philadelphia Athletics stared two big innings to conquer the Minneapolis Club of the American Association in a free scoring exhibition game today, 13 to 8.

Miss Guilfoil Plays Mrs. Page in Final

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., April 1.—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., a seasoned campaigner, and 19-year-old Virginia Guilfoil, of Syracuse, N. Y., playing in her first major tournament, defeated strong opponents in the semifinals today, and tomorrow will meet in an 18-hole match for the North and South Women's Golf championship.

Miss Guilfoil, a sophomore at the University of Syracuse, came from behind to score a 4-and-3 victory over Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., a finalist last year.

Mrs. Page, who won the medal in the 1936 National, played a steady, consistent game to defeat the veteran Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, holder of the National title for six years, also by 4 and 3.

Girl Golfer, Illinois State Champion, Is Denied Berth on Illinois U. Freshman Team After Captain Invites Her to Play on It.

By the Associated Press.

Champaign, Ill., April 1.—Athletic Director Wendell Wilson took the wind out of a campus tempest over a blonde girl golfer today.

He ruled Hilda Mae Livengood, State amateur champion in 1935, could not try out for the University of Illinois' freshman links team.

He had so proclaimed before. But this time he buttressed the "no" with a firm "definitely" and explained:

"There is an unwritten understanding that women can't compete in Big Ten intercollegiate athletics."

Miss Livengood accepted the verdict with a show of sportsmanship.

"I understand Mr. Wilson's reasons and I will naturally abide by his decision," she said. "I would still like to compete with the team because it would provide good training for the summer tournaments. But I guess I won't be able to do so."

In one of her few trips around the Urbana Country Club course, the Danville co-ed scored an 80. Varsity Golf Coach John Utley invited her to join the freshman squad. But Wilson vetoed the invitation that stirred the campus commentators.

"She's an excellent golfer and should be given an opportunity to compete for Illinois," said Capt. Will Kokes of the Illinois golf team.

Siding with him were Football Capt.-Elect Lowell Spurgeon and Cliff Kuhn, a grid letterman; Jane Tharp, vice president-elect of the Woman's League; Capt.-Elect Johnny Brouk, of the water polo squad; Ruffy Silverstein, wrestling champ, and President Phyllis Burns, of the Torch, honorary woman's society.

"When men and women do engage in sports together," asserted Carita Robertson, assistant professor of physical education for women, "they should do so for social and recreational reasons, not for competition."

Olympic Films At A.A.U. Fete For Mahoney

National President Guest at Mayflower on April 13.

Motion pictures of American stars in the Olympic games at Berlin will be one of the entertainment features on the testimonial dinner to be given Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney by the District A. A. U. Tuesday night, April 13, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Sidney Lust, prominent Washington theater operator, has accepted the post as chairman of the entertainment committee and has named the following men to aid him in lining up entertainment: Nelson B. Bell, of The Post; Andrew Kelly, Jay Carmody, Gene Ford and Harry Lowmeyer.

The motion pictures will depict American track and field stars in action not only at Berlin, but at the Randall Island games at New York held last July, prior to the Olympics.

Motion pictures of other outstanding national amateur events will also be shown.

Schmeling's Fight Offer Is Reopened

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 1.—Joe Jacobs, American representative of Max Schmeling, said today the German heavyweight had cabled him that Berlin fight promoters had reopened the $350,000 offer to Jim Braddock for a title fight with Schmeling there in June.

He said Schmeling had worked to get the offer reopened after Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, had telephoned the German heavyweight aboard a liner carrying Schmeling back to Germany last week.

Jacob's said he sent a copy of Schmeling's cable by wire to the train carrying Braddock and Gould to Chicago, where they will begin preparations for a Braddock-Joe Louis fight in June.

Nelson's Record 66 Whips Field as $5,000 Augusta Golf Starts

Guldahl 2d; Cox Shares 3d With a 70

12 Pros Equal or Better Par 72; Dudley Tied With D. C. Player.

By the Associated Press.

Augusta, Ga., April 1.—A tall blond who looks more like a gentleman of the cloth than a professional mashie-wielder, upset the fourth annual August National Golf championship today by scoring a tourney record total of 66 to lead the field through the opening round.

The record-breaker was Byron Nelson, out of Texardana, Tex., via Reading, Pa., almost entirely overlooked in the pre-tourney debates.

Nelson tapped out a 33 on the outward nine and followed up with a like performance on the inward stretch to clip six strokes off par and end the day's links activities with a three-point lead.

Second in command of the situation as dusk fell on the wisteria-covered clubhouse was another whose chances were considered none too brightly. He was Ralph Guldahl, from St. Louis, another gangling blond, who marked down a 69.

These were the pace-setters and the three most closely in pursuit were Wiffy Cox, of Washington; Lawson Little, of New York, and Ed Dudley, the home pro, all at 70. Dudley, who was a prime favorite, was the only one of anybody's big four or big six to card a threatening score on the opening day.

Far out of it was the sentimental favorite, Robert T. Jones of Atlanta, who could d r better than 79, thus equaling the poorest round of his four attempts to win the title on the course he designed. Jones, to be succinct and honest, just simply played miserable golf. When it was over he admitted having been "terrible."

"I'd do something wrong," he said, "and then I just would have no conception of what to do about it. More than anything else I felt sorry for Horton Smith, because I was playing so miserably, Horton had nothing to shoot at when I had the honor."

Gene Sarzen, one of the seriously regarded entrants, made a poor start toward retaining the title he won in 1935 when he had an outward 39 and a total of 74. Only one stroke better was Harry Cooper who was a joint favorite with Smith at 8 to 1 when play started. Smith had a 75.

There are, however, a lot of players who could go on to win without scoring an abiding surprise. Among them are five tied at 71. They were Leonard Dodson, Jimmy Thomson, Johnny Revolta, Tony Manero, and Ray Mangrum.

Another pair was composed of Al Espinosa and Vic Ghezzi, who equaled par 72.

Selections at Bowie.

Dear Al:

The new odds and results board proved pleasant to the customers. Until a tote is installed, it will do a good job. However, it just didn't look like the Bowie infield with electric lights instead of chalk staring us in our faces. Clubhouse patrons were quick to take advantage of the enlarged front porch. That section was crowded for every race. Jockey Eddie Smith, the Washington boy, gave Little Argo a million-dollar ride for the Benningites and at a $19.60 mutuel, too. I'll have to see if Walter O'Hara won't let Eddie ride some of those Araho Stable horses. This track is slower than ever. Despite the fact that it was dry as a bone, the times of most of the races were a la Marlboro. From what I saw, the No. 1 horse, breaking out of the 6-furlong chute must wade out of a sand pile before he can get underway. You might write Careful Miss down in your future book. She was moving up with a rush at the stretch turn but was carried wide and tired. Probably needed that race. See you tomorrow.

BILL.

BREATH TAKING—

Take Care not to Offend!

Tests prove that VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow and fragrant.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system — the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Holidays Cut Bank Clearings For Past Week

Total for 22 Leading Cities Is 10.7 Per Cent Less Than Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 1.—The volume of bank clearings in the United States declined from the previous week's aggregate and that of a year ago.

In some sections, due to the observance of Good Friday, there were included only five days.

The total for 22 leading cities, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, for the week ended March 31, was $5,762,202,000, against $6,455,717,000 in the corresponding 1936 week, a decline of 10.7 per cent.

This contrasted with a percentage gain of 28.2 in a similar comparison a week earlier. Clearings at this time last year included heavy payments incident to the first of the month, whereas the latest total did not.

New York City clearings were $3,621,827,000, or 19.6 per cent under the $4,504,656,000 in the corresponding 1936 period. At outside centers the total was $2,140,375,000, which was 9.7 per cent in excess of the $1,951,061,000 in 1936.

Figures of leading cities, together with percentage gains and losses compared with those of 1936, follow:

| Week of March 31, 1937. | | Per cent change. |
|---|---|---|
| Boston | $224,913 | — 3.9 |
| Philadelphia | 383,000 | — 0.8 |

Washington Clearings.

The Washington Clearing House reports total clearings of $24,436,498.49 for the week ended March 31, which compares with $18,144,487.22 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 34.6 per cent. Compared with a total of $22,966,945.87 for the previous week, clearings increased 6.3 per cent.

Brokers' Loans Drop $28,000,000 for Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,092,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $28,000,000, when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $1,019,000,000.

Stock Issues Set New SEC Record

Analysis of statements registered under the securities act of 1933 indicates that new securities with estimated gross proceeds of $491,400,000 became fully effective during February, 1937. This total compares with $429,990,000 in January, 1937, and $212,089,000 in February, 1936.

During February, 1937, the effectively registered common stock issues ready for sale achieved the highest total for such issues registered in any month under the securities act. The total effectively registered common stock issues were $168,474,000, which included amounts reserved for conversion, etc. This was 34.3 per cent of the total of all types of securities effectively registered during the month.

Secured bond issues registered during February accounted for 43.3 per cent of the month's estimated gross proceeds; common stock issues, 34.3 per cent; certificates of participation and warrants, 10.6 per cent; preferred stock issues, 7.8 per cent, and debenture issues, 4 per cent. Registrations for companies in the manufacturing field accounted for 41.8 per cent of the February aggregate, and those for the utility companies came next with a total of 29.3 per cent.

Pan American Orders Seven Big Planes

New York, April 1 (AP).—Announcement was made today that Pan American Airways Corporation had ordered seven 21-passenger planes from Douglas Aircraft Co. The contract was said to involve around $1,000,000.

The company proposes to use the planes on the Brownsvile-Cristobal run and along the west coast of South America.

Banks Curtail Purchases of Federal Bonds

Buy $5,000,000, Against $42,000,000 in Previous Week.

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday sharp curtailment in purchases of Government bonds by Reserve banks during the week ended March 31.

Acquisitions by Reserve institutions for the week totaled only $5,000,000, compared with $42,000,000 in the previous week and $56,000,000 in the week ended March 17. Bonds acquired during the week ended March 31 brought these holdings to $636,890,000, or $371,000,000 over the same week a year ago.

The Reserve banks also increased their holdings of Treasury bills by $7,000,000, pushing these holdings to $574,494,000.

The bond and bill acquisitions were matched by a $12,000,000 decrease in holdings of Treasury notes, leaving the Reserve banks $1,218,843,000 of the latter obligations.

The statement showed excess member bank reserves climbed $130,000,000 during the week to $1,400,000,000, presumably because of banks' efforts to build up reserve balances in anticipation of a 16 2-3 per cent increase in reserve requirements May 1.

Gold stock increased $33,000,000 during the week to $11,574,000,000, a new all-time peak.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Drop but Recover in Partial Rally; U. S. Bonds and Wheat Lower.

New York, April 1.—The severe break in Government bond prices had a dampening influence not only on the stock market but on all financial activities. Stocks dropped 1 to 3 points and showed little rallying power in a much smaller volume of trading. July wheat declined 1 cent a bushel and cotton was steady.

In many cases the major part of the day's losses were recorded on opening trasactions or in the early trading. On the first transaction Westinghouse Electric was off 1½ points, New York Central off 1, Southern Railway off 1, United States Steel off 1⅛, Anaconda off 1, International Nickel off ¾ and Goodyear off ⅞. By early afternoon some of these losses had been extended a point or so and the market settled down into a narrow rut. Steel had lost approximately three points by the beginning of the last hour but at that level it attracted some buying and staged some recovery.

Stocks which ordinarily have a thin market often record large declines on small transactions in a market like this. This was true today of several preferred issues, including Public Service 7 per cent, Mead, Kinney, General Cable and Foster Wheeler, Homestake Mining dipped below 400 and there was a soft market for Jersey Central, Cerre de Pasco, and Yellow Truck.

The condition of the Government bond market became a subject of general interest, commanding the attention of strange elements in the financial community, and as such it had a certain influence on stock trading sentiment. What the Secretary of the Treasury did in effect today was to call attention in a big way to the fact that all is not well with the Government bond market. His assurance that governmental agencies have some funds to invest in the market could not have been expected to bolster sentiment, for these funds at best are woefully small when set against the huge structure of public debt.

About three weeks ago Mr. Eccles stated that he thought 2½ per cent was a proper level for long-term Government bonds. Many people read between his words a determination to sustain the market at that level. They were disabused of any such notion today when the Secretary admitted that no one could put the market up or down. Financial men would now like to see an end of official assurances that all is well with the Government bond market. The best assurance they could hope for would be a definite sign that the habit of financing budget deficits in the security market has been abandoned.

It Can Be Done.

Britain's balanced budget made interesting reading, enjoyed by all but those who were too busy protecting their positions in United States Government securities, which are largely the result of indifference to the consequences of unbridled spending. The British have proven that it can be done. It is just a coincidence that the news came from London on the same day Senator Norris proposed that the TVA idea be broadened to take in the whole country.

Slight March Rise.

According to the Sun's compilation the market value of 225 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange declined 0.4 per cent during March. Of the 24 groups 13 closed lower on the month. Paper products and rubber shares advanced 17 per cent each. Steels were more than 8 per cent higher and mining issues were 2 per cent up. The advance of more than 6 per cent for 25 rail issues was the best in several months.

Rail Equipment.

The chairman of the I. C. C. expressed the opinion today that improvement in railroad facilities had not kept pace with the advance in general business and that soon the capacity of some, if not all of the carriers may be taxed to the limit. Just as a coincidence Baldwin Locomotive announced at about the same time the receipt of an order for 12 engines. A striking example of feast of famine in industry, the railroad equipment business is again coming into its own.

Electric Plant.

The output of electricity has been increasing so rapidly and over so long a period that the time may not be far off when utilities will be stampeding to get on the books of the electric equipment manufacturers. The turbine building capacity of the big shipyards is no longer at the disposal of the utilities. With political pressure what it is the utilities have a strong dread of ever been found incapable of meeting the demand for service.

Stocks were higher at the end of the first quarter than on the last day of 1936 despite what has happened recently. The Sun's average of 20 industrials was 2¼ points, or 2.7 per cent, higher, while 10 rails were 9¾ points and 19.6 per cent above the year-end figure. The industrial average was helped materially by United States Steel which gained 43⅝ points. Goodyear was 16¼ points up, Allied Chemical 18½ points up, and Aanconda 12½ points up. American Telephone was 13¼ points lower, American Tobacco B 11¾ lower, Eastman Kodak 11 lower and American Can 8 lower. The quarter's results follow:

What's Bullish.

"A very common assumption is that the words 'bullish' and 'desirable' have the same meaning. Likewise 'bearish' and 'undesirable.'" A learned treatise on the economic situation draws to a close with this statement. Most traders are interested mainly in knowing how to play bullish or bearish information for a profit.

Treasury Assurances.

The Secretary of the Treasury was admittedly on sound ground when he said today that nobody had money enough to put the Government bond market up or down. His feeling that the Treasury will not go beyond the objective of trying to keep the market orderly should be reassuring to those who feel that Washington might try baling out a sea of liquidation with a teacup. The Secretary's statement would have been more reassuring had it conveyed the slightest hint that there might be some curtailment of the Government's spending program, especially in view of the over-estimated yield from taxes. So long as the Treasury continues a borrow and spend program there can be no real confidence in a fixed anchorage for Government credit.

Notre Dame Cattle Bring Record Price

Chicago, April 1 (AP).—The University of Notre Dame, of South Bend, Ind., received more than $8,000 for a load of prime fed steers that equaled the highest price in seven years in today's livestock market. The steers, purchased originally in the Chicago feeder market, were fattened on one of the university farms. Numbering 36 head and averaging 1,397 pounds, they were sold to Swift & Co. This price equaled the May 1, 1935, peak and was the highest quoted in the Chicago steer market since 1930.

Building Here Continues Gain Over Year Ago

Private Contracts Exceed March, 1936, Total by $1,285,550.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Continued gains in private construction are announced for both Washington and the Greater Washington area by the office of District Building Inspector John W. Oehmann and the F. W. Dodge Corporation. Figures completed yesterday by the former place the March total for private building and repairs here at $3,397,635, an increase of $408,650 over the preceding month and one of $1,285,550 over March last year.

J. W. OEHMANN.

The home owners' catalog division of the Dodge Corporation reports that contracts awarded for residential building in the Washington area amounted to $4,889,100 in February, as compared with $2,412,700 in February, 1936.

During the first two months of the current year residential building has doubled as compared with the similar period of 1936. It amounted to $4,651,900 in January and February this year as compared with $5,599,600 in the similar months of 1936.

These figures are drawn for the Washington metropolitan area which includes the District of Columbia and the counties of Arlington and Fairfax in Virginia and Montgomery and Prince Georges in Maryland, with a total 1930 population of 672,198 persons.

Total construction contracts awarded in Washington during the first two months of this year were 31 per cent larger than during the first two of last. They amounted to $16,830,900 in January and February of this year as compared with $12,874,200 during the similar period of 1936. This advance considerably betters the percentage of advance in total construction contracts in the entire 37 States east of the Rockies, where the gain was only 22 per cent in the similar period.

Mounting costs to builder and buyer in the small-house field and consequent prudence of immediate purchase may be in part responsible for the decided upturn in residential building in the Washington area as reported by the Dodge Corporation.

Life Policy Sales.

The market for life insurance has been greatly increased by the social security act, according to reports from R. M. Plake, general agent here for the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., on his return from the annual home office conference of managers and general agents at Minneapolis.

Mr. Plake said that new plans discussed there emphasized the stimulation of life insurance sales by the act because it provides only a slight death benefit and does not compete with the real service of life insurance, which is providing for one's dependents after death. The act has also aroused a wider appreciation of the need for an adequate income in old age.

Banking Notes.

Election of Charles K. West, manager, K street branch, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Charles W. Haas, Union Trust Co., to membership on the executive council of the Safe Deposit Section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, was announced following a meeting of the section this week at the board room of American Security & Trust Co. They were named to fill unexpired terms due to resignations. Plans for the convention of the National Safe Deposit Association here in May were also discussed.

Cotton Advances; May 14.57 Cents

New York, April 1 (AP).—Cotton moved irregularly today. Declines from early advances were recovered partially in late trading. July, which had eased from 14.53 to 14.33, closed at 14.44 with final prices 5 to 9 points net higher.

Futures Price Range.

†Nominal.

Spot, steady. Middling, 15.17.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was less active and prices easier today under increased liquidation and local selling, encouraged by the easiness of lard, which offset the steadier trend to cotton and corn. Final prices were 3 to 5 lower with sales of only 39 contracts. Crude oil was quoted at 10 cents at all points. Bleachable, spot nominal; May closed 11.15; July, 11.23; September, 11.25; October, 11.10.

Allied Chemical Unit Buys Mechling Bros.

New York, April 1 (AP).—General Chemical Co., a subsidiary of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, has acquired the assets and business of Mechling Bros. Chemical Co. The price was not announced. Benjamin S. Mechling and Edward A. Mechling, president and vice president, respectively, will continue actively in the business. The Mechling concern, with plants at Camden, N. J., and Medford, Mass., produces silicate of soda and other products.

Retail Advertising 8.5% Above Year Ago

Chicago, April 1.—Advertising placed in newspapers by retailers in 77 leading cities this year through March 20, is 17,020,513 lines greater than during the corresponding period of 1936, Advertising Age reported today.

Wheat Declines With Outlook For Heavy Crop

Prices Decline 2 Cents a Bushel With Winter Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 1.—Largely because of augmented estimates of the United States 1937 probable harvest of winter wheat, Chicago wheat values fell 2 cents a bushel maximum today.

Adding impetus to the downward swing of the wheat market here was a good deal of notice taken of big tumbles yesterday in wheat quotations at Buenos Aires.

CHEVROLET $295
1933 Convertible Cabriolet. It's beyond me how some people can keep their cars so clean. Take this one for instance—IMMACULATE—if you know what I mean. Shiny black finish. Rumble seat. Red leather deep-seated upholstery, and of most importance to you, low mileage. Anyone with an eye for value will gladly pay the low price of only $295.
ADDISON CHEVROLET,
1437 Irving St. N.W. ADams 5411.

CHEVROLET $519
1936 Master De Luxe Coach. A masterpiece of construction that's the master of the roadway. Try to tell it from a new car in performance; judge its beautiful upholstery from a new car; see its solid steel turret-top body built by Fisher and get a whiff of its Fisher no-draft ventilation. Sit snugly into its adjustable driver's seat and watch how its shock-proof steering makes driving effortless in heavy traffic. Open the windows wide and feel the air as it breezes by like a hurricane. Thats because this model has that windstream styling. See its original tires and you can tell it hasn't had much mileage. Then compare it with other cars at many dollars price and tell us if you can beat it. About the terms, let us do the worrying. Come in and see this beauty before someone else marries it.
ADDISON CHEVROLET,
1437 Irving St. N.W. ADams 5411.

FORD $489
'36 Tudor. It has seat covers on it which the buyer put on the first week he bought this car. Take off the seat covers and you have brand-new inside job. Lift up the hood and listen to the motor hum a sonata that only a new soprano can do. Look at its fresh Firestone tires and you're looking at tires that could sell for brand-new if we didn't confess that somebody used them to go around the block. This is an incomparable value for the money and to let it slide by is like looking out the window when it's raining dollars and not put your hat out to grab some. Seriously, if you want a great Ford used car at less than $500, see this one. You won't be disappointed. Terms are very easy.

Davis Denies Disarmament Parley Planned

Europe's Tension Too Great Over Spanish War, Envoy Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 1.—Norman H. Davis, America's Ambassador at Large, said tonight he will discuss world economic and peace co-operation with British statesmen, but that the time is not yet ripe for an international disarmament conference.

Tension created by the Spanish civil war and widespread suspicion in the European mind made disarmament impracticable now, he asserted.

His disavowal of any United States intention to propose an armament conference now coincided with that of Secretary of State Hull in Washington.

Europe Opposes Parley.

It came, too, after general reaction in European capitals against such a conference at this time; a stepping up of Franco-British aerial armaments, and new efforts by those two nations to settle the question of foreign volunteers in Spain.

An apparent softening of the Italo-German attitude inspired France and Britain to urge again that non-Spanish fighters be withdrawn from the Spanish civil war.

A French foreign office spokesman avowed that the government "is more optimistic that the Spanish civil war will not entangle Europe than at any time since the war began."

An effective neutrality control scheme will be in operation within 10 days, both French and British sources predicted. Some observers thought the new effort to get foreign fighters out of Spain was inspired by reports of dissensions and revolt against Italians fighting in the insurgent army.

Britain and France announced today their latest armament program—France to build 1,500 planes during 1937 to reinforce her present 3,000 to 4,000 craft; Britain an estimated 1,500 to bring her sky fleet to 2,600 first line ships by 1939—to compete with the modern German aerial army.

America, Once World's Pace-Setter in Scrapping Ships of War, Embarks Upon 'Second-to-None' Policy, Now Is Leading Navy Builder Among Nations

Keels of Two $60,000,000 Boats to Be Laid in Summer.

A deep foreboding hangs over the world as the powers of Europe engage in a mad armaments race. Spain, scene of a bloody civil war, has become a proving ground for the arms of Russia, Germany and Italy. Here is the fifth of a series of articles on the status of America's own national defense structure, as the twentieth anniversary of her entry into the World War draws near.

By Edward T. Folliard.

Having once led the world in scrapping warships, the United States today leads the world in building them. The American policy of a Navy second to none is again to the fore. A second-best Navy, according to that policy, is no better than a second-best poker hand, when called.

FOLLIARD.

America this summer will lay the keels of two $60,000,000 battleships. Building or appropriated for, as of March 1, are 85 other war vessels—3 aircraft carriers, 11 cruisers, 54 destroyers and 17 submarines.

This program sounds more formidable than it really is. Largely a replacement or rehabilitation program, it follows a long holiday in American naval construction, one during which Great Britain and Japan were adding steadily to their fleets.

Even so, the program, which is to be a continuing one, is important. It signifies that altruistic America, having failed to persuade the other powers to disarm, is herself now determined to re-arm.

21,000 Miles of Coast.

The first line of defense, our Navy is depended upon to guard a country of 125,000,000 inhabitants, with a coast line of 21,000 miles; to protect its maritime trade with the rest of the world; to guard the Panama Canal; to uphold the doctrine of Monroe that foreign powers must keep hands off our neighbor republics to the south.

No nation ever remained great, or commanded respect once it became neglectful of its sea power, as witness Spain and Portugal, not to mention ancient Phoenecia.

When the World War ended, the United States was embarked on a program which, when completed, would have made the American Navy the most powerful in the history of the world. It was not a blue-print program; the ships actually were being built.

In 1921, while our navy yards were resounding with activity, President Warren G. Harding took what the British later called "the greatest forward step in history to establish the reign of peace." He invited the naval powers of the world—Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy—to Washington to discuss ways and means of reducing naval armaments and hence, budgets.

Limited to Capital Ships.

Charles Evans Hughes, then Harding's Secretary of State, opened the conference in Memorial Continental Hall with a bombshell, announcing that the United States stood ready to scrap new capital ship hulls upon which $330,000,000 already had been spent. This was something tangible. The other powers had nothing to sacrifice but blue-prints, and so the Washington Treaty of 1922 was signed.

This treaty limited building only in capital ships. At the London naval conference of 1930, the United States agreed with other powers to a limit on cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers and submarines.

In view of the loud clank of armor that is heard in the world today, it is interesting to recall the dove-like benedictions that were bestowed on the Washington conference.

The British said that "this absolutely ends the race in naval armaments." In the last few weeks Great Britain has announced a record-breaking $7,500,000,000 arms budget, most of which will go to strengthen the royal navy.

Arms Matter of Past.

Japan said that competition in naval armaments was "a matter of the past;" that friendship had taken the place of suspicion, and that peace and good will loomed ahead. Since then Japan has bombed Shanghai and has snatched Manchuria from a helpless China. Her naval appropriation this year is the largest in her history.

France said that the Washington Treaty meant a "better future for humanity." Today that must sound like a mockery to her. With her Maginot line, her crack army, her growing air force, she again awaits the booming of the guns.

Italy said the treaty had brought a "solid euilibrium" to the world. Equilibrium? Fourteen years later Mussolini had all Europe off balance as his legions marched into Ethiopia to make that benighted kingdom a vassal of Rome. And now Il Duce, boasting of a "forest of 8,000,000 bayonets," has his blackshirts engaged in the bloody international tournament in Spain.

The words of President Harding, in opening the Washington conference in 1921, sound pathetically idealistic in this realistic year of 1937. A "war-weary world, hungry and thirsty for better relationship * * * humanity crying for relief * * * lasting peace * * * A world staggering with debt * * * shocked by wanton destruction * * * outlaw war." Poor Harding, with his craving for "normalcy!" Today his Washington Arms Treaty is a scrap of paper, and the London Treaty with it.

U. S. Leads in Ships.

Whatever may have been in the minds of the other powers, the United States, amid loud hosannas from the professional pacifists, set out in 1922 to prove its altruism still further. It didn't even bother to build the ships that were allowed it under the treaties.

That must be remembered to understand the program that is under way today.

From 1922 to 1933, the United States built only 44 ships of war. In that same period, Great Britain built 155 and Japan 157.

Today the United States has more war ships than any other nation. However, that doesn't mean much since so many of them are over age, or approaching that stage. To make a comparison, the United States has 212 ships that are outworn, Great Britain has 105 and Japan only 29. That shows how far the United States lagged behind, as Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—the prosperity Presidents—hoped for peace and ordered economy.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is a "seagoing" President. He loves the Navy. In the White House he dwells in a nautical atmosphere, surrounded by models and prints of ships. Looking at them, a visitor cannot help but recall that a Navy League president once accused Hoover of "abysmal ignorance" on naval affairs.

Strengthens Navy.

One of Roosevelt's first acts was to strengthen the Navy. Using the authority granted him in the national industrial recovery act, he ordered the construction of a number of ships.

In March, 1934, Congress passed the Vinson-Trammell bill, which calls for the gradual building up of the Navy until it reaches the ratios allowed under the Washington and London treaties. Those treaties expired on January 1. However, it was decided to use their limits anyway.

This year Great Britain, like the United States, is building two battleships. However, she has three more projected and also three aircraft carriers besides the three under construction. Altogether, it is reported, Britain has a program calling for 80 war ships in addition to the 69 now under construction or appropriated for.

It may be, therefore, that the United States in order to make good its boast of a Navy "second-to-none," will have to expand its own five-year program.

What will America's "new" Navy be like? Will there be any great changes? What about aircraft?

Planes to Have Part.

Naval experts say that, fundamentally, there will be no startling departures. Fighting planes will, of course, have a much more prominent place in the picture. But the battleship, the experts say, will remain the dominant factor, the "backbone" of the fleet, this despite all the talk about the airplane having made it obsolete, a helpless prey to bombs. Few Navy men ever believed that kind of talk; fewer still believe it today. The same talk was heard, they recall, when the torpedo was invented.

It is the history of warfare that as surely as one man invents an offensive weapon, another will come through with something to combat it. The modern battleship will have heavier deck armor and anti-aircraft guns. But what the Navy will depend on largely to ward off enemy planes will be its own planes.

These planes, taking off from aircraft carriers, from the battleships themselves and from cruisers, are expected not only to fight off enemy planes but to strike a blow at enemy ships.

In a defensive sea battle anywhere near the American coast, the Navy also would have the help of the Army Air Corps.

Our Navy is acknowledged to have the best air force in the world, both from the standpoint of its planes and of its fliers. When naval air force is mentioned, it is intended, of course, to include the crack squadrons of the Marine Corps.

To revert to the "new" Navy, the battleship, floating fortress that it is, will remain the dominant factor. She is heavily armed and heavily armored. The gun is her major weapon.

Destroyers Big Threat.

Next in size is the aircraft carrier, a floating airdrome with a spacious deck on which planes may land or take off. She carries guns of a medium caliber.

Then comes the heavy cruiser and the light cruiser. Fast, armed with torpedoes as well as guns, she is a threat to the aircraft carrier, to lighter cruisers, to destroyers, and, if she can get within torpedo range under cover of darkness, to the battleship.

After the cruisers comes the destroyer, the speedy terrier of the sea, a threat to ships of any size within torpedo range.

Finally, there is the submarine, whose function is well known. It carries a gun or two, but it is her torpedoes and her ability to submerge that makes the submarine the threat she is. The important part played by destroyers and submarines in the World War led this country to build a much larger number, proportionately, than it did in the prewar days.

America's sea power has two glaring weaknesses. One is the lack of an adequate merchant marine, which could serve as an auxiliary, providing oil tankers, supply ships, troop ships and even converted cruisers. The other weakness is lack of naval bases.

Great Britain is well-endowed with both merchant ships and naval bases. Therefore, say some experts, it is foolish to talk of American parity with her.

The merchant marine act of 1936, with its policy of direct subsidies, is designed to recapture some of that glory that was America's in the day of the clipper ships, and also to provide a war-time auxiliary for the Navy.

As for naval bases, Americans are going to hear more and more about them in the days to come. A base at Puerto Rico is being urged. Naval strategists say that a fleet bent on attacking us from Europe would almost have to establish a base in the Caribbean. Therefore, they expect that the Caribbean would be the scene of a major sea battle. Hence the importance of an American base at Puerto Rico. Looking over toward the Pacific, the experts see nothing to do but expand the existing naval base at Oahu in the Philippines.

The United States used to have an Atlantic fleet and a Pacific fleet. After the World War these were combined and assigned to the West Coast. That obviously must be regarded as the area most in need of protection. America has a $2,000,000,000 maritime trade in the Pacific.

Today, however, the Nation's military and naval leaders are watching the Orient with one eye and Europe with the other.

Holt Condemns Court Proposal At Alexandria

Tells Kiwanis Meeting President Wants 12 Marionettes.

President Roosevelt "wants 12 marionettes" in the Supreme Court, Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, charged yesterday when he opposed the President's court proposal in a speech before the Alexandria Kiwanis Club.

The speaker was introduced by Irving Diener, program chairman. Walter Pierpont, club president, presided.

"No man can be named to the Supreme Court," said Senator Holt, "unless he goes with the mark that he will support the President's policies 100 per cent. He wants 12 marionettes, to speak for the White House itself."

"The whole fight," said the speaker "has been because the President desires more power in his own hands, and to take it away from the legislative and judicial branches of the Government. The punishment for a Senator or Representative is that if they do not go along with the President their patronage will be taken away from them.

"If we allow the President to usurp the powers of the judiciary, we will set a precedent that will haunt America for years to come."
